Overview & Current Events

Since 1903, Harley Davidson has been making American-style motorcycles. They take pride in being the pioneers of the style of bikes they manufacture and finance the sale of. Harley Davidson also makes and sells parts, accessories, merchandise and maintenance/repair services. Harley Davidson has a current market capitalization of $5 billion.

On February 8th, 2024, Harley-Davidson, Inc. (NYSE: HOG) released its financial results for the fourth quarter of 2023, amidst a challenging macro and consumer backdrop. Despite exceeding expectations on revenue, operating and net incomes in the seasonally slower quarter were down as motorcycle shipments slipped year-over-year. Financial Services operating income rose but couldn't compensate for the softness in motorcycles. However, several positives emerged. Global retail sales of new motorcycles remained robust, fueled by healthy consumer demand. New model popularity drove a higher mix of core touring motorcycles during the quarter. Additionally, the LiveWire electric motorcycle division showed progress, demonstrating growing interest in their product lineup.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Harley-Davidson is using a three-pronged approach to growth development called "New Roads". They are focused on new products, broader access, and stronger dealers. Also, new physical stores were opened in Asia to expand their market. Harley-Davidson is also expanding with e-commerce, opening a storefront on Amazon and Tmall, a large Chinese e-commerce site.

That said, the company was hammered by the coronavirus outbreak and turned in a very disappointing performance in 2020, which forced them to cut their dividend that year and keep it low since then as they seek to conserve cash and retain some of their cash flows for reinvestment in their business, as well as balance sheet repair. That said, the business has fully recovered from COVID-19 impacts and has a much rosier outlook moving forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	17.8	17.1	15.5	12.9	15.6	11.9	11.5	13.6	10.3	5.5	9.1	8.0

Based on their historical averages and a recent recovery in the company's performance due to COVID-19 headwinds dissipating in the U.S., we assume a fair value multiple of 8 times earnings. As a result, we expect the multiple to face headwinds in the years to come, reducing total returns.

We expect the yield to rise in the coming years through dividend growth as the company looks to rebuild its prior payout.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	28%	34%	37%	48%	46%	49%	57%	14%	13%	14%	17%	16%

Harley-Davidson has a competitive advantage with its history, unique style and name brand recognition. Harley-Davidson has crafted their image through careful marketing such as licensing deals with TV shows such as 'Sons of Anarchy' that convey the brand's image.

The company's dividend history has been good except for the last recession, when the dividend was cut from $1.29 in 2008 to $0.40 in 2009. This change came as their earnings per share fell from $3.77 in 2008 to $1.11 in 2009. As their motorcycles are mainly luxury items, Harley Davidson's sales are significantly impacted by economic downturns. During the Great Recession, Harley-Davidson was hit hard, losing 86% of its market capitalization. Earnings per share also dropped to $0.06 in 2009. The company cut its payout during the 2020 recession as well.

Harley-Davidson has a strong interest coverage ratio and is making strides towards decreasing long-term debt. The largest risk to Harley-Davidson is an economic slowdown or recession. This is highly sensitive to the United States economy as 60%+ of all retail sales in recent years were in the United States. The COVID-19 outbreak had a huge impact on sales and earnings, and we expect Harley-Davidson to see a continued recovery in demand in the coming years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

As the "Rewire" restructuring takes hold and new customers come forward, HOG is expected to rebound. That being said, it will likely be a rough road fraught with risk given the unstable nature of the global economy and the company's persistently disappointing results. We expect total annualized returns for Harley-Davidson to be 5.1% over the next half-decade due to solid growth and a small yield offset partially by a contracting valuation multiple and therefore view the stock as a Hold. That being said, it is certainly not a stock that conservative dividend growth investors should favor, but it still offers decent upside potential for more aggressive investors.
