Overview & Current Events

Plains GP Holdings, via its subsidiary Plains All American Pipeline, manages midstream energy infrastructure across the USA and Canada. Their operations span two sectors: Crude Oil and Natural Gas Liquids (NGLs). They transport these resources through pipelines, gathering systems, and trucks while providing storage, terminalling, throughput, NGL fractionation, isomerization, and natural gas processing services. Their logistics aid producers, refiners, and clients in the energy sector.

On August 4th, 2023, the company announced results for the second quarter of 2023. Plains GP reported Q2 Non-GAAP EPS of $0.25, in line with estimates. The company reported revenues of $11.6 billion for the quarter, down 29.1% year-over-year. The total pipeline tariff volume stood at >8 MMB/d. The company operates ~135 MMB/mo liquid storage Capacity with ~185 Mb/d NGL fractionation capacity, reflecting a solid operating profile.

Plains GP Holdings saw improved net cash flow from operations, reaching $1.629 billion in the first half of 2023, up from $1.129 billion in the first half of 2022, driven by operational earnings and positive working capital changes. They project a total 2023 investment capital of approximately $420 million ($325 million net), with half directed to Permian JV assets and maintenance capital of $205 million ($195 million net), funded primarily through retained cash flow. In the first half of 2023, proceeds from asset divestitures totaled $284 million. The company is actively exploring strategic transactions that could significantly impact its financial outlook. Borrowings remained stable, with senior notes redemptions planned.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Plains GP Holdings evaluates the performance of its Crude Oil and NGL (Natural Gas Liquids) segments through Segment Adjusted EBITDA. In the Crude Oil segment, performance improved in 2023 due to increased volumes on key pipelines, tariff escalations, and favorable market opportunities in Canada. However, higher operating expenses and lower commodity prices partially offset this. In the NGL segment, Q2 2023 EBITDA decreased because of lower propane sales volumes, impacted by market dynamics, and deferred sales. The factors influencing performance include net revenues, field operating costs, and maintenance capital spending, reflecting the company's strategies and external market conditions.

In line with the company's guidance and improving demand outlook for Plains GP, we expect the company to post EPS of $1.23 in 2023. Our EPS growth forecast stands at 5.0% over the next five years, leading to our estimated EPS of $1.57 by 2028. Moreover, the company has a solid record of paying dividends despite operating in a volatile energy sector, as Plains GP has paid an increasing dividend for the past two years. We do not expect consistency in maintaining dividend growth. However, the long-term trends remain positive, so we estimate a 2% dividend growth rate, suggesting a DPS of $1.13 by 2028.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Avg. P/E	---	60.5	42.0	30.2	---	10.9	11.2	---	32.5	13.6	13.3	13.0
Avg. Yld.	0.5%	2.6%	4.1%	8.2%	6.5%	5.2%	6.5%	8.0%	7.1%	7.9%	6.2%	5.5%

The midstream energy infrastructure operator currently trades at a forward P/E of 13.3, in line with the five-year average P/E of 13.1. Even though the volatility and rise in prices and demand will benefit the company in the near term, we assign a P/E of 13.0 to the stock, which we believe is a fair reflection of its value. Accordingly, with expected EPS of $1.57 and P/E of 13.0, our target price for the stock stands at $20 by 2028.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

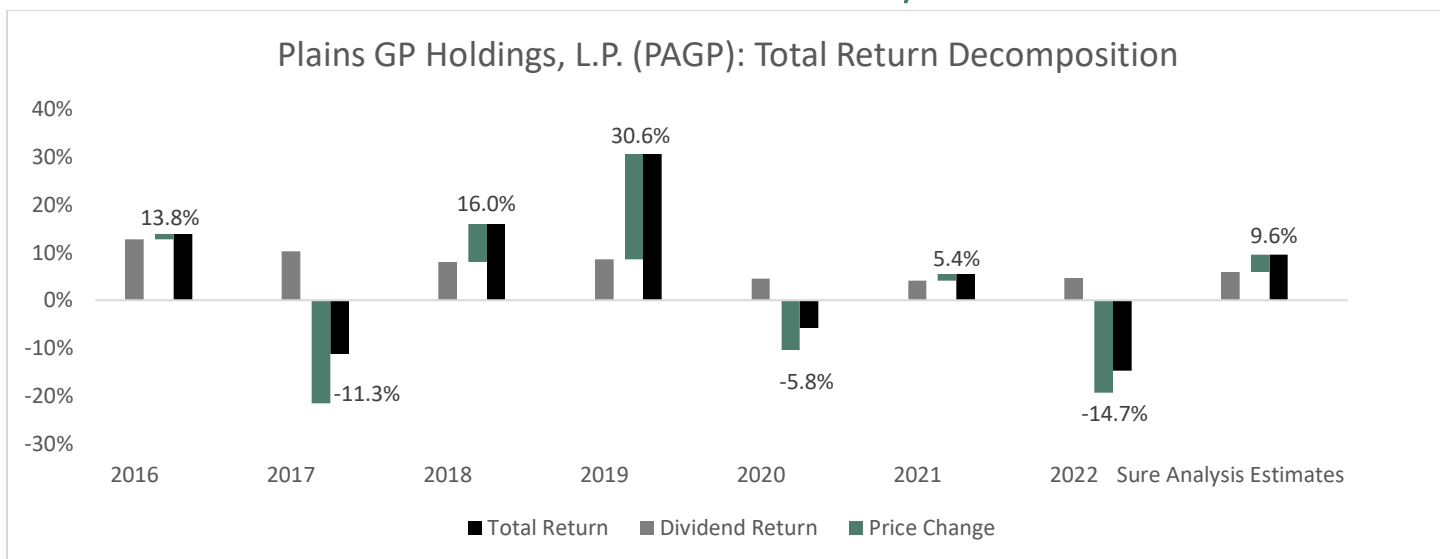

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	138%	159%	172%	248%	----	57%	73%	----	232%	107%	83%	101%

While company has paid a volatile dividend to its shareholders, we expect the company to maintain and increase its payout in the future. Plains GP Holdings is focused on prudent capital allocation in 2023, with approximately $1.6 billion in Free Cash Flow (FCF). Their priorities include reducing net debt by $0.6 billion and distributing over $1 billion to Common and Preferred shareholders. They aim for sustainable distribution growth, projecting a $0.20/unit annual increase in 2023, with further annual growth of about $0.15/unit thereafter. To maintain financial discipline, they will self-fund routine capital investments with an annual cash flow of $300M-$400M. In 2023, growth capital projects include Permian wellhead and connectivity, W2W projects, NGL optimization, and aligning assets with emerging energy opportunities, ensuring long-term viability.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Plains GP Holdings runs a critical crude and NGL infrastructure business, and we believe that increased energy demand and upstream underinvestment will be a positive catalyst for EPS growth. However, Plains GP Holdings' dividend growth prospects could remain flat. Therefore, our hold rating is premised upon 9.6% annualized expected total returns for the medium-term, derived from the forecasted earnings-per-share growth of 5.0%, 6.2% dividend yield, and a small valuation headwind.
