Overview & Current Events

RB Global offers end-to-end solutions for buying and selling used heavy equipment, trucks, and other assets. The company's primary selling channels include Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers, the world's largest industrial auctioneer featuring online bidding, IronPlanet, an online marketplace with weekly auctions, and IronClad Assurance, which provides equipment condition certification. The company has a market cap of $17.9 billion, generates around $3.7 billion in annual revenues, and is based in Burnaby, Canada. Investors can trade its shares both on the TSX and NYSE. All figures in this report are in US dollars.

On May 9th, 2023, following the successful closing of the IAA acquisition, the company changed its name from Ritchie Bros. Auctioneers to RB Global.

On November 8th, 2024, RB Global reported its Q3 results for the period ending September 30th, 2024. For the quarter, revenues rose fell 3.7% year-over-year to $981.8 million, with declines across all sectors due to lower average selling prices. Still, service revenues grew 1% year-over-year to $779.9 million as a result of a higher average service revenue take rate, partially offset by lower GTV. Service revenue take rate expanded 150 basis points year-over-year to 21.5% driven by a higher buyer fee rate structure and growth in marketplace services.

Adjusted EPS rose by 15% to $0.94. This was due to strong growth in operating income, which benefited from lower cost of inventory sold.

Our adjusted EPS estimate for FY2024 still stands at $3.30. That said, all figures in our tables reflect GAAP metrics.

Despite RB Global consistently growing revenues over the past decade, profitability had lagged, particularly in the 2016-2019 time period, as the company was reinvesting toward growth. We have set our EPS growth estimate at 8% over the medium term to reflect the company's growing GMV and synergies to be achieved from its IAA acquisitions. In fact, IAA has already proved be accretive to EPS, and is expected to achieve $100 million to $120+ million in annual run-rate cost synergies by the end of 2025.

The company also sees strong demand for its auction services, while its acquisitions should unlock cost efficiencies, boosting net income. We believe strongly in Ritchie's potential synergies amongst its services (for example, certification provision before auction listing and vertical integration). Hence EPS growth is likely to remain solid. Due to profitability improving drastically, management has been accelerating its dividend growth recently. Dividend growth had fallen to as low as 3% in 2017, in-line with stagnating EPS. We have set our dividend growth expectations at 8% in the medium-term, as this rate can be supported by the company’s underlining net income. RB Global has been growing its dividends annually without any exception since 2005, marking a 19-year dividend growth record.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	Now	2029
Avg. P/E	27.9	30.6	25.0	25.8	43.7	31.2	42.5	51.4	20.0	---	29.4	23.0
Avg. Yld.	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.2%	2.0%	1.9%	1.9%	1.4%	1.8%	1.8%	1.2%	1.5%

RB Global’s valuation had been quite consistent prior to 2020, typically hovering from 25X to 30X earnings-per-share. Between 2020 and 2021, the stock’s P/E skyrocketed. It currently hovers at 29.4 times our projected earnings, with earnings growth still catching up to the stock price. Despite retaining solid earnings growth prospects, we believe shares are overvalued here, and have priced in a 4.8% annual valuation headwind over next five years. Regarding the dividend, its yield of 1.2% might be low for the current interest rates environment. That said, RB’s dividend growth potential and overall dividend growth track record are noteworthy.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2029
Payout	65%	49%	78%	97%	63%	57%	56%	71%	37%	104%	35%	35%

RB Global’s dividend coverage remains quite healthy. Despite the recent acceleration in dividend growth, the stock’s payout ratio based on the company’s expected FY2024 EPS is just around 35%. The company is the largest industrial-equipment auctioneer in the world, holding a significant competitive advantage due to its long-term expertise in the sector and the wide network effect of its online participants. Additionally, while its business model sounds sensitive to the industrial sector’s cyclicity, the company is benefiting during such times as more equipment is brought forward to be auctioned (e.g., amid a company’s liquidation), increasing its fees. During the Great Financial Crisis, for example, the company continued to enjoy revenue growth, despite the overall challenges in the economy. Hence, the company should remain resilient during a potential recession, enjoying robust cash flows.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

RB Global has achieved great shareholder value creation over the years, both in terms of share price gains and a growing dividend. Last year’s results were solid, with the IAA acquisition bearing fruits for both revenues and earnings. We also expect earnings growth this year. However, we believe shares are very expensive. Therefore, we forecast annualized returns of 4.2% through 2029, to be driven by an 8% annual growth in earnings and an initial yield of 1.2%, partially offset by 4.8% annual valuation headwind. Thus, we now RB Global to a sell.
