Overview & Current Events

Blue Owl Capital is one of the world's largest alternative asset managers that offers primarily permanent capital solutions to clients. It is headquartered in New York City and went public in 2021. Its largest business segment is direct lending, but it also offers general partner private equity investment solutions and manages a large triple net lease real estate investment portfolio.

On November 2nd, OWL released its Q3 financial results. The company's earnings per share for the quarter were 49 cents, surpassing the Zacks Consensus Estimate by 4.3% and showing a significant 32.4% improvement year over year. Total investment income for the quarter was $399 million, a 27.1% increase from the previous year, beating the consensus estimate by 1.9%. These strong results were bolstered by growth in the portfolio, high interest rates, and solid net investment income, although they were partially offset by increased operating costs.

Net investment income showed a remarkable increase of 29.5% year over year to $190.1 million. Blue Owl Capital committed a total of $500.2 million to investments across thirteen new and existing portfolio companies, marking a 17% year-over-year increase. The company ended the quarter with investments in 187 portfolio companies, valued at an aggregate fair value of $12.9 billion. However, the firm also experienced a 24.5% year-over-year increase in total operating expenses, amounting to $206.2 million, primarily driven by higher interest expenses and other costs. Net income for the quarter was reported at $206.9 million, a decrease from the $265.4 million reported in the same period last year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
EPS	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	$0.32	$0.53	$0.64	$1.20
DPS	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	$0.13	$0.48	$0.56	$1.05
Shares	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	404.9	445.6	455.7	490.0

OWL is currently growing rapidly as it strives to rapidly scale its three asset management platforms and achieve economies of scale. OWL's business model is uniquely structured in the alternative asset management space to avoid generating any carried interest while also consisting primarily of permanent capital. As a result, its earnings stream is expected to be much more stable than those of its peers.

OWL's fundraising outlook appears to be strong for the foreseeable future despite the deceleration in the growth rate, and its permanent capital, carried interest-free earnings stream should be able to be quite resilient in the face of economic turmoil. On top of that, its general partner solutions and triple net lease real estate businesses should be able to generate exceptionally stable earnings through economic cycles while its direct lending platform benefits from rising interest rates. As a result, we estimate that earnings per share will grow at a 13.4% CAGR over the next half decade and expect the dividend per share to grow rapidly over that same period as well.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2012	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2021	2022	Now	2028
Avg. P/E	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	43.4	21.9	21.3	15.0
Avg. Yld.	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	0.90%	4.10%	4.1%	5.8%

OWL has a very short operating history as a public company and therefore it is difficult to know exactly what valuation multiple is fair. Given that the company is still growing quickly in its early stages, we think a higher valuation multiple is warranted. That said, as the company matures in the coming half decade, we think it will settle at a valuation around 15 times earnings. As a result, we expect its rapid earnings growth rate to be somewhat offset by a contracting valuation multiple in the coming years.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2013	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2028
Payout	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	---	41%	91%	88%	88%

OWL's competitive advantage stems from its large and dominant market positioning in both direct lending and general partner private equity solutions. As a result, it should be able to continue raising funds at a strong pace in the coming years to further scale those businesses.

While OWL has not operated through a recession before, we think it is better positioned than many asset managers to weather an economic storm given that almost all its assets under management is permanent capital and it does not accrue carried interest on its balance sheet either, resulting in a very stable earnings stream. Its balance sheet is also quite strong given its investment grade credit rating.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

OWL offers investors pretty attractive risk-reward at the moment thanks to its very strong expected earnings per share and dividend per share growth over the next half decade backed by a solid investment grade balance sheet and a fairly defensively positioned and well-diversified business model. As a result, it offers investors a 10.2% projected annualized total return over the next half decade, and we rate it a Buy for dividend growth investors.
