Overview & Current Events

ONEOK is an energy company that engages in the gathering and processing of natural gas, as well as a natural gas liquids business and natural gas pipelines (interstate and intrastate). ONEOK also owns storage facilities for natural gas. ONEOK is headquartered in Tulsa, Oklahoma, and was founded in 1906.

ONEOK reported its fourth quarter earnings results on February 24. The company reported that it generated revenues of $7.0 billion during the quarter, which was 34% more than the revenues that ONEOK generated during the previous year's quarter. The revenue movement compared to the prior year's quarter was influenced by commodity price movements, while the Magellan Midstream takeover also impacted revenues. ONEOK's adjusted EBITDA was up nicely compared to the previous year's period, rising to $2.17 billion. EBITDA was up a sequential basis as well, rising from $1.55 billion during the previous quarter.

ONEOK earned $1.57 per share during the fourth quarter, but that number is lower than the company's cash flows due to depreciation charges. The company is forecasted to see its earnings-per-share rebound this year, which had declined in 2024. This was despite higher company-wide net profit generation, as the share count increase due to the Magellan Midstream takeover offset the tailwinds from higher company-wide net profits.

ONEOK's growth track record is uneven. There were times when the company delivered strong year-over-year growth, but also times when there was no meaningful earnings or cash flow growth.

The roll-up of ONEOK's MLP boosted growth in the past. When growth was achieved organically, that was mainly due to new projects coming online. In order to finance its growth, including via acquisitions, ONEOK issued shares from time to time, which made its share count grow substantially over the last decade. This dilution made ONEOK's earnings-per-share grow a lot less than company-wide profits. We believe that there is a high likelihood that ONEOK's share count will climb in the future, too, thus dilution will likely remain a headwind for ONEOK's per-share growth rate.

ONEOK has reduced its organic growth spending to some degree, as this will allow ONEOK to pay down debt in the coming years. Overall, growth spending should still allow for some earnings growth in the long run, and the takeover of Magellan Midstream will have a positive impact on ONEOK's growth as well. On the other hand, increasing regulation could be a headwind for ONEOK's growth in the future. We believe that a low to mid-single-digit earnings-per-share growth rate is achievable, although investors could see some ups and downs in the future, too.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
P/E	32.7	24.5	15.4	13.1	15.7	9.0	11.2	16.7	13.0	19.5	17.2	14.0
Avg. Yld.	6.2%	6.0%	5.1%	6.0%	4.6%	9.8%	6.3%	5.8%	5.4%	3.9%	4.2%	5.0%

ONEOK has traded at a relatively high valuation in the past. Shares are trading for around 17 times this year's forecasted net profits right now. The growth outlook for the company is reasonable but not overly strong, thus we believe that a 17x earnings multiple is not justified. Our fair value target is 14 times net profits. At current prices, ONEOK trades above our fair value estimate, which could result in multiple compression headwinds.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	204%	147%	76.4%	74.7%	72.9%	88.4%	71.2%	97.4%	69.7%	76.6%	72.9%	69.4%

ONEOK paid out more than its net earnings during parts of the last decade. But since cash flows oftentimes were higher than the reported net profit, due to high depreciation charges, the dividend was still sustainable during those times. The risk of a dividend cut by ONEOK is not very high, but a cut should not be ruled out, as management could decide to reduce the payout in order to have more funds for debt reduction or growth spending.

A lot of ONEOK's revenues, especially after the roll-up of its MLP, are fee-based or hedged, which makes the company less sensitive to commodity price swings. Therefore, ONEOK can operate with considerable leverage without being in dangerous territory, as its cash flows are not overly volatile, although they are still impacted by the volumes that are transported by ONEOK. The fee-based nature of ONEOK's revenues and non-cyclical demand for natural gas, e.g. for heating, is what has made ONEOK more or less recession-resilient in the past.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

ONEOK is a natural gas focused infrastructure company. Even though it is not the largest among its peers, the company has benefited a lot from growing natural gas production in the United States in the past. We see ONEOK generating some profit growth going forward, but not at the level seen in the past, as the company is much larger and more mature now. The expected total returns are not overly attractive, which is why we rate the stock a hold right here.
