Overview & Current Events

Synchrony Financial is a consumer financial services company. It operates through the following business units: Payment Solutions, Retail Credit, and CareCredit. Synchrony Financial offers private label credit cards, small-size business credit products, promotional financing for higher-priced consumer goods, promotional financing for healthcare procedures such as dental and vision, as well as a range of other services to its customers. The company is headquartered in Stamford, CT, and was founded in 2003.

Synchrony Financial reported its fourth quarter earnings results on January 27. The company managed to generate revenues of $3.8 billion during the quarter, which was up by 4% versus the previous year's quarter, but which was a little worse than expected. The company experienced a purchase volume decline of 3% year over year, which was a slightly better rate compared to the previous quarter, when the decline was a little larger.

Synchrony Financial generated earnings-per-share of $1.91 during the fourth quarter. Profits were up by a very strong 62% compared to the previous year's quarter due to higher revenues and higher margins. For the current year, Synchrony Financial expects net revenues of around $15.5 billion, while the analyst consensus estimate for the company's earnings-per-share stands at $6.60.

Synchrony Financial was founded in 2003, but the company's initial public offering was in 2014, which is why there is no Great Recession data available for the company. Over the last decade Synchrony Financial grew its earnings-per-share by around 10% a year, although growth was uneven over the years, with the company experiencing some ups and downs as the macro picture impacts profitability to a significant degree.

Synchrony Financial has broadened its cooperation by adding new vendors in the past, which includes companies such as Amazon and several airlines. Adding new cooperation partners could potentially result in growing active accounts, although growth hasn't been strong in the recent past. Purchase volumes and loan balances should grow in the long term, however, which is the basis for rising transaction fees and further growth for Synchrony Financial's net interest income. The coronavirus crisis hit the company's bottom line to a significant degree in 2020, but Synchrony Financial nevertheless remained profitable in that year. Synchrony made a strong recovery from the pandemic impact in the following years. We believe that Synchrony Financial should be able to grow its earnings-per-share in the long run, although likely at a slower pace compared to the last decade. Investors should also keep in mind that we will likely continue to see ups and downs in the company's profits on a year-over-year basis.

Valuation Analysis

|-----------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|-------------|-------------|
| Avg. P/E  | 12.0 | 10.7 | 12.4 | 8.7  | 8.4  | 14.9 | 6.7  | 5.4  | 7.1  | 9.9  | 10.2 | 8.0  |
| Avg. Yld. | ---  | 0.9% | 1.7% | 2.2% | 2.4% | 2.6% | 1.9% | 2.8% | 2.6% | 1.5% | 1.5% | 2.1% |

Synchrony Financial has been valued at a price to earnings ratio of roughly 10 throughout the first couple of years since its IPO. More recently, shares traded at a lower valuation. Based on our adjusted earnings-per-share estimate of $6.60 for 2025, the earnings multiple stands at just above 10 right now. Some multiple compression headwinds could occur over the coming years, as we believe that shares are trading somewhat ahead of fair value right now.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

| Year   | 2015 | 2016 | 2017  | 2018  | 2019  | 2020  | 2021  | 2022  | 2023  | 2024  | 2025         | 2030         |
| Payout | ---  | 9.6% | 21.5% | 19.3% | 20.0% | 38.6% | 12.8% | 15.1% | 18.8% | 15.2% | 15.2% | 16.7% |

Synchrony Financial started to make dividend payments just a few years ago. Since then, the company has raised its dividend regularly and at a meaningful pace. Yet, Synchrony Financial's dividend payout ratio is still relatively low. We do not know whether Synchrony Financial will maintain its dividend during every recession, as the company's track record does not date back to the last financial crisis. During the pandemic, the company maintained its dividend.

Synchrony Financial is not the largest credit card company in the world; it has significantly larger peers, such as American Express. The market is large enough for many companies to operate profitably, though, which is why Synchrony Financial's relatively small size is not necessarily a large disadvantage. During and following the current recession, Synchrony Financial should see a larger-than-normal amount of credit losses, but the company remained profitable in 2020. As this crisis is passing, profitability should recover as things revert back to normal.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Synchrony Financial is one of the smaller credit card players. Synchrony's earnings in 2024 were below the peak level seen in 2021 but were up nicely from 2023's level. The long-term growth outlook is not too bad thanks to a solid pace of buybacks, we believe, but shares are trading ahead of fair value right now. Based on our expectations, we rate shares a sell, as the total return outlook is not compelling right here.
