Overview & Current Events

Old Republic, founded in 1907, markets, underwrites, and provides risk management services for a variety of general and title insurances. The company engages in underwriting and related services, primarily in the US, but in Canada as well. Old Republic has three operating segments: General Insurance, Title Insurance, and a run-off business. It generates about $8 billion in annual revenue and its market capitalization is $7.9 billion. Old Republic also has an outstanding dividend increase streak of 42 years.

Old Republic posted second quarter earnings on July 27th, 2023, and results were mixed. Adjusted earnings-per-share totaled 63 cents, which was eight cents better than expected. Revenue was down 14% year-over-year to $1.83 billion, which was $100 million under estimates.

Net premiums and fees earned were $1.65 billion, up from $1.56 billion in Q1, but down almost 17% from the year-ago period. Total operating expenses were $1.6 billion, up from $1.51 billion in Q1, but well off of last year's comparable quarter at $1.87 billion.

Combined ratio came to 92.6%, down slightly from 92.7% in Q1, but up from 90.9% in Q2 of last year. A lower ratio is better, as it is a measure of costs.

Book value per share ended the quarter at $21.78, up from $21.07 at the end of 2022. We see $2.50 in earnings-per-share for this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

As one would expect, Old Republic's earnings-per-share has been very volatile during the past decade. Insurers have notoriously unpredictable earnings and Old Republic is certainly no exception, having seen its earnings plummet and skyrocket multiple times in this period. We forecast Old Republic's growth rate at 2%.

We see Old Republic as struggling to grow from last year's high base of earnings because title insurance is weak, and getting weaker. The once-hot real estate market has slowed materially, creating headwinds for what was Old Republic's primary source of growth, which is title insurance. With earnings for this year still forecast well under 2021, that headwind has not yet shown signs of abating.

The dividend will likely continue to grow at a relatively slow pace as dividend increases in the past decade have been very small. It did pay a $1 special dividend early in 2018, late in 2019, and again in late 2020. The special dividend for 2021 was a very robust $1.50, and for 2022, it was $1.00. The stock's yield is still very strong even with its sluggish payout growth, so income investors will likely find it attractive. The special dividends make the total yield for the year close to 10%.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	11.2	18.6	12.5	12.6	18.0	11.4	12.0	7.8	7.7	8.7	11.2	11.0
Avg. Yld.	5.1%	4.7%	4.6%	4.1%	3.8%	3.7%	3.6%	4.8%	3.7%	3.8%	3.5%	3.9%

Old Republic's price-to-earnings multiple has been volatile in recent years, but that has mostly been due to changes in earnings and not valuation resets from investors. Our estimate of fair value for Old Republic is 11 times earnings, which is lower than the current 11.2, and lower than its average of ~12. We are therefore forecasting a small headwind to annual total returns from the valuation over the coming years.

We see the yield staying very strong. The wildcard is the recent special dividends the company paid in lieu of larger quarterly dividend increases, but we think Old Republic will continue to be a strong income stock for years to come.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	58%	87%	59%	51%	68%	42%	43%	38%	29%	33%	39%	43%

The payout ratio has fallen significantly in recent years. Given slow payout growth coupled with strong earnings that trend could continue. Overall, Old Republic is in significantly better shape than it was a few years ago. We note the lack of earnings growth projected could see the payout ratio rise somewhat in the near future.

Old Republic operates in a tremendously competitive field, making advantages hard to come by. However, it sets itself apart with its strong premiums against claims, which is the product of prudent underwriting. We note that Old Republic is exposed to weak real estate markets through its title insurance business.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, Old Republic looks good from an income stock perspective if one can stomach the potential risk of owning an insurer. The stock is now slightly ahead of our view of fair value estimate and offers forecasted total annual returns of 5.1% in the coming years, consisting of the current 3.5% yield, 2% earnings-per-share growth, and a 0.4% headwind from the potentially increasing valuation. The only caveat is that owning any insurer is an exercise in patience as Old Republic's growth will likely be far from constant. We are reiterating our hold rating following first half results.
