Overview & Current Events

J.B. Hunt Transport Services (JBHT) is a freight carrier company that primarily operates large semi-trailer trucks (semis). The business operates more than 115,000 pieces of company-owned trailing equipment in its fleet. The business is split into 5 segments – Intermodal (JBI), which operates the largest drayage fleet (vans 53 feet long) in North America, Dedicated Contract Services (DCS), which offers design and implementation of supply chain solutions and on-site management, Integrated Capacity Solutions (ICS), which ships domestic and international containers across North America, Truckload (JBT), which is one of the largest capacity networks in North America, allowing users to GPS track trailers, and Final Mile Services (FMS), which provides final destination delivery and installation. Intermodal is the largest of these divisions, followed by Dedicated Contract Services and Integrated Capacity Solutions. The company enjoyed strong demand for logistics services over the past couple of years as American consumers spent money at a record pace. However, that momentum has now gone into reverse.

On July 16th, 2024, J.B. Hunt reported much weaker than expected Q2 2024 results. The business saw diluted earnings-per-share of $1.32, which fell sharply from the $1.81 it earned in the same period of last year. Analysts had been expecting $1.51 per share for Q2; J.B Hunt fell far short of expectations and demonstrated that the trucking industry has gotten stuck in a cyclical downturn. Revenues of $2.9 billion fell 7% year-on-year and also missed expectations.

J.B. Hunt had already started off the year with a downbeat Q1, and this latest report confirmed the ongoing downward trajectory in the firm's results. Four of the company's five business divisions reported declining revenue this quarter, with the ICS division reporting a particularly worrisome 25% year-over-year decline in freight loads. The company also saw increased expenses from labor and insurance, leading to margin compression on top of the firm's soft top-line revenues. We have cut our earnings expectations once again for the company, and it now appears it will take the company a number of years to recover to its peak 2022 levels of earnings.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
EPS	$3.16	$3.66	$3.81	$3.75	$5.64	$5.21	$4.74	$7.14	$9.21	$6.97	$6.25	$8.17
DPS	$0.80	$0.84	$0.88	$0.92	$0.96	$1.04	$1.08	$1.18	$1.60	$1.68	$1.72	$2.09
Shares	117	114	111	110	109	106	106	105	104	103	103	101

Since 2014, J.B. Hunt has seen its earnings-per-share grow at an average annualized rate of 9.2%. The company had enjoyed unusually rapid earnings growth over the past few years. However, 2023 marked a significant retrenchment from 2022's peak, and 2024 is off to an equally inauspicious start. Once the industry slump bottoms out, we forecast that J.B. Hunt will grow earnings per share at 5.5% per year going forward.

Over the past 5 years, dividend payments have grown at a rate of 10.6% annually. We expect that the dividend growth rate will slow down in-line with the company's earnings growth. To that point, J.B. Hunt's most recent dividend hike, announced in January 2024, was a mere 2% increase. The company also has a buyback program in effect, but at a rather modest scale.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	24.2	22.2	21.6	26.0	20.7	20.0	25.1	23.9	21.0	23.5	27.7	22.0
Avg. Yld.	1.0%	1.0%	1.1%	0.9%	0.8%	1.0%	0.9%	0.7%	0.9%	0.9%	1.0%	1.2%

Over the past 9 years, J.B. Hunt has averaged a P/E ratio of 22.8, and over the past 5 years, the stock has averaged a P/E ratio of 22.7. We expect that the company's P/E ratio to settle at 22.0 in the coming years.

A similar outlook holds for the dividend. J.B. Hunt has long offered a dividend yield right around the 1.0% mark, and we expect the yield will remain near that level in the coming years.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	25%	23%	23%	25%	17%	20%	23%	17%	17%	24%	28%	26%

J.B. Hunt has averaged a roughly 20% payout ratio over the past decade. We expect it will continue to increase its dividend in line with earnings, leading to a stable payout ratio. Trucking is historically a cyclical industry prone to downturns during a recession. However, J.B. Hunt's diversified lines of business and large scale historically have given it a good deal of insulation from economic shocks as compared to most of its peers.

J.B. Hunt has a fair amount of leverage on its balance sheet. S&P Global rates the company's debt at BBB+. The balance sheet is well within investment-grade parameters, but conditions could change in a more prolonged recession.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Given the economic headwinds and continuing demand shortfalls in the trucking industry, J.B. Hunt faces near-term challenges. J.B. Hunt has reported a number of weak earnings reports in a row. We saw the Q2 results as particularly disappointing and have trimmed our fair value estimate meaningfully. It has been a bit surprising that the share price held up despite the significant erosion in the underlying business. We see a mere 1.8% total annualized total return outlook from this price, making shares a sell today.
