Overview & Current Events

Paramount Group Inc is a real estate investment trust which acquires, manages, and redevelops office properties in the central business district submarkets of New York City, Washington DC, and San Francisco. Paramount's primary customers are financial services firms, legal services firms, and technology and media industries. The trust was established in 1978, and the current president and CEO, Albert Behler, has been at the helm since 1991. Paramount owns or has an interest in 13.8 million square feet of high quality office building investments, retail property, and debt and equity investments. Paramount Group trades on the NYSE under the ticker symbol PGRE and is one of the largest publicly owned real estate companies headquartered in New York, NY. PGRE has a market capitalization of $1.1 billion.

On June 15th, 2023, Paramount announced a 55% decrease to the dividend, from $0.0775 quarterly prior to $0.035. Albert Behler, the CEO of PGRE, said that this will enable the company to focus on paying down some debt and improving liquidity.

Paramount Group reported second quarter 2023 results on July 31st, 2023. The trust announced core funds from operations (FFO) of $38.7 million, or $0.18 per diluted share. Results compared unfavorably to the prior year's $53.6 million, or $0.24 per diluted share. Paramount also reported a 4.7% decrease in same store cash net operating income (NOI) and a 5.0% decrease in same store NOI compared to the prior year.

The trust leased a total of 71.8K square feet during the quarter. The occupancy rate stood at 89.6% at Q2 2023 end.

Leadership decreased its guidance for the 2023 fiscal year and estimates core FFO to come in between $0.84 to $0.88 (compared to $0.90 to $0.94 previously), for a mid-point of $0.86.

While Paramount Group is a trust with a long history, being established in 1978, it has only been publicly traded for a short period of time. Thus, we can only use historical data back to 2015 to form an opinion and estimate forward growth. Since 2015, PGRE has grown adjusted FFO at a rate of 2.8% annually. The trust managed to grow year-over-year into the pandemic year, but it slashed its dividend and its valuation plummeted. We predict that, in the intermediate term, core FFO per share may decline by 5% per year due to the effect of rising interest rates on PGRE's interest expense, upcoming lease expirations, and the continuing work from home trend.

The trust derives almost all of annualized rent from its office properties, which limits their retail exposure which suffered greatly in 2020. The trust led in same store cash NOI growth from 2017 to 2020 among its peers. Paramount has embedded rent growth within the portfolio due to strong historical and projected future rental rate growth in their submarkets, and contractual fixed rental rate increases in leases and rent from the lease-up of vacant and expiring leases. The trust targets acquisitions opportunities with a value-add component where PGRE can leverage their operating expertise, tenant relationships, and asset and property management approach. The trust will also incrementally add to AFFO with value-add renovations and redevelopments of office properties.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/AFFO			22.4	18.3	18.6	15.7	15.4	9.4	10.4	8.2	5.6	7.5
Avg. Yld.			2.3%	2.3%	2.4%	2.6%	2.9%	4.7%	3.4%	3.6%	2.9%	2.9%

The current P/AFFO of 5.6 is heavily discounted in comparison to its average nine- and five-year valuations of 14.8 and 11.8. Despite the lingering effects of pandemic, PGRE has shielded itself from the dangers of retail properties by focusing primarily on office properties. Still, remote work has persisted for longer than initially expected and the necessity of office properties diminishing is very real. This, in addition to lower occupancy, causes us to discount our valuation estimate, to trade at roughly 7.5 times core FFO. Following the latest dividend cut, PGRE only yields 2.9%, which is below its average yield of ~3.2%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout			52%	43%	44%	43%	44%	39%	30%	31%	16%	22%

Paramount's dividend has been choppy since it was instated in 2015, it was cut during the pandemic, and again in June 2023. At both times, the dividend appeared to be fairly covered by adjusted FFO, but the CFO of PGRE, Wilbur Paes, says they are looking forward to future plans and the upcoming lease role, so the dividend was preemptively slashed. The trust believes that their proven acquisition and operating expertise enables them to gain advantages over competitors through superior acquisition sourcing, focused leasing programs, active asset and property management and first-class tenant service. The trust was not publicly traded at the time of the Great Recession, and we believe the trust would only be somewhat recession resistant given the stickiness of office leases. However, this stickiness is being challenged now as corporations reduce their office footprint.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Paramount Group has a long history as a trust but only recently came to the public markets, debuting only five years prior to the pandemic. It cut the dividend during the pandemic, and again very recently, even though it was fairly covered by AFFO. The 2.9% dividend yield is low for an REIT. We also estimate a 6.1% tailwind to total returns due to valuation expansion. However, AFFO per share is likely to decrease in the coming years. Paramount Group trades at 74% of our fair value estimate, and with total expected returns of 3.5%, we rate shares as a hold, but reiterate as we have before that the dividend is not likely to be reliable.
