Overview & Current Events

UFP Industries, Inc. is a holding company that designs, manufactures, and sells wood, non-wood composites, and other materials. Since 1955, UFPI has established itself as the largest converter of softwood lumber in North America.

The company reports its results via the following three similarly sized segments:

UFP Retail Solutions: The segment is organized into the ProWood, Deckorators, and UFP-Edge business units. ProWood sells pressure-treated lumber products like decking and fencing to retailers around the United States. Deckorators sells wood plastic composites and its patented Surestone mineral-based decking and decking accessories (balusters and post caps). The UFP-Edge business unit sells trim and fascia and exterior siding products to home improvement retailers and two-step distributors.

UFP Packaging: The segment is broken down into the Structural Packaging, PalletOne, and Protective Packaging Solutions business units. Structural Packaging engineers and manufactures custom packaging products made of wood and metal. These are sold to global customers in building materials, durable goods, and agricultural industries. PalletOne designs and manufactures pallets mostly consisting of wood and heat-treated wood. These are used by customers to ship a variety of consumer and industrial products. The Protective Packaging Solutions unit sells products to customers, such as corrugation, foam, and labels.

UFP Construction: This segment is made up of Factory-Built Housing, Site-Built Construction, Commercial Construction, and Concrete Forming business units. The Factory-Built Housing unit manufactures roof trusses, plywood, and oriented strand boards for housing manufacturers. The Site-Built Construction unit designs and manufactures roof and floor trusses, wall panels, and lumber packages. The Commercial Construction unit designs, manufactures, and installs highly customized interior fixtures for the healthcare, hospitality, and quick-service restaurant industries. The Concrete Forming unit manufactures and supplies wood forms that are used to set or form concrete for large parking garages, stadiums, and bridges.

On July 30th, 2024 UFPI released its financial results for the second quarter that ended June 30th, 2024. The company's net sales dropped by 6.9% year-over-year to $1.9 billion in the quarter. That was fueled by a 6% decline in selling prices during the quarter. UFPI also experienced a ~1% decrease in organic unit sales because of the negative impact that higher interest rates have had on most of its end markets for the quarter. UFPI's diluted EPS fell by 13.1% over the year-ago period to $2.05 in the quarter. That was $0.02 better than the analyst consensus for the quarter. An 80-basis point decline in the net profit margin to 6.6% led diluted EPS to decrease faster than net sales during the quarter.

UFPI’s annual unit sales growth target remains between 7% and 10% over the long term. Given the fragmentation of the industries in which the company operates, we think this remains a realistic growth target. That’s because it leaves room for UFPI to execute bolt-on acquisitions as part of its growth strategy. Add in the growth of the company’s end markets over time and this is another catalyst that can help drive revenue higher. UFPI could also modestly expand margins (10.7% Q2 adjusted EBITDA margin versus 12.5% target) and reduce its share count with share repurchases.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Avg. P/E	18.3	17.1	20.6	20.6	11.0	16.8	13.9	11.0	7.2	15.5	17.8	16.1
Avg. Yld.	1.1%	1.2%	0.9%	0.9%	1.4%	0.8%	0.9%	0.7%	1.2%	0.9%	1.0%	1.1%

Including valuation peaks and troughs, UFPI’s average P/E ratio in the past 10 years is 16.1. The current P/E ratio of 17.8 is a standard deviation above its 10-year norm. Given that UFPI’s growth prospects look to be relatively intact, we think that a P/E of 16.1 is a reasonable assumption for fair value. That would represent a moderate downside from the current valuation multiple.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	21%	20%	18%	17%	15%	14%	13%	8%	9%	14%	17%	17%

The company’s most notable competitive advantage is its size and scale. UFPI is the largest buyer of softwood lumber on the continent. That affords it a great deal of leverage in negotiations with suppliers. This has allowed UFPI to deliver relatively consistent diluted EPS growth to shareholders. The company’s $808.4 million net surplus cash balance as of June 30 is almost 10% of its market cap. Paired with a payout ratio in the teens, this should also support at least high-single-digit annual dividend growth.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

UFPI’s 1.0% dividend yield, 9.0% annual diluted EPS growth potential, and -2.0% annual valuation contraction could translate into 7.7% annual total returns over the next five years. Deterioration in the real estate market could weigh on results and lead to meaningful share price volatility. The current valuation arguably leaves no room for error, so we’re reiterating our hold rating.
