Overview & Current Events

Citigroup was founded in 1812, when it was known as the City Bank of New York. In the past 200+ years, the bank has grown into a global juggernaut in credit cards, commercial banking, trading, and a variety of other financial activities. It has thousands of branches, produces about $80 billion in annual revenue, and has an $80 billion market capitalization.

Citi posted third quarter earnings on October 13th, 2023, and results were much better than expected on both the top and bottom lines. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to $1.52, which was 30 cents better than expected. In addition, revenue was $20.1 billion, which was almost a billion dollars ahead of estimates. The company said each of its five main units grew revenue over the year-ago period. Management noted that Services grew the quickest, adding 13% revenue growth, as Treasury and Trade Solutions had its best quarter “in a decade”.

Net credit losses came to $1.64 billion, which was higher than $1.50 billion in Q2, and much worse than $887 million in the year-ago period. Net allowance credit build of $125 million was better than $161 million in Q2, and much lower than $370 million a year ago. Total cost of credit came to $1.84 billion, flat to Q2, but up sharply from $1.37 billion in last year’s third quarter.

Total operating expenses were $13.5 billion, down slightly from Q2, but up from $12.7 billion a year ago. Total loans were $666 billion at the end of Q3, up from $661 billion in Q2. Deposits totaled $1.27 trillion, off slightly from $1.32 trillion in June.

We see $6.00 in adjusted earnings-per-share for this year after a very solid Q3.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Citi’s earnings-per-share history is clouded by the immense struggles it endured following the Great Recession. However, years of hard work have paid off, and earnings have continued to move higher over time. We see Citi producing $6 per share in earnings for 2023, from which we expect 3% annual growth for the foreseeable future.

We believe Citi will continue to see higher revenue as its institutional and consumer businesses gather cheap deposits and lend them prudently, leading to reasonable loss rates and favorable margins. Citi is pulling back on lending at the moment due to less than favorable spreads on loans, which is resulting in extremely low loan-to-deposit ratios. That is a headwind, as it results in higher deposit costs without commensurate lending revenue, crimping top line and margin growth. However, the company’s buybacks could be good for a mid-single-digit reduction in the share count annually, as we saw in 2021 and 2022. We note that even in the recent tumultuous interest rate environment, Citi is performing reasonably well. Citi is not as tied to traditional lending as most other banks, so the yield curve is not as critical, but the cost of deposits is important for its massive credit card business. Continued deposit growth that is outpacing lending growth is weighing on margins. This was masked in 2021 by reserve releases, but it appears the bank is back to taking provisions on new loans without the benefit of massive releases, as evidenced in recent results showing higher credit costs, which is a headwind for earnings.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	11.4	22.8	9.8	9.7	12.3	10.4	8.4	11.0	6.9	6.4	6.8	9.5
Avg. Yld.	0.1%	0.1%	0.3%	0.9%	1.5%	2.2%	2.8%	3.8%	2.9%	4.5%	5.2%	3.4%

At just 6.8 times earnings, Citigroup's price-to-earnings ratio is still quite low. Our fair value estimate is 9.5 times earnings, so the stock is still quite undervalued. We expect the dividend yield of 5.2% to decline as the valuation of the stock rises over time. Even so, this is a solid income stock.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	2%	9%	7%	9%	18%	25%	24%	42%	20%	29%	35%	32%

Citi's payout ratio is only 35% of estimated earnings this year. Citi has spent the past several years trying to build its dividend back to a normalized level, and it is nearly in-line with competitors. We now expect modest dividend raises for the foreseeable future, as Citi focuses instead on buying back shares.

Citi's competitive advantage is in its global reach and its large position in the lucrative credit card business. Citi has differentiated itself from the other money center banks in these ways and it continues to serve the bank well. It is very susceptible to recessions as it nearly went out of business in 2008/2009. The 2020 downturn wasn't kind to Citi, although we note that the bank is in much better shape than it was heading into the financial crisis from a balance sheet and business mix perspective for future recessions.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 13.4% total annual returns over the next five years, which is up from our last report, mostly due to change to the valuation (now +6.8%). Earnings should be at normalized levels this year, and we expect 3% annual growth given the lower base for 2023. The yield is still 5.2%. We think Citi is past the worst of the pandemic's impacts, but that earnings will be impossible to replicate from 2021 levels anytime soon. The total return outlook warrants reiteration of a buy rating on the stock.
