Overview & Current Events

S&P Global is a worldwide provider of financial services and business information with a market capitalization of $138 billion and revenue of over $13 billion. Through its various segments, it provides credit ratings, benchmarks and indices, analytics, and other data to commodity market participants, capital markets, and automotive markets. The company's early-2022 acquisition of IHS Markit boosted its pro forma revenue by about 50%. S&P Global has paid dividends continuously since 1937 and has increased its payout for 51 consecutive years, and it is one of the newest members of the prestigious Dividend Kings.

S&P posted fourth quarter and full-year earnings on February 8th, 2024, and results were somewhat mixed, in addition to weaker-than-expected guidance for the next fiscal year. Adjusted earnings-per-share for the fourth quarter came to $3.13, which missed by a penny. Earnings rose from $2.54 per share in the year-ago period.

Revenue was up 7% year-over-year to $3.15 billion, beating estimates by $20 million. Market Intelligence revenue was $1.13 billion, up from $1.04 billion a year ago. Ratings revenue rose from $705 million to $838 million. Commodity Insights revenue was $497 million, up from $451 million. Mobility revenue rose from $345 million to $377 million. Indices revenue was $360 million, up from $344 million a year ago.

Expenses were $2.26 billion, up from $2.02 billion in the prior quarter, and $2.22 billion a year ago. Adjusted operating profit was $1.39 billion, down from $1.47 billion in Q3, but up sharply year-over-year from $1.21 billion.

Guidance was slightly weaker than analysts had expected, sending the stock lower after the report. Still, we start 2024 with an estimate of $14.00 in earnings-per-share, which would be a record if achieved.

S&P Global's business has benefited from a series of favorable secular trends. Since the Great Recession in 2009, total corporate debt has been on a steady rise, which means more ratings are needed. Lower global interest rates have continued to lead to more and more issuances of debt. However, this tailwind was quickly unwound in Q1 of 2022, at least temporarily. In addition, the company has three other strong segments that aren't as dependent upon rates remaining low, should they rise again in the future. The company saw higher revenue in all of its operating segments in the most recent quarter, a sign this diversification is working nicely.

Investors are also becoming increasingly sophisticated and thus demand more real-time data and analytics. Moreover, there is an accelerating demand for index-related investments, such as ETFs.

S&P Global has grown consistently since the financial crisis, boosting revenue and operating margins on a regular basis, with recent results showing a continuation of this trend. We think S&P Global will see a tailwind from its buyback, as well as mid-single-digit revenue gains, and some measure of margin expansion to get to our target of 11% earnings-per-share growth annually in the coming years. That is lower than the company's historical rate of growth but given the immense growth the company has already seen it is prudent to temper one's expectations. We think S&P Global has a very bright outlook. S&P Global has shown it can continue to raise operating margins and boost the top line organically and via acquisitions.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	21.1	21.8	20.3	20.9	22.6	24.2	27.1	29.4	29.9	35.0	31.3	29.0
Avg. Yld.	1.5%	1.3%	1.3%	1.1%	1.0%	1.0%	0.8%	0.8%	1.0%	0.8%	0.8%	0.9%

S&P Global's 5-year average price-to-earnings ratio is 29.1, and we're assessing fair value at 29 times earnings given the sustained, outstanding performances the company has produced. The stock is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 31.3 and thus is ahead of our estimate of fair value. We therefore continue to see a moderate headwind to total returns from the valuation in the coming years.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	31%	29%	27%	24%	24%	24%	23%	22%	30%	29%	26%	27%

The most important feature of S&P Global is its strong competitive position. It operates in the highly concentrated financial ratings industry where the three well-known rating agencies control over 90% of global financial debt ratings. On the other hand, S&P Global is vulnerable to recessions, as companies, countries and individuals become much more conservative during such periods, and thus their interest in financial services and debt issuance greatly decreases. This was evident in the Great Recession, when S&P Global's earnings-per-share fell 21%, from $2.94 in 2007 to $2.33 in 2009. However, given that it was a financial crisis and most companies saw their earnings collapse, the performance of S&P Global was solid overall. To its credit, S&P Global's earnings thrived in 2020 despite a sharp recessionary period.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

S&P Global enjoys the advantage of an oligopoly in the ratings industry and has ample room to keep growing at a rapid pace in all its segments for years. With earnings growth of 11%, we expect 10.1% average annual returns over the next five years after accounting for the 0.8% yield and a 1.5% valuation headwind. S&P Global is a Dividend King, and shares now earn a buy rating after 2023 results.
