Overview & Current Events

1st Source was founded in 1863 and since that time has grown into a regional bank with about $8 billion in total assets. The company is headquartered in Indiana and has about 100 locations to service its customers. 1st Source's market capitalization is $1.1 billion, and it is expected to produce about $365 million in revenue this year. 1st Source also has an exceptional dividend increase streak that stands at 35 years, which very few banks can match.

1st Source posted second quarter earnings on July 20th, 2023, and results were better than expected. Earnings-per-share totaled $1.30, which was an impressive 19 cents better than expected. Revenue was only in line with expectations at $91.5 million, but was nearly 6% higher from the same period in 2022.

Net interest income was $68.7 million, down slightly from Q1 of this year, but 8% higher from the year-ago period. Net interest margin was 3.48% in Q2, down 12bps from Q1, but 16bps higher from last year's Q2.

Net income on a dollar basis was $32.44 million, up 10.6% year-over-year. On a per-share basis, earnings rose 10.2%.

Average loans and leases rose $105 million, up 1.7%, or 7% annualized growth, from the previous quarter. It was also 12.3% higher from the year-ago period. Deposits were up $70 million, or 1% higher from the March quarter, and up 2% from the year-ago quarter.

We've moved our estimate lower to $4.25 in earnings-per-share for this year, as the company continues to struggle with earnings growth, as lending margins continue to drift lower.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Earnings-per-share growth has been robust since the bottom in 2009. Recent growth has been fueled by gains in the company's asset base, averaging 5%+ in the past decade. 1st Source's strong balance sheet growth has been accompanied by expanding margins at times and prudent operating expenditures, allowing for a rise in returns on its asset base. We're reiterating our estimate of earnings contraction (not growth) of 2% going forward, as the bank continues to struggle in producing earnings expansion in recent quarters. 1st Source is trying to build more fee revenue, but its business is still heavily dependent upon lending margins, and we think growth will be tough to come by because of the unfavorable interest rate environment with respect to deposit costs against lending rates. We now see a huge drop in earnings for 2023 from 2022's record level.

Our expectation for the dividend is now $1.41 in 2028 as we see 1st Source facing headwinds in its ability to grow earnings. However, we don't expect the bank to end its very long streak of dividend increases. We see the bank as being hesitant to boost its payout ratio much higher than it is at the moment.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	11.8	12.8	13.9	15.3	18.4	16.4	13.1	11.2	9.9	11.0	10.6	11.0
Avg. Yld.	2.6%	2.3%	2.2%	2.1%	1.6%	1.9%	2.4%	3.1%	2.6%	2.4%	2.8%	3.3%

1st Source's price-to-earnings multiple has been steady, all things considered, for the past decade. It is trading for 10.6 times earnings currently, which is slightly below our estimate of fair value. Therefore, we see a 0.8% tailwind to total returns from the valuation in the coming years. The yield should remain near 3% for the foreseeable future.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	31%	30%	32%	34%	30%	30%	31%	35%	26%	26%	30%	37%

The payout ratio is around one-quarter of earnings and dividend raises will likely be somewhat modest in the coming years. We see the dividend as safe and with a lot of room to grow given 1st Source's commitment to raising the payout, as well as the low payout ratio. We see the payout growing even if 1st Source is not able to produce strong earnings growth, and indeed, that is what we're forecasting.

1st Source's competitive advantage is in its clean balance sheet, strong profitability metrics and robust market position in the areas it serves. The advantage of a community or regional bank is that it can generate sizable market share in lots of small markets, creating a sustainable competitive advantage. It is obviously not immune from recessions but did perform well in 2020, all things considered.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We believe total returns for 1st Source investors could be just 1.7% annually, consisting of the current 2.8% yield, a small tailwind from the valuation and 2% earnings contraction. Given that the bank's growth outlook is poor, and the fact that it has struggled to grow loans and leases organically, we think this will keep a lid on growth. With the move down in total returns, we're moving the stock from hold to sell. We see many better opportunities in the banking space than 1st Source despite the nice yield.
