Overview & Current Events

American Financial Group (AFG) is an insurance holding company that is engaged in property and casualty insurance, focusing on specialized commercial products for businesses. In 2021, the company completed the sale of its annuity business for $3.57 billion in cash. In business for over 150 years, this $9.4 billion market cap company has regularly increased its quarterly dividend since 2006.

AFG reported Q2 2023 earnings on August 2nd, 2023. For the quarter, earnings-per-share was $2.34, above the $1.96 per share that the company reported for the same period in 2022. The company has not yet declared a regular quarterly dividend, but we expect to declare one shortly.

The company lowered its guidance to $10.15-$11.15 from the previously estimated $11.00-$12.00. This reduction comes about because of poorer than expected returns in the first half of the year. Nonetheless the company remains pleased at the higher interest rate environment which has contributed meaningfully to achieve higher year-over-year investment income returns.

The company had approximately $700 million of excess capital as of June 30, 2023, and management intends to deploy that capital into AFGs core business as well as returning it to shareholder directly via share buybacks and dividends.

Insurance companies are stable non-cyclical businesses with generally reliable revenue and income streams that allow them to pay consistent dividends and return capital to shareholders. American Financial Group fits this mold precisely, and its performance over the past decade shows consistently growing revenues and earnings. As a mature company in a mature industry, we don't expect this situation to change.

While the above market average growth of their earnings and dividends will likely slow down in the next few years, we still expect the company to be able to outperform as a result of the profitable specialty insurance business which AFG is involved with. The specialty insurance business should have more growth opportunities than the consumer facing insurance segments.

As a result, we expect earnings to grow 8% annually until 2028, where earnings-per-share would stand at around $16.16 per share, and its quarterly dividend around $3.82 per share.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Avg. P/E	11.9	12.1	12.3	12.2	15.1	12.9	11.8	9.1	10.6	10.7	10.1	13.0

American Financial Group has traded with an average P/E of about 12 times earnings in the past decade. Given its strong growth and history of returning capital to shareholders, we would expect this company to be re-rated slightly up to 13 times earnings by 2028.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	19%	19%	19%	19%	20%	17%	19%	22%	18%	24%	24%	24%

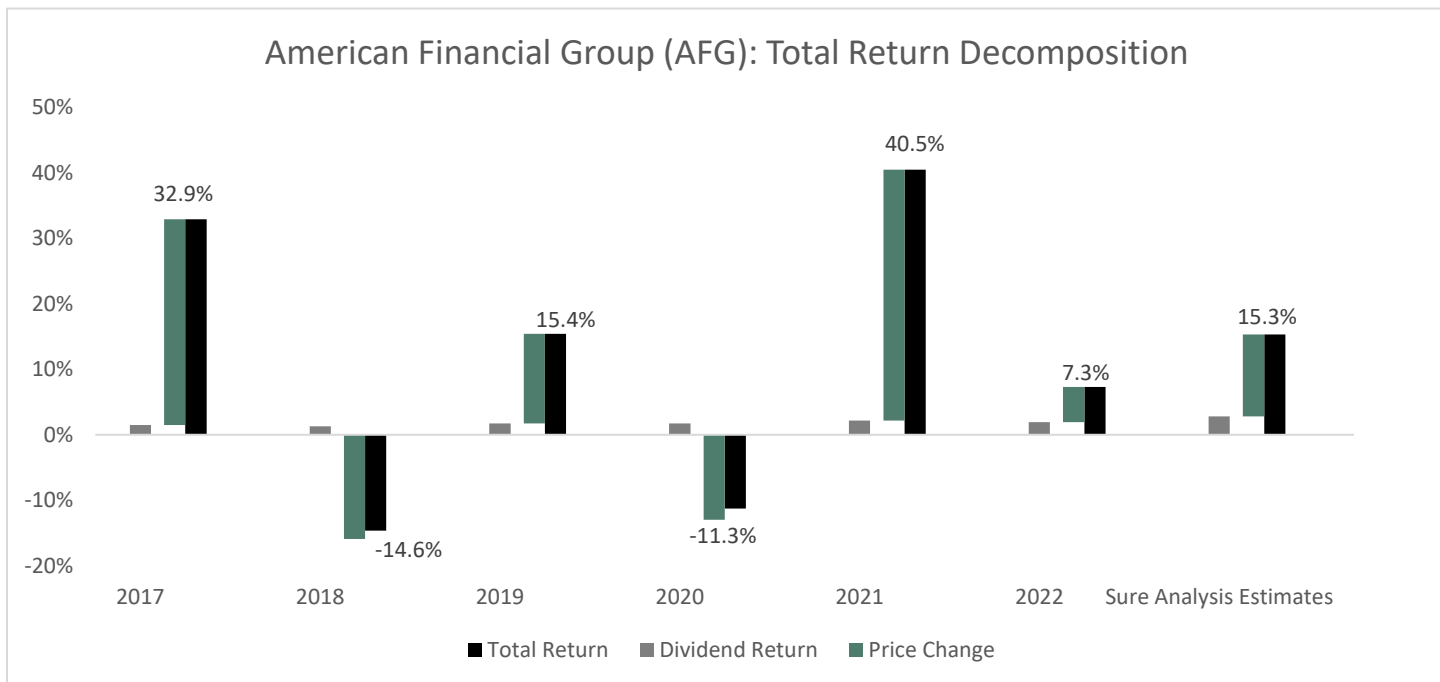

The combination of regular quarterly dividends with special dividends mean that the company can quickly return capital to shareholders in special cases and events, like the recent divestiture of their annuities business, without restricting their ongoing ability to take on new opportunities. Additionally, the sale of the annuities business also helps the company focus on its more profitable property and casualty insurance divisions, which have better growth prospects and more reliable earnings.

Overall, the quarterly dividends are well covered by the company's earnings and are unlikely to be cut anytime soon, however the special dividends will fluctuate as the company's business needs evolve.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

With a deceptively low 2.3% dividend yield, and an expected 8% earnings growth, we estimate that the total return for AFG will be around 15.3% annually. However, this company's special dividends may provide an additional tailwind not accounted for in this forecast, and so it is likely that returns could be significantly better. Shares earn a buy rating.
