Overview & Current Events

The AES (Applied Energy Services) Corporation was founded in 1981 as an energy consulting company. In 1991, AES listed on the NYSE under the ticker symbol AES and then expanded globally in 1992. The corporation now has businesses in 14 countries and a portfolio of approximately 160 generation facilities. AES produces power through various fuel types, such as gas, renewables, coal, and oil/diesel. The company has more than 36,000 Gross MW in operation. In 2023, AES produced nearly $13 billion in revenues. AES corporation is headquartered in Arlington, Virginia and has a market capitalization of $11 billion.

AES Corporation reported third quarter results on October 31st, 2024, for the period ending September 30th, 2024. Adjusted EPS rose 18% to $0.71 for Q3 2024.

The company constructed and acquired 2.8 GW of renewable energy year-to-date, and is on course to add 3.6 GW of new projects online in 2024.

Leadership expects to achieve the high end of its 2024 guidance for adjusted EPS of $1.87 to $1.97 for the full fiscal year. Additionally, the company reaffirms its expectation it can grow EPS on average 7% to 9% through 2025 from a base year of 2020. It also still expects annual EPS growth of 7% to 9% from 2023 through 2027.

AES has not produced significant EPS growth over the long term, but adjusted EPS results have improved since 2017. In the last nine and five years, AES Corporation has increased adjusted EPS by a 1.1% and 3.8% CAGR, respectively.

The company is actively engaged in developing and acquiring new energy projects; it currently has a backlog of 12.7 GW of renewables. AES expects to complete the majority of these projects over the next three years, but as it continues expanding, new projects could push this date out. To fund attractive growth opportunities, the company is likely to continue issuing equity and debt, and through asset sales. On October 31st, it closed the sale of 47.3% equity interest in AES Brasil which fetched $630 million of proceeds, and it plans to sell a 30% indirect interest of AES Ohio to CDPQ for $546 million, which it will use to invest in renewables and US utilities.

Management targets 10% CAGR in US Utilities rate base and is also forecasting 7% to 9% annual adjusted EPS growth through 2027. We see AES growing adjusted EPS at 7% on average over the next five years.

The corporation has grown the dividend ever since it was instated at $0.08 in 2012, for a total of eleven years to date. The dividend has grown 10% per year on average since 2014, and 5% per year on average in the past five years. AES aims to increase its dividend by only 2% to 3% per year after 2024, as it focuses its capital on investment opportunities and minimizes stock issuance. The dividend appears safe, and we see it growing at 2.0% over the next five years to reach $0.76 in 2029.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	9.9	11.5	12.8	10.5	9.0	9.5	11.8	16.7	14.2	11.7	7.3	11.0
Avg. Yld.	1.3%	1.8%	3.4%	4.0%	4.4%	4.1%	3.4%	2.3%	2.5%	3.3%	4.9%	2.6%

The current PE of 7.3 is undervalued based on AES' historical PE ratio. In the past nine and five years, the average PE was 11.8 and 12.8, respectively. We estimate that AES' fair value is approximately 11 times adjusted earnings as the company executes on its growth and expansion strategy. If AES' valuation were to reach 11X from its current 7.3X, the share price would grow by 8.4% annually due to multiple expansion.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	19%	33%	48%	45%	43%	40%	40%	40%	38%	38%	36%	28%

AES' payout ratio has remained fairly stable and is currently well covered. Its payout ratio has never exceeded half of its adjusted earnings, and we see the dividend continuing to grow as it has for the past eleven years.

During the great financial crisis, the AES Corporation's share price fell significantly, however, on an adjusted EPS basis, the company remained quite stable and was not in financial duress. Also, at the time, the corporation had no dividend established and thus no dividend was threatened. Energy is an essential product, regardless of the overall health of the economy. The AES Corporation's competitive advantage is its global presence in 28+ markets and technologically differentiated, customer-centric products, services, and digital packages.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

The AES Corporation is executing a strong growth strategy and expanding its renewables energy portfolio. The majority of total returns for AES will come from earnings-per-share growth, which is estimated at 7.0% annually. We forecast that AES can achieve annualized total returns of 18.8% over the next five years. This includes a 4.9% yield and 8.4% P/E multiple expansion. We are reiterating our buy rating on AES.
