Overview & Current Events

Booz Allen Hamilton Holding Corporation traces its roots to 1914. The company had an IPO on November 10, 2010. Booz is a leading provider of professional management and technology consulting services to the U.S. Government. Technology consulting services include information technology, cybersecurity, cloud computing, and engineering services. The company basically provides staffing to U.S. Government clients. About 97% of revenue was derived from contracts where the US Government was the end client in FY23. Revenue was 47% defense, 31% civil, 19% intelligence, and 3% global commercial in FY23. The company had $9.26B in revenue in FY22.

Booz reported solid results for Q4 FY 2023 and the full year on May 26th, 2023. For the quarter, revenue increased 7.1% to $2,433M from $2,238M and adjusted diluted earnings per share increased 17.4% to $1.01 from $0.86 on a year-over-year basis. Booz increased headcount to 31,925 in the quarter from 29,317 in the prior year. Client staff headcount increased to 29,070 from 26,289 in the prior year. Greater head count drives revenue for the company. Contract type mix for the quarter varied as cost-reimbursable contracts was 54%, time-and-materials was 25%, and fixed-price was 21%.

Booz is growing via bolt-on acquisitions. In the past two years, it has spent $1.2B on Tracepoint, Liberty IT, and Everwatch, expanding in digital healthcare and cyber security. Booz has started a $100M corporate venture capital fund to invest in defense, AI, cybersecurity, and deep learning startups.

Booz continues to win contracts and the backlog rose 6.7% to ~$31.2B of which $4,619M was funded, $9,519M was unfunded, and $17,064M was priced options. The book-to-bill ratio was 1.47X in the quarter, low by historical standards.

Booz set guidance at 7.0% - 11.0% revenue growth and $4.80 to $4.95 adjusted diluted EPS.

The EPS history for Booz Allen Hamilton's short operating history as a public company has been volatile. But until several years ago the federal budget environment was unstable. However, Booz has exhibited an upward trend in EPS since fiscal 2016 until 2021. We are expecting continued growth for the next several years because of growth in the backlog and U.S. federal government spending. We are now forecasting on average an 8% annual growth rate for EPS out to FY 2029. This will be driven by client demand for the company's services, around 2% decrease in share count annually, and tuck-in acquisitions. The company consistently repurchases shares each year. Booz has reliably increased the dividend at a double-digit rate since FY 2012. We expect the growth rate to slow over time. But we are still forecasting on average a 12% annual growth rate in DPS out to FY 2029 due to the relatively low payout ratio.

¹ BAH's fiscal year ends on the last day of March and all the tables are in fiscal year.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	16.4	14.3	19.2	17.9	17.3	20.3	20.9	20.0	23.9	22.1	20.6	19.0

Booz Allen Hamilton's stock price is up since our last report on beating estimates and the debt ceiling deal. We increased our fair value estimate to 19X, just below the 10-year average. We have pegged our FY 2024 earnings estimate near the mid-point of guidance. Our fair value estimate is $93. Our 5-year price target is $136.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	25%	28%	27%	36%	33%	26%	28%	28%	35%	41%	39%	46%

Booz Allen Hamilton is one of the largest prime services contractors for the U.S. Government. The company's competitive advantages include its scale, long-term history, technical depth, first mover advantage with many clients, and historical knowledge of many consulting projects. This is evident in the ~90% win rate for recompete contracts and ~61% win rate for new contracts. This provides some degree of recession resistance. But saying that, the company is not immune to economic downturns or slowdowns in federal government spending. Events such as changes in administration or party control of Congress can affect the federal budget and impact Booz' top and bottom lines.

The company has $41.3M in current long-term debt and $2,770.9M in long-term debt offset by $404.9M in cash and equivalents at end of the quarter. The leverage ratio is rising again and is now ~3.8X and interest coverage is ~3.7X.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present we are forecasting on average an 8.2% annualized total return through FY 2029 from a dividend yield of 1.9%, 8.0% EPS growth, and (-1.6%) P/E multiple contraction. The passage of the debt ceiling deal removed an overhang on Booz. While the federal budget will remain flat for the next two years, the feared deep cuts did not materialize. But competition is strong, and leverage is quite high. We rate this stock a hold at the current price and valuation.
