Overview & Current Events

Illinois Tool Works is a diversified multi-industrial manufacturer with seven unique operating segments: Automotive, Food Equipment, Test & Measurement, Welding, Polymers & Fluids, Construction Products and Specialty Products. Last year the company generated $15.9 billion in revenue. The $77 billion market cap company is geographically diversified, with more than half of its revenue generated outside of the United States. Illinois Tool Works is a member of the Dividend Aristocrats Index and is a Dividend King.

On August 1st, 2023, Illinois Tool Works reported second quarter 2023 results for the period ending June 30th, 2023. For the quarter, revenue came in at $4.1 billion, up 2% year-over-year. Sales were up 16.2% in the Automotive OEM segment, the largest out of the company's seven segments. Food Equipment, Welding, and Test & Measurement and Electronics segments grew revenue by 6.3%, 0.7% and 0.7%, respectively. Meanwhile, Polymers & Fluids, Construction Products, and Specialty Products saw revenue decline by 7.6%, 6.8% and 5.4%.

Net income equaled $754 million or $2.48 per share compared to $738 million or $2.37 per share in Q2 2022.

Illinois Tool Works raised its 2023 guidance and sees full-year GAAP EPS to be between $9.55 to $9.95 (up from $9.45 and $9.85 previously). Additionally, the company expects to repurchase roughly $1.5 billion of its own shares in the year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

In the 2007 through 2019 period Illinois Tool Works increased its earnings-per-share by an average compound rate of 7.2% per annum. While there was cyclicity during the great recession, including a -40% drop in earnings from 2007 to 2009, generally the company has exhibited consistent progress. In the past, Illinois Tool Works was able to grow via moderate top-line growth that was aided significantly by margin expansion and share repurchases.

Results for 2020 dipped -14% amid the pandemic, but 2021 bounced back materially and 2022's results were outright impressive. Moving forward, growth becomes a bit more difficult as the company gets larger. Still, the balance sheet is in good shape, allowing for some flexibility from a capital allocation standpoint. Moreover, attractive returns can be achieved without venturing outside Illinois Tool Works' existing core competencies. Illinois Tool Works can continue to invest in its sales networks, R&D, and production capacity and the company's cost-cutting efforts could continue to buoy margins.

We are using the midpoint of management's guidance, $9.75, along with an 8% expected annual growth rate over the intermediate term. This is at the low end of the company's 9% to 10% annual EPS growth target, but we prefer to remain conservative in our estimates.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	19.4	18.5	18	19	21	19.3	19.8	27.4	25.7	24.4	25.6	19.5
Avg. Yld.	1.70%	2.00%	2.20%	2.20%	1.90%	2.40%	2.70%	2.40%	2.20%	2.20%	2.1%	2.6%

Over the past decade shares of Illinois Tool Works have traded hands with an average P/E ratio of about 21.5 times earnings. We believe that a P/E ratio of 19.5 is a fair starting point, considering the quality of the business and growth prospects. With shares currently trading at nearly 26 times the midpoint of management's guidance, this implies the potential for a valuation headwind.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	44%	37%	40%	42%	40%	47%	53%	67%	55%	52%	54%	51%

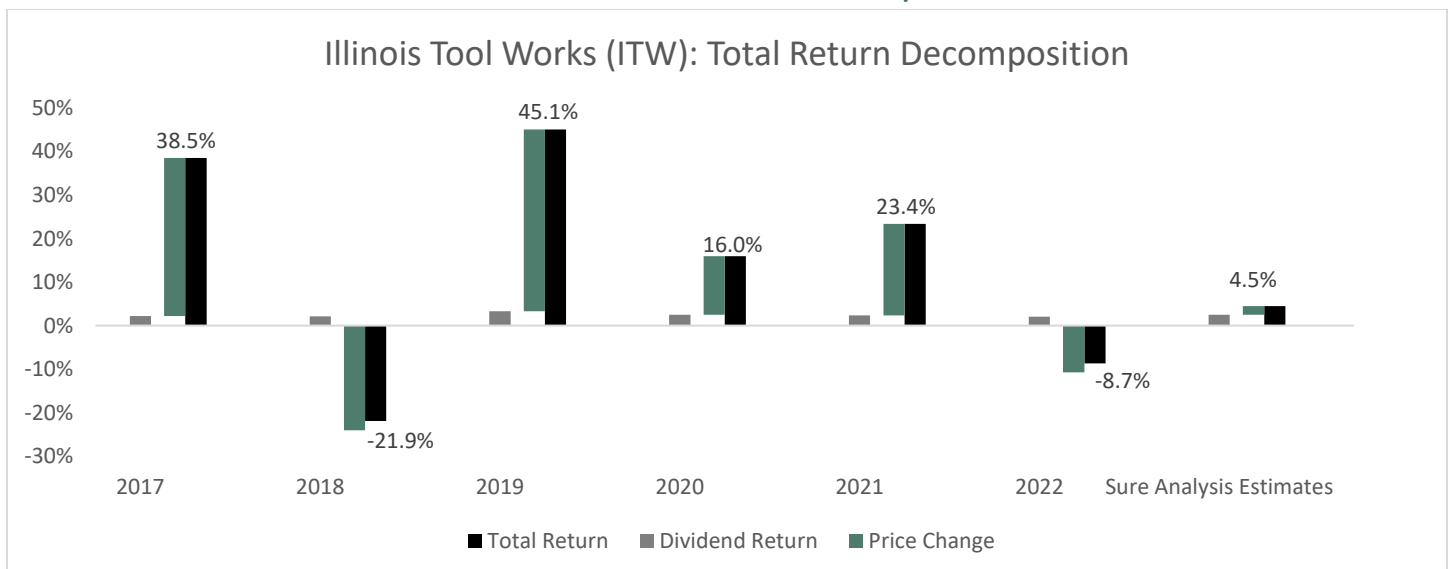

Illinois Tool Works has an excellent dividend growth history. Its payout ratio was relatively high during the last financial crisis, but the company was not forced to cut the payout. Today the dividend payout ratio sits at 54% of expected earnings, above the company's long-term target, meaning that future dividend growth may trail earnings growth.

Illinois Tool Works' industry is not glamorous or one with outstanding growth rates, but the company has established itself as a major player that continues to grow profitably. Its experienced management and strong fundamentals, such as an above-average return on capital, function as competitive advantages. The company's profits were reduced during the last financial crisis, posting earnings-per-share of $3.36, $3.05, $1.93, and $3.03 during the 2007 through 2010 stretch. This is something to consider for the next downturn, as the business was tested in 2020 as well.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Shares are up 13% year-to-date, which is unfavorable compared to the broader market's 18% gain. Illinois Tool Works has several positives, including solid earnings growth, a nice dividend yield, a long and successful dividend growth history, and a compelling long-term track record. However, total return potential comes in at 4.5% per annum, stemming from 8.0% growth and a 2.1% dividend yield offset by the possibility of a valuation headwind. Shares earn a hold rating.
