Overview & Current Events

H&R Block, Inc. is a global consumer tax services provider. It offers comprehensive tax return preparation through approximately 12,000 company-owned and franchised H&R Block locations around the world. H&R Block also offers tax software. The company prepares over 20 million tax returns annually.

H&R Block, Inc. (HRB) reported robust financial results for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2024, with revenue reaching $3.6 billion, a 4% increase from the previous year. Earnings per share (EPS) from continuing operations grew significantly by 16% to $4.14. This growth was driven primarily by higher net average charges and increased volumes in both the Assisted and DIY categories, although it was somewhat offset by lower activity in the Emerald Card® segment. Operating expenses rose by 3% to $2.8 billion, mainly due to higher labor costs and bad debt expenses, which were partially mitigated by reduced consulting and outsourced services costs. Pretax income saw a 7.2% increase to $762.3 million, reflecting the strong revenue performance. During fiscal 2024, H&R Block repurchased $350 million worth of shares, reducing outstanding shares by 5.5%. The company also announced a 17% increase in its quarterly dividend to $0.375 per share, marking the ninth consecutive year of dividend increases. Additionally, a new $1.5 billion share repurchase authorization was approved, replacing the previous authorization. Looking ahead to fiscal 2025, H&R Block expects continued revenue growth, with projections between $3.69 billion and $3.75 billion. The company also anticipates EBITDA to range from $975 million to $1.02 billion. The effective tax rate is expected to be around 13%, contributing approximately $0.50 to EPS due to the anticipated closure of certain tax matters. Adjusted diluted EPS for fiscal 2025 is forecasted to be between $5.15 and $5.35, indicating strong confidence in the company's future performance.

The Wave Financial acquisition added a boost to HRB's otherwise murky growth outlook. Poor customer retention has prompted the company to engineer a turnaround. Broadly speaking, the operating environment for tax preparation is changing as automation is increasingly encroaching on what was once done by human tax professionals.

Additionally, the simplification of the tax code remains a risk for the company moving forward, regardless of who is in power. A much more simplified tax system could mean less demand for H&R Block's higher-margin services. In addition, earnings growth could be negatively impacted by the continued adoption of online or do-it-yourself tax software such as TurboTax. H&R Block has had to invest in its own software services to meet the needs of a changing marketplace. These forces are expected to weigh on H&R Block's earnings growth, both this fiscal year and moving forward. That said, Wave Financial will give the company more opportunities to grow in the small business sector, an area less likely to be impacted by a simplified personal income tax code. The company is currently generating solid growth while also paying out a sizable dividend and buying back shares. We think the company will be able to grow earnings per share by 4.3% annually over the next half decade.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	16.1	18.4	21.2	11.6	9.1	20.0	7.0	13.8	9.5	11.5	12.2	12.5
Avg. Yld.	2.8%	2.5%	2.5%	3.7%	3.4%	5.0%	4.4%	2.4%	3.3%	3.3%	2.3%	2.5%

HRB shares have traded at a multiple in the range of the low to mid-teens over the past decade. As a result, we assign a fair value multiple of 12.5x. Given that the current valuation multiple is 12.2x, we expect a slight tailwind from multiple expansion in the years to come.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	48%	58%	50%	34%	47%	124%	26%	33%	31%	29%	29%	31%

H&R Block scores fairly well when it comes to safety and quality metrics. The company has a large amount of debt, but also generates strong interest coverage. It also has a payout ratio of just 29%, which indicates the dividend is secure. H&R Block has paid quarterly dividends consecutively since the company went public in 1962.

H&R Block benefits from durable competitive advantages. It is the leading brand in the tax preparation industry and provides a necessary service to taxpayers. H&R Block remained profitable each year during the Great Recession, and the company should be expected to remain profitable if and when another recession occurs in the United States.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

H&R Block has several favorable qualities as a business. It has a leading brand in its industry and has a highly profitable capital-light business model. This allows the company to return cash to shareholders through share repurchases and dividends. H&R Block has expected annualized total returns of 7% over the next half-decade, stemming from a combination of its dividend, per share growth, and slight expected multiple expansion. Given these factors, we view the stock as a Hold.
