Overview & Current Events

ResMed is a medical devices company that engages in the development, manufacturing and marketing of devices that diagnose, treat and manage a range of respiratory disorders such as sleep apnea. The company was founded in 1989 and is headquartered in San Diego, CA.

ResMed reported its third quarter (fiscal 2023) earnings results on April 28. The company reported revenues of $1.12 billion for the quarter, which was up 30% compared to the prior year's quarter. This was a better performance compared to what was expected by the analyst community, as estimates were beaten by a sizeable $70 million. Even though ResMed continues to invest in other business units, most of the revenue is still generated by the device business, which remains ResMed's largest unit by far. ResMed was not able to grow its margins further during the quarter, unlike in previous quarters, as its gross margin declined by 200 basis points, to a still pretty high 56.1%.

ResMed generated earnings-per-share of $1.68 during the third quarter, which beat analyst estimates by $0.09.

ResMed's earnings-per-share were up by an attractive 27% compared to the prior year's quarter. Fiscal 2022 was a solid year for the company, and ResMed is on track to be even more profitable this year.

ResMed has been a reliable growth investment in the past. The company produced a very compelling 15% earnings-per-share growth rate through the last decade and was not impacted by the last financial crisis.

ResMed's strong growth rate was possible through a combination of revenue increases, some margin expansion, and a declining share count. Revenue growth was the most important factor, which ResMed achieved through growing its product portfolio, as well as via geographic expansion. Through focused R&D, ResMed was able to establish itself as the global leader in sleep apnea management, an indication with a large market that is still severely underpenetrated. Studies show that up to one-fourth of adults have sleep apnea. In many major markets market penetration is still below 10%, which is why ResMed has a lot of potential to grow its revenues going forward, even without expanding its product lineup. All that is required will be investments into sales & marketing and additional manufacturing capacity.

Chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD) is another indication with need for treatment where ResMed is establishing itself. ResMed is also actively working at the intermixture between medtech and information technology by investing heavily into connected health solutions, as this is deemed a major growth market over the coming decades. ResMed's offerings include end-to-end systems for sleep and respiratory care and cloud-based diagnostic testing.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	20.0	20.3	23.4	22.7	26.1	29.2	34.1	40.3	46.2	36.8	34.5	24.0
Avg. Yld.	1.6%	2.1%	1.9%	2.1%	2.0%	1.3%	1.2%	0.8%	0.6%	0.8%	0.8%	1.0%

ResMed is a high-quality company with a compelling earnings growth track record, and the earnings growth outlook over the coming years is positive as well. This justifies an above-average valuation multiple, which is why shares were valued at more than 20 times profits throughout most of the last decade. We see a fair value of 24 times net profits, but shares trade well above that level right now, which is why the stock looks overvalued today.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	32.4%	41.8%	45.3%	48.2%	46.8%	39.7%	38.5%	32.8%	29.3%	29.0%	27.1%	24.7%

ResMed only started paying dividends in 2013, but since then the dividend has grown consistently. The most recent dividend increase of 7.7% was roughly in line with the average dividend growth rate over the last couple of years. Due to a relatively low dividend payout ratio of less than 30%, the dividend looks very safe, we believe.

ResMed is smaller than many of its medtech peers, but it is very well positioned in the niche it addresses, and it owns strong products and a respectable IP portfolio. We believe that ResMed will continue to be a dominant player in the markets that it targets; competition does not seem to be a problem. The company's products are needed whether the economy is doing well or not, which is why ResMed is not a cyclical company. The company's earnings-per-share continued to grow through the Great Recession, and this will most likely be the case during future recessions as well.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

ResMed is a high-quality medtech company that targets an attractive market and that has achieved compelling earnings growth rates in the past. We believe that ResMed will be able to grow profitably during the coming years as well, and the company will also continue to increase its dividend. Shares trade above our fair value estimate, however, which is why we rate ResMed a hold, even though the company looks strong on a fundamental basis.
