will continue to grow its earnings at a 9% annual rate giving us earnings of $10.09 per share in 2029. The company can continue this growth rate as earnings will grow and because of the low dividend payout ratio.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	26.6	24.9	26.1	25.7	26.3	34.0	41.2	43.1	30.6	41.8	37.9	20.0
Avg. Yld.						0.7%	0.5%	0.5%	0.7%	0.6%	0.6%	1.1%

The company has a high valuation currently. The company has a current PE of 37.9x earnings with only an expected annual earnings growth of 9% for the next five years. Because of the lower earnings growth, a fair multiple would be 20x earnings. We would see a multiple compression of (12)% over the next five years at the current price.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029

The company's competitive advantage is its vast and diverse collection of proprietary data assets critical to its analytics and risk assessment solutions. These data assets are generated from various sources, including satellite imagery, insurance claims data, weather data, financial data, and more. The company's extensive data assets provide a significant competitive advantage as they allow Verisk Analytics to offer its customers unique insights and predictive analytics, enabling them to make informed decisions and manage risk effectively. The company's balance sheet is robust as it has a BBB credit rating by S&P. The company also has an interest coverage ratio of 9.9x, which is excellent. Verisk debt to equity ratio is 9.8.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

The company has been growing earnings nicely over the past ten years. Over the long term, this growth will continue. However, at the current price, the stock is expensive. Over the next five years, we expect the company to provide a negative return of (3.2)%, primarily due to the current valuation. Thus, we rate the stock as a sell.
