Overview & Current Events

1st Source was founded in 1863 and since that time has grown into a regional bank with about $8 billion in total assets. The company is headquartered in Indiana and has about 100 locations to service its customers. 1st Source's market capitalization is $1.4 billion, and it is expected to produce about $380 million in revenue this year. 1st Source also has an exceptional dividend increase streak that stands at 37 years, which very few banks can match.

1st Source posted fourth quarter and full-year earnings on January 23rd, 2025, and results were somewhat weak. Earnings-per-share came to $1.27, which was two cents light of estimates. Revenue was up 7% year-over-year to $98 million, slightly beating expectations by $640k.

Net income was a record for the year at $133 million, up 6.2% from 2023. Fourth quarter net income was $31.4 million, which was down 10% from the third quarter, but almost 11% higher from Q4 2023. On a per-share basis, net income rose 10.4% year-over-year in the fourth quarter.

Loans ended the year at $6.85 billion, up $336 million from 2023 year-end. End of period deposits were $6.73 billion, up 5% from 2023.

Net interest margin was 3.64%, up 13 basis points from 2023, and was 3.78% for the fourth quarter. This was 27 basis points higher than the fourth quarter of 2023.

We start 2025 with an estimate of $5.60 in earnings-per-share, noting higher net interest margins and rising loan balances heading into this year.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Earnings-per-share growth has been robust since the bottom in 2009. Recent growth has been fueled by gains in the company's asset base, averaging 5%+ in the past decade. 1st Source's strong balance sheet growth has been accompanied by expanding margins at times and prudent operating expenditures, allowing for a rise in returns on its asset base. We're estimating earnings contraction (not growth) of 2% going forward, as the bank continues to struggle in producing earnings expansion in recent quarters. 1st Source is trying to build more fee revenue, but its business is still heavily dependent upon lending margins, and we think growth will be tough to come by because of the unfavorable interest rate environment with respect to deposit costs against lending rates. 1st Source is set to produce what would be record results in 2025, but that may prove to be the top given current estimates. Expenses are likely to be the key variable in earnings growth for 2025.

1st Source Corp. (SRCE)

Updated January 27th, 2025, by Josh Arnold

Our expectation for the dividend is now $1.59 in 2030 as we see 1st Source facing headwinds in its ability to grow earnings. However, we don't expect the bank to end its very long streak of dividend increases. We see the bank as being hesitant to boost its payout ratio much higher than it is at the moment.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	13.9	15.3	18.4	16.4	13.1	11.2	9.9	11.0	10.9	10.5	10.4	11.0
Avg. Yld.	2.2%	2.1%	1.6%	1.9%	2.4%	3.1%	2.6%	2.4%	2.4%	2.4%	2.5%	2.9%

1st Source's price-to-earnings multiple has been steady, all things considered, for the past decade. It is currently trading for 10.4 times earnings, which is below our estimate of fair value. Therefore, we see a modest positive impact to total returns from the valuation in the coming years. The yield should remain between 2.5% and 2.9% for the foreseeable future. The increase in earnings estimates has the valuation moderating, boosting the attractiveness of the stock.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	32%	34%	30%	30%	31%	35%	26%	26%	26%	25%	26%	31%

The payout ratio is less than one-third of earnings and dividend raises will likely be somewhat modest in the coming years. We see the dividend as safe and with a lot of room to grow given 1st Source's commitment to raising the payout, as well as the low payout ratio. We see the payout growing even if 1st Source is not able to produce strong earnings growth, and indeed, that is what we're forecasting.

1st Source's competitive advantage is in its clean balance sheet, strong profitability metrics and robust market position in the areas it serves. The advantage of a community or regional bank is that it can generate sizable market share in lots of small markets, creating a sustainable competitive advantage. It is obviously not immune from recessions but did perform well in 2020, all things considered.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We believe total returns for 1st Source investors could be 1.8% annually, consisting of the current 2.5% yield and 2% earnings contraction. Given that the bank's growth outlook is poor, and the fact that it has struggled to grow loans and leases organically, we think this will keep a lid on growth. We see weak total return prospects and are reiterating the stock at a sell rating after Q4 results.
