Overview & Current Events

Aon is a professional services firm headquartered in London, United Kingdom. The company provides a variety of services including consulting, risk management, and health plan management. Aon has approximately 500 offices worldwide that serve 120 countries through a workforce that numbers about 50,000. U.S. investors can initiate an ownership stake in Aon through American Depository Receipts that trade with a market capitalization of $72 billion on the New York Stock Exchange, under the ticker AON. Aon should generate just over $14 billion in revenue this year.

Aon posted second quarter earnings on July 26th, 2024, and results were mixed. Aon managed to beat revenue estimates by $60 million at $3.8 billion, rising 18% year-over-year. The gain in revenue reflected acquired revenue from NFP, as well as a 6% organic growth rate.

Earnings, on the other hand, were slightly weak, coming in at $2.93 per share, and missing estimates by 15 cents. Total operating expenses were up 33% year-over-year to $3.1 billion, which primarily reflected inclusion of NFP's operating costs, as well as restructuring program costs.

Forex translation was $11 million, or five cents a share, in negative impact during the quarter. According to company guidance, we can expect another headwind from forex translation in Q3.

Aon saw its share count rise to 213 million in Q2, up from 206 million last year. Aon issued 19 million shares to buy NFP, and has bought back some since the acquisition was announced. The company has $2.8 billion left on its repurchase authorization as of June 30th.

We now see $15.25 in adjusted earnings-per-share for this year after the halfway point.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Between 2011 and 2020, Aon compounded its adjusted earnings-per-share at a rate of nearly 15% per year. Looking ahead, we believe that the company's growth is likely to continue to be quite strong, albeit a bit slower than its historical pace. More specifically, we are forecasting 11% annualized earnings growth over a full economic cycle.

Management continues to be bullish, and rightfully so, as Aon's businesses are posting very strong rates of growth, for the most part. We see expense savings as a driver of earnings growth along with the buyback, and organic revenue growth should continue to move the top line higher as well. Given the broad assortment of professional services the company offers as well as its global footprint, we are bullish on Aon's future. We note forex translation has been a sizable headwind in the past, but Aon has thus far been able to overcome that, and then some. There is upside potential so long as the company can continue to grow expenses at a slower rate than the top line. We note the NFP acquisition as a potential driver as well in the years to come.

The dividend should continue to rise at roughly the rate of earnings, and we forecast the payout to be at $4.55 in 2029, up from the current $2.70. Aon is not a high-yield stock by any means, but its dividend growth potential is robust given the very low payout ratio, and strong earnings growth outlook.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	18.6	19.8	20.4	20.1	17.9	17.7	20.3	21.6	22.4	20.6	21.6	21.0
Avg. Yld.	1.1%	1.2%	1.2%	1.1%	1.1%	0.9%	0.9%	0.8%	0.7%	0.8%	0.8%	0.8%

Aon has traded at an average price-to-earnings ratio of ~19 over the last decade, and we are using 21 for a fair value estimate as more recent years have seen higher valuations. The company is trading for a price-to-earnings ratio of 21.6 using our 2024 earnings-per-share estimate. That implies a small headwind to total returns from the valuation, as Aon is trading above our estimate of fair value. We see the yield staying about where it is for the foreseeable future, noting Aon is not – and likely will not be for some time – a pure income stock.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	20%	24%	25%	22%	19%	19%	18%	17%	16%	17%	18%	18%

Aon's payout ratio is still very low, consistent with the company's historical practices, and we do not believe that will change. We see the dividend remaining around one-sixth of total earnings, so the payout is extremely safe. However, this means Aon is highly unlikely to have a meaningful yield anytime soon. Management has stated that it plans to protect the dividend during periods of uncertainty, and we see no reasonable scenario where Aon's dividend would be at risk.

Aon was resilient during the Great Recession, and that was certainly the case again during the COVID crisis, the product of its very diversified revenue streams. This is also a competitive advantage for the firm, along with its world-class client list and reputation.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 11.1% total annual returns, consisting of the 0.8% yield, 11% EPS growth, and a 0.6% headwind from the valuation. We're reiterating the stock at a buy rating after Q2 results. Aon offers dividend growth potential, but also a long runway for earnings-per-share growth, which is partly offset by an unfavorable valuation. The stock is buy-rated.
