Overview & Current Events

Anheuser-Busch InBev SA/NV is the largest brewer in the world. The company was formed in 2008 by the merger of InBev and Anheuser-Busch and is majority owned by 3G Capital. It acquired SABMiller in 2016, sold Carleton (Australian unit) in 2019, and acquired Craft Brew Alliance in 2020. AB InBev also owns about 61.8% of Ambev S.A. Today, the firm produces, markets, and sells over 500 different beer brands around the world. The company has seven of the top ten beer brands and 18 brands with over $1B in sales. Global brands include Budweiser, Stella Artois, Corona, and Michelob Ultra. Large regional brands include Aguila, Hoegaarden, Skol, and Brahma. The company has ~70% market share in Brazil and ~50% market share in the U.S. In 2022, revenue was ~$57.8B. The company trades as an ADR on the NYSE.

AB InBev reported Q3 2023 results on October 31st, 2023. Revenue rose 5.0% to $15,574M from $15,091M as total volumes fell (-3.4%) and revenue per hl was up 9.0%. Total volumes fell (-3.4%) with own beer volumes down (-4.0%) and non-beer volumes grew +1.4%. Volumes were up in the Middle Americas (+1.7%) and Asia Pacific (+0.2%), but declined in EMEA (-1.5%), South America (-2.2%), and North America (-17.1%). Outside of their home markets, the four global brands performed well with combined revenues increasing 15.1%. Normalized earnings per share increased to $0.73 from $0.71 in comparable periods, while underlying EPS rose to $0.86 from $0.84 (accounting for adjustments).

Currently, the firm is facing difficulties from a customer boycott of its Bud Light brand in the United States in response to a marketing campaign. Volumes declined dramatically but have stabilized. Bud Light was the number one brand in the United States but was passed by Modelo. As a result, total market share, revenue, and EBITDA is now lower.

AB InBev's strategy of premiumization is being led by its four global brands. Premium brands continue to grow and are more profitable per hl. A second focus is Beyond Beer, which is the intersection of beer, spirits, and wine. The category is growing at 45% CAGR and will be a $58B market by 2024. Beyond Beer is more profitable per hl than beer.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028

AB InBev's earnings per share history is volatile given that it often made acquisitions and divestures. Top line growth will likely be low-to-mid single-digits coming from geographic expansion of brands, premiumization, innovation, acquisitions, and direct-to-consumer solutions. The company continues to take brands that are successful in their home markets and distribute them to customers across the world. AB InBev is now facing challenges with its important Bud Light brand because of a negative reaction to a marketing campaign. The company's dividend is now paid once per year. The firm has prioritized reaching its net debt-to-EBITDA ratio goal over dividend payments. Despite the low payout ratio, we view it as unlikely that the dividend will be raised until leverage is reduced. Instead, it started a share buyback programs at $1 billion for 2023 to 2024.

¹ Anheuser-InBev has not yet announced the next dividend. This is estimated based in prior history.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	20.0	19.6	24.2	---	36.2	44.0	18.5	--	27.8	20.3	20.6	20.0
Avg. Yld.	3.1%	3.0%	3.3%	3.3%	3.6%	3.5%	2.4%	1.1%	0.9%	0.7%	0.8%	0.7%

AB InBev's stock price is up again since our last report. Sales and earnings are rising but volumes are lower. We maintained our earnings estimate. Our estimated fair value multiple is 20X, accounting for global economic uncertainty, inflation, and foreign exchange headwinds. Our fair value estimate is $61. Our 5-year price target is $71.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	63%	58%	80%	55%	130%	152%	44%	81%	26%	18%	17%	15%

AB InBev's competitive advantages are its global brands and supply chain that gives the company unmatched reach and capacity in the world. The brewer owns seven of the top 10 most valuable beer brands. AB InBev is also successfully leveraging its direct-to-consumer technology platforms to transition to digital solutions. The company faces risks in commodity pricing, adverse reactions to marketing, and foreign exchange due to its global footprint. The company is not recession resistant as alcoholic beverages are largely a consumer discretionary purchase.

AB InBev is leveraged with net debt of about $73.8B at end of Q2 2023, down from $122.6B at end of 2016. The company has about $6.8B of cash. The leverage ratio is elevated at ~4.1X compared to a target of 2.0X. However, the company's deleveraging progress is being recognized and the credit agencies have raised their ratings.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

At present, we expect total annualized returns of 3.1% for the next five years from a dividend yield of 0.8%, 3.0% EPS growth, and -0.6% P/E multiple contraction. AB InBev's momentum has slowed as consumers step back from discretionary purchases. Also, inflation is affecting commodity and supply chain costs. The firm is now experiencing lower volumes for leading brands because of negative perception around a marketing campaign. The focus of capital allocation is growth, deleveraging, selective M&A, and then returning of capital. We rate this stock a hold.
