Overview & Current Events

Nutrien Ltd. (NTR) is a Canadian company formed through Agrium and PotashCorp's merger in a closed transaction on January 1, 2018. The company produces and markets crop nutrients to agricultural, industrial, and feed customers worldwide. The company has over 1,700 retail locations in North America, South America, and Australia and is one of the world's largest manufacturers and suppliers of potash, nitrogen, and phosphate. The company provides over 20% of the global market on potash, 3% nitrogen, and 3% phosphate. Nutrien has a market capitalization of approximately $22.8 billion, more than 20,000 workers, and produced roughly $29 billion in revenue in 2023.

On August 7th, 2024, Nutrien reported its second quarter results for Fiscal Year (FY)2024. The company highlighting strong performance driven by increased crop input margins, robust global demand for potash, and reduced operating costs. The company recorded net earnings of $392 million, with an adjusted EBITDA of $2.2 billion. Despite challenges in Brazil, Nutrien raised its full-year outlook for potash demand due to strong engagement in key markets. However, lower fertilizer net selling prices resulted in a decline in overall EBITDA compared to the same period in 2023, partially offset by higher Potash sales volumes and increased earnings from Nutrien Ag Solutions.

In addition to its financial performance, Nutrien announced the appointment of Mark Thompson as the new Executive Vice President and Chief Financial Officer, effective August 26, 2024. Thompson, who has been with the company since 2011, brings extensive experience in financial and strategic roles, positioning him to advance Nutrien's strategic actions to enhance earnings quality and cash flow. This leadership transition aligns with Nutrien's succession plan, with Thompson succeeding Pedro Farah, who will remain in an advisory capacity until his departure at the end of the year.

Nutrien also provided updated market outlook and guidance, reflecting favorable growing conditions in North America, strong potash and nitrogen demand globally, and ongoing challenges in Brazil. The company revised its full-year guidance, including a decrease in Retail adjusted EBITDA due to market instability in Brazil and delayed planting in North America, while increasing its Potash sales volume forecast. Despite these adjustments, Nutrien remains optimistic about its ability to deliver long-term shareholder value through disciplined execution of its strategy and a focused approach to capital allocation.

We expect EPS to be much lower in 2024 due to slowed commodity demand and pricing. Share repurchases are expected to contribute several percentage points per year on top of baseline growth. Nutrien repurchased approximately 8% of its market capitalization in 2023. We expect a 2% earnings growth over the next five years, but earnings are expected to be down for 2024. Dividend growth is expected to be 2% as it normalizes its payout ratio.

One of Nutrien's primary industry peers with a long history as a unified company, With an anticipated significant recovery in agriculture commodity prices, which have been in a multi-year bear market, we expect Nutrien's P/E ratio to decrease to 12.5 as a baseline. Thus, the company has a lower valuation at the current price with a current PE of 12.1x based on 2024 earnings.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Nutrien has an economic moat from its potash and nitrogen production operations resulting in relatively high returns on invested capital in most years compared to the broader materials sector. The company has geographically significant production assets in Canada that sit on the bottom half of the global production cost curve. Even in a low-price environment, the company can outlast its competitors and survive to see periods of higher commodity prices. On the other hand, the company's phosphate production operations are in the upper half of the global cost curve. Its retail agriculture business, being the largest in North America, may have mild cost advantages, but several competitors are similar in scale. Therefore, these aspects of the business lack economic moat.

Agricultural commodities, especially fertilizer, are not very economically sensitive because people need to eat through recessions and expansions. However, the agricultural and fertilizer industries have cycles, and the supply/demand relationship in agricultural commodity production due to weather and other factors can dramatically affect prices. For example, potash spiked to over $800/ton in 2009 but is currently under $518/ton. Nutrien enormously benefits from higher potash rates, nitrogen, and phosphate and is hurt by lower prices. Nutrien's balance sheet is strong, with a debt/equity (D/E) ratio of 0.4 and an interest coverage ratio of 3.6. The company currently has an S&P credit rating of BBB, an investment-grade rating.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

With an expected 6.8% annualized return over the next five years, we consider Nutrien a hold. Nutrien has a high-performance variance based on crop nutrition commodity prices and could deliver significantly higher or lower returns than this expected baseline.
