Overview & Current Events

Pembina Pipeline Corporation is based in Calgary, Canada. It has been serving the energy industry of North America with its transportation and midstream services for 68 years. It owns an integrated system of pipelines that transport various hydrocarbon liquids and natural gas products produced primarily in western Canada. The company also has gathering and processing facilities. Pembina has a market cap of $16.6 billion and operates in three segments: Pipelines, Facilities, and Marketing & New Ventures. In 2022, these segments generated 76%, 24% and 0% of the company's total pre-tax profit, respectively. All the figures in this report are in U.S. dollars.

On August 16th, 2022, Pembina and KKR combined their western Canadian natural gas processing assets into a single, new joint venture entity, which is owned 60% by Pembina and 40% by KKR. The value of the joint venture is C$11.4 billion (~$9.0 billion) and Pembina has the role of the operator and manager. The two companies formed this joint venture to create synergies and offer improved customer service.

In early August, Pembina reported (8/3/23) financial results for the second quarter of fiscal 2023. Pembina benefited from increased volumes on the Cochin Pipeline but it was hurt by some system outages and a lower pricing environment. As a result, its earnings-per-share dipped -13% over the prior year's quarter. Due to the steep correction of gas prices this year and the fading tailwind from the Ukrainian crisis, we still expect earnings-per-share to decrease from $2.42 to about $2.10 this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028

DPS	$1.60	$1.50	$1.35	$1.38	$1.57	$1.73	$1.78	$1.87	$2.00	$1.96	$1.96	$2.00
Shares¹	308	328	348	389	432	509	518	550	551	556	560	700

During the last decade, although Pembina has greatly increased its share count, it has grown its earnings-per-share at a 9.3% average annual rate. This growth has not been uniform, as the company failed to grow its earnings-per-share from 2012 to 2016. Nevertheless, the company has a long backlog of additional growth projects. Thanks to these projects, management previously stated that it expected to grow adjusted cash flow per share by 8%-10% per year and raise the dividend by about 5% per year beyond this year. Due to the volatile record of Pembina and the high earnings-per-share expected this year, we prefer to be somewhat conservative and thus we expect the company to grow its earnings-per-share by 3.0% per year on average over the next five years.

Pembina Pipeline Corp. (PBA)

Updated August 24th, 2023 by Aristofanis Papadatos

Pembina has traded at remarkably high price-to-earnings ratios through much of the last decade. In addition, due to its huge capital expenses on growth projects, the company has posted negative free cash flows in most years so we cannot use cash flows to evaluate the stock. The stock is now trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 14.3, which is higher than our assumed fair earnings multiple of 12.0. We have assumed such a low fair earnings multiple due to the appreciable debt load of the company. If the stock trades at our fair value estimate in five years, it will incur a -3.4% annualized drag in its returns.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	147%	162%	176%	188%	110%	98.2%	89.1%	111%	116%	81.0%	93.3%	82.1%

The competitive advantage of Pembina lies in its large scale and its integrated assets in some of the most prolific resource plays in North America. Pembina has steadily increased the fee-based portion of its EBITDA, from 77% in 2015 to 90%-95% this year. It has pursued this strategy in order to secure a reliable and growing dividend, which is the top priority of management. Pembina has raised its dividend (in CAD) for 9 consecutive years. It also used to pay dividends on a monthly basis but it recently switched to quarterly dividend payments. In addition, it has a stronger balance sheet than most midstream companies, with its credit rating standing at a BBB level. Nevertheless, if Pembina faces a major downturn, its dividend may come under pressure due to its elevated payout ratio and its material debt load.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Pembina has greatly benefited from above average prices of oil and gas, which have resulted from the war in Ukraine. As long as the war in Ukraine keeps going, Pembina could keep thriving, but the stock will have material downside risk whenever the next downturn of the energy sector shows up. We expect the stock to offer a 5.5% average annual return over the next five years, as its 3.0% earnings growth and its 6.5% dividend may be partly offset by a -3.4% valuation headwind. The stock receives a hold rating.
