ConnectOne Bancorp's EPS has fluctuated notably over the past decade, highlighting the various economic cycles, and interest rate dynamics. The acquisition of Union Center National Bank in 2015 significantly expanded the bank's scale and customer base, contributing to a rise in EPS to $1.37. This acquisition also spread revenue streams and reinforced its position in key New Jersey markets, despite integration costs. In 2016, EPS fell to $1.02 due to compressed net interest margins due to a low-interest-rate environment, as well as continued integration expenses from prior acquisitions. Still, steady organic growth and improved efficiencies drove EPS back up to $1.35 in 2017. In 2018, EPS increased to $1.87, buoyed by strong loan growth, disciplined expense management, and the benefits of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act, which reduced the corporate tax rate.

The acquisition of Bancorp of New Jersey in 2019 further solidified the bank's footprint in northern New Jersey, boosting EPS to $2.08. This acquisition integrated smoothly and added new markets to the bank's footprint, supporting both loan and deposit growth. However, in 2020, EPS declined to $1.80 as the COVID-19 pandemic created economic uncertainty, leading to increased provisions for loan losses and margin compression due to the Federal Reserve's rate cuts. A robust economic recovery in 2021 helped EPS rebound to $3.24, supported by strong loan demand, lower credit loss provisions, and growth in fee-based income. The bank's cost discipline and its ability to capture opportunities in a favorable credit environment were key drivers of this performance. Still, in 2022, EPS declined to $3.03 due to competitive pressures and early signs of slowing loan growth due to rising economic uncertainty. By 2023, EPS fell to $2.08 as higher interest rates and slowing economic activity pressured loan growth and increased funding costs. This trend was sustained in 2024, as interest expenses growth surpassed interest income growth. Moving forward, we believe the company can grow its EPS at rate of 7% per annum. We have applied the same growth rate expectation to the dividend, which the company has raised for six consecutive years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	14.0	17.9	16.8	13.4	10.6	10.4	7.5	9.5	10.1	12.0	10.7	12.0
Avg. Yld.	1.6%	1.6%	1.3%	1.2%	1.6%	1.9%	2.0%	2.2%	3.2%	3.4%	2.8%	2.5%

ConnectOne Bancorp’s valuation has hovered at levels that are more or less similar to those of its industry peers. Once earnings stabilized in 2015, the P/E compressed to 14.0 and fluctuated between 16.8 and 13.4 from 2016 to 2018 as tax reform and moderate growth balanced investor expectations. The ratio then declined to 10.6 in 2019 and 10.4 in 2020, as economic uncertainties, particularly during the COVID-19 pandemic, weighed on bank valuations despite solid results. performance. A sharp drop to 7.5 in 2021 was due to peak EPS driven by loan growth and lower provisions, compressing the multiple. The recovery in 2022 and 2023 shows more normalized earnings and continued market confidence in the bank’s growth potential. However, at 10.7 times earnings today, we believe the stock is fairly undervalued.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	22%	29%	22%	16%	17%	20%	15%	20%	33%	41%	31%	31%

ConnectOne Bancorp's competitive advantages lie in its "branch-lite" model, leveraging technology to deliver efficient, personalized banking services while keeping operational costs low. This model, combined with its focus on serving small to mid-sized businesses, positions it well against larger competitors, which often lack the same localized focus. However, the bank operates in a highly competitive industry, facing pressure from both larger national players with resources and smaller regional banks with niche market penetration. Moreover, you should consider the banking industry’s inherent susceptibility to economic downturns poses challenges, as recessions often lead to tighter credit conditions and higher loan losses. Nevertheless, it’s worth noting that the bank remained profitable during the Great Financial Crisis while its earnings surge during the pandemic. Its common equity ratio and common equity Tier 1 risk-based ratio also stand at a healthy 11.45% and 12.63%, respectively, as well. We believe ConnectOne’s dividend is safe today.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

ConnectOne is another regional bank with decent prospects. Its earnings have been impacted by fluctuations in rates and slowing loan growth in recent years. However, its focus on small to mid-sized businesses positions it well for steady long-term value creation. We see annualized returns of 11.7% over the medium-term, driven by our growth estimate of 7%, the starting dividend yield of 2.8%, and a tailwind from a possible valuation adjustment. Shares earn a buy rating.
