Overview & Current Events

ChoiceOne Financial Services is the holding company for ChoiceOne Bank, which is headquartered in Sparta, Michigan. Founded in 1898, ChoiceOne Bank has grown to a bank with a full range of financial services. It operates 37 offices and has a market capitalization of $191 million. The bank offers a variety of deposit, payment, credit and other financial services to all types of customers. These services include time, savings, and demand deposits, safe deposit services, and automated transaction machine services. The bank also offers loans to consumers and corporations.

ChoiceOne Bank faces significant competition from much larger financial institutions in its operating area. Due to competition for deposits, the bank cannot achieve a higher-than-typical net interest margin. On the other hand, ChoiceOne Bank performed better than most regional banks in the downturn caused by the surge of interest rates in 2022-2023. While many banks incurred material losses due to the plunge in their fixed-income securities, ChoiceOne Bank posted record earnings-per-share of $3.15 in 2022 and incurred just a -10% decrease last year.

In late April, ChoiceOne Financial Services reported (4/25/24) results for the first quarter of 2024. Net interest income dipped -3% over the prior year's quarter, as net interest margin shrank from 3.09% to 2.74% due to higher costs of deposits amid heating competition among banks. However, the bank partly offset the effect of lower net interest margin with 15% growth of loans and 3.7% growth of deposits. Given also somewhat lower operating expenses, earnings-per-share slipped just -1%, from $0.75 to $0.74, and exceeded the analysts' consensus by $0.15. Management expects a material improvement in net interest income in the upcoming quarters thanks to forward swaps (hedges).

In 2020, ChoiceOne Financial Services acquired Community Shores Bank and became the 12th largest bank holding company in Michigan based on asset size. ChoiceOne Financial Services remains a low-market cap company but it has decent growth prospects. It has grown its earnings-per-share by 6.8% per year on average over the last nine years. If the bank acquires smaller banks in the upcoming years, it can continue growing at its historical pace. Nevertheless, we prefer to be conservative, given the small size of the bank and the headwind from high interest rates, which exert pressure on the next interest margin of the bank via high deposit costs. While we expect interest rates to somewhat moderate in the upcoming years, we expect 2% growth of earnings-per-share on average over the next five years.

ChoiceOne Financial Services (COFS)

Published May 31st, 2024 by Aristofanis Papadatos

ChoiceOne Financial Services has traded with an average price-to-earnings ratio of 11.3 over the last decade and over the last five years. We assume this as a fair valuation level for the bank. The stock is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of only 8.6, primarily due to the impact of high interest rates on its earnings and its valuation, as high interest rates reduce the present value of future earnings. We expect interest rates to moderate and the stock to revert to its average valuation level over the next five years. In such a case, the stock will enjoy a 5.8% annualized gain thanks to the expansion of its valuation level.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	35%	38%	37%	38%	35%	51%	39%	33%	32%	37%	35%	39%

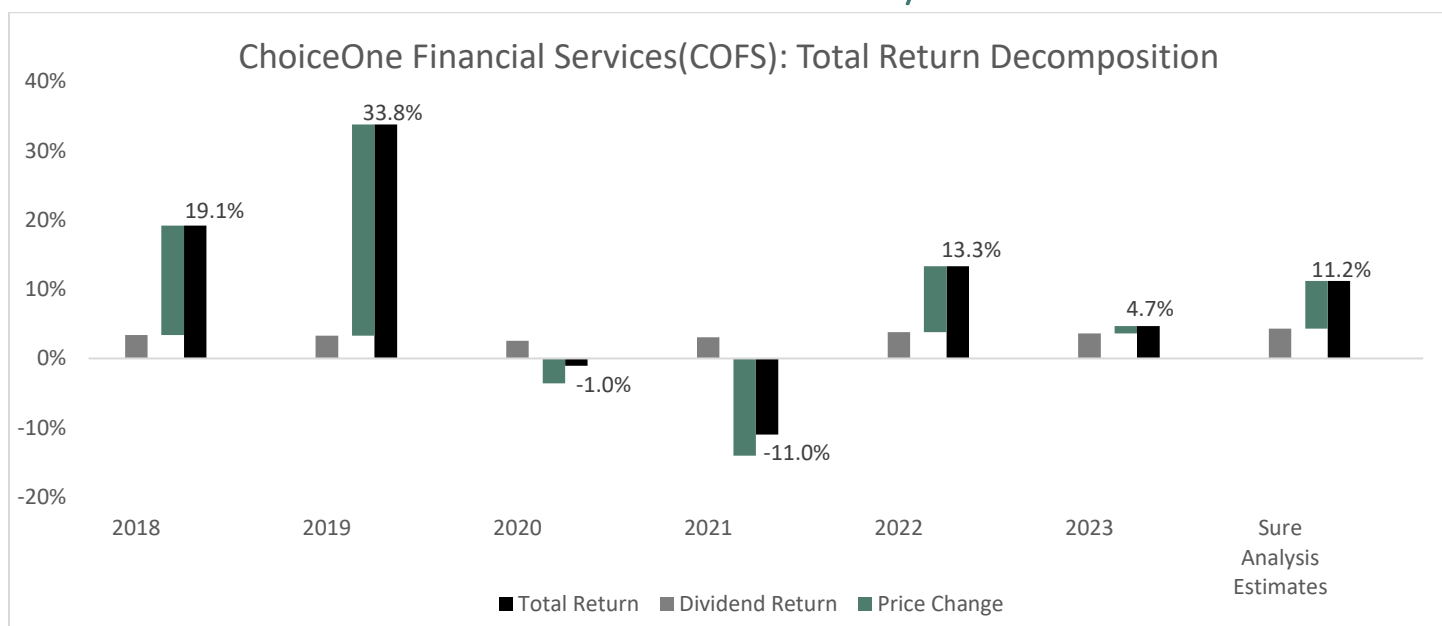

ChoiceOne Financial Services is smaller than many of its competitors while competition has greatly heated among banks for customer deposits. As a result, ChoiceOne Financial Services does not have a meaningful competitive advantage and hence it experiences a typical net interest margin.

The bank has grown its dividend for 12 consecutive years and is currently offering a 4.2% yield, which is higher than the 3.7% median dividend yield of the financial sector. In addition, the bank has grown its dividend by 7% per year on average over the last five years and has a healthy payout ratio of 35%, which provides room for meaningful dividend hikes in the upcoming years. Given also the fairly resilient performance of ChoiceOne Financial Services in the downturn caused by the surge of interest rates to 16-year highs, the stock is suitable for income-oriented investors, though investors should always be aware of the increased risk of small-cap stocks.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Just like most regional banks, ChoiceOne Financial Services has vastly underperformed the S&P 500 over the last five years (-6% vs. +87%) due to the impact of 16-year high interest rates on the net interest margin of the bank and its valuation. However, we expect interest rates to moderate in the upcoming years, in line with the guidance of the Fed. If this proves correct, the bank could offer an 11.2% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 2.0% earnings-per-share growth, its 4.2% dividend and a 5.8% annualized valuation tailwind. The stock receives a buy rating.
