Overview & Current Events

Alerus Financial is a financial services company headquartered in North Dakota. Its operations date back to 1879, when it was originally founded as the Bank of Grand Forks, one of the first banks in Dakota. In 2000, it changed its name to Alerus Financial to reflect its evolution from a traditional community bank to a financial services company. Alerus Financial provides financial solutions to businesses and consumers through four distinct business segments—banking, retirement and benefit services, wealth management and mortgage. Instead of focusing on the broader population, it targets specific business and consumer segments, which offer significant growth potential. The bank has a market cap of $418 million and is characterized by prudent management. As a result, it has raised its dividend for 18 consecutive years.

On July 1st, 2022, Alerus Financial acquired Metro Phoenix Bank for $85.3 million in an effort to grow its presence in Arizona. As the transaction value is 20% of the current market cap of Alerus Financial, it is evident that the acquisition is major for the growth prospects of the bank.

In late April, Alerus Financial reported (4/24/24) financial results for the first quarter of fiscal 2024. It grew its loans 1% and its deposits 6% sequentially but its net interest margin contracted from 2.37% to 2.30% due to higher deposit costs amid intense competition among banks. Net interest income grew 3% thanks to loan growth and the bank switched from a loss per share of -$0.73 to earnings-per-share of $0.32, as the losses from sales of bonds in the previous quarter were not recurring. The stock came under pressure last year due to the broad sell-off of regional banks, which resulted from the collapse of Silicon Valley Bank, Credit Suisse and First Republic. However, Alerus Financial has endured the financial turmoil, which has subsided, and thus its stock has retrieved most of its losses. Deposits grew 6% in the first quarter while the bank has a solid tier 1 capital ratio of 11.8%.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
EPS	$1.48	$1.21	$1.00	$1.07	$1.84	$1.91	$2.52	$2.97	$2.10	$0.58	$1.30	$1.91
DPS	$0.38	$0.42	$0.44	$0.48	$0.53	$0.57	$0.60	$0.63	$0.72	$0.76	$0.76	$1.00
Shares²	13.9	13.9	14.0	14.0	14.1	15.1	17.4	17.5	20.2	20.0	20.0	25.0

Alerus Financial has exhibited a decent performance record over the last decade. During this period, the bank grew its earnings-per-share at a 4.1% average annual rate until 2022, though it posted 10-year low earnings-per-share last year due to its losses from the sale of bonds amid high interest rates. The bank is trying to grow primarily via the acquisition of smaller peers. The recent acquisition of Metro Phoenix Bank, which marked the 25th acquisition in the history of the bank, is likely to prove a material growth driver in the upcoming years. Alerus Financial may incur additional losses from the sale of securities this year but it is likely to recover in the upcoming years, assisted by the interest rate reductions expected by the Fed. Overall, given the low comparison base formed this year, we assume 8.0% average annual growth of earnings-per-share over the next five years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	12.4	16.2	17.7	18.0	13.0	10.6	8.2	10.1	11.7	31.7	16.2	12.0
Avg. Yld.	2.1%	2.1%	2.5%	2.5%	2.2%	2.8%	2.9%	2.1%	2.9%	4.1%	3.6%	4.4%

Due to its low earnings this year, Alerus Financial is trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 16.2, which is higher than the 10-year average price-to-earnings ratio of 15.0 of the stock. We assume a fair earnings multiple of 12.0 for the stock, in line with the norm for banks. If the stock trades at this valuation level in five years, it will incur a -5.8% annualized drag.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	26%	35%	44%	45%	29%	30%	24%	21%	34%	131%	58%	52%

Alerus Financial has fairly prudent management, which is focused on maintaining healthy credit quality metrics. During the last 25 years, the bank has maintained an average net loan charge-off ratio of only 0.3%. Thanks to its cautious strategy, the company has proved resilient to recessions. Most banks faced material loan losses due to the pandemic in 2020, but Alerus Financial proved resilient to this crisis thanks to its defensive business model. The bank grew its earnings-per-share in both 2020 and 2021, though its earnings have now dipped due to the decrease in the value of the fixed-income investments of the bank caused by 16-year high interest rates.

Alerus Financial raised its dividend by 5.6% last year. As a result, it has raised its dividend for 18 consecutive years and is currently offering a dividend yield of 3.6%. Given its healthy payout ratio of 58% and its reliable business performance, the bank can continue raising its dividend for many more years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Alerus Financial has promising growth prospects thanks to its acquisition of Metro Phoenix Bank and has endured the turmoil caused by the collapse of a few banks. The stock has rallied 40% in the last 12 months and hence it has become less attractive. It could offer a 5.5% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 8.0% earnings-per-share growth and its 3.6% dividend, partly offset by a -5.8% valuation headwind. The stock maintains its hold rating.
