Overview & Current Events

Civista Bancshares is a financial services holding company that is headquartered in Sandusky, Ohio. Its primary subsidiary, Civista Bancshares, was founded in 1884 and provides banking, commercial lending, mortgage, wealth management, and commercial equipment leasing services. It has 43 branches across Ohio, Southeastern Indiana and Northern Kentucky and has a market capitalization of $346 million. Civista Bancshares is the 10th largest publicly traded commercial bank headquartered in Ohio.

Civista Bancshares has some attractive characteristics. It gathers low-cost deposits and generates loans in attractive markets, including the 5 largest metropolitan areas in Ohio. It also has an experienced management team, with an average banking experience of 31 years. However, the bank has been under pressure since early 2022 due to the surge of interest rates to a nearly 23-year high. This surge caused large unrealized losses in the fixed-income portfolio of the bank and thus it caused the tangible book value per share to plunge -30%, from $18.11 in 2021 to $12.61 in 2022. This helps explain the vast underperformance of the stock vs. the S&P 500 over the last five years (+40% vs. +89%).

In late April, Civista Bancshares reported (4/24/25) financial results for the first quarter of 2025. Net interest margin expanded from 3.22% in the prior year's quarter to 3.51% thanks to lower costs of deposits after the interest rate cuts of the Fed in late 2024. Net interest income grew 16% over the prior year's quarter, assisted by 8% growth of loans. As a result, earnings-per-share surged 61%, from $0.41 to $0.66, and exceeded the analysts' consensus by $0.14. Civista Bancshares has begun to recover from the impact of high interest rates on its net interest margin, with stronger performance than expected. As a result, we have raised our forecast for annual earnings-per-share from $2.35 to $2.50.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Shares¹	7.8	8.0	9.9	12.0	15.6	16.1	15.3	15.0	15.2	15.4	15.6	16.0

Civista Bancshares has acquired six smaller banks since 2007. As a result, it has grown its loans by 12% per year on average and its deposits by 15% per year on average since 2018. The bank has also grown its earnings-per-share by 6.2% per year on average over the last nine years. However, it is currently going through a downturn due to high interest rates, which have compressed the net interest margin of the bank via higher deposit costs. We expect interest rates to moderate in the upcoming years, as per the guidance of the Fed. Therefore, we expect Civista Bancshares to recover and grow its earnings-per-share by 2% per year on average beyond this year.

Civista Bancshares (CIVB)

Updated April 30th, 2025 by Aristofanis Papadatos

Excluding 2018, in which a temporary plunge in earnings caused an abnormally high price-to-earnings ratio, Civista Bancshares has traded at an average price-to-earnings ratio of 10.0 over the last decade. Given the risk related to the small market cap of the bank, we view this as a fair valuation level. The stock has rallied 65% off its bottom last year thanks to expectations for lower interest rates in the upcoming years, but it is still trading at a reasonable price-to-earnings ratio of 9.2. We expect the stock to revert to its average valuation level over the next five years. In such a case, the stock will enjoy a 1.7% annualized gain thanks to the expansion of its valuation level.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	17%	14%	20%	31%	21%	22%	20%	22%	22%	32%	27%	31%

Civista Bancshares has an experienced management, with an average tenure of 31 years, and enjoys lower-cost deposits than the average bank. It has grown its dividend for 12 consecutive years, though it is offering a modest dividend yield of 3.0%, which is lower than the 3.4% median dividend yield of the financial sector. Civista Bancshares has grown its dividend by 8% per year on average over the last five years and has a healthy payout ratio of 27%, which provides room for meaningful dividend hikes in the upcoming years.

On the other hand, the bank is highly sensitive to the path of interest rates. The -30% plunge in tangible book value per share in 2022 due to the surge of interest rates is a testament to the high sensitivity of the bank to downturns of the financial sector. While we believe that the worse is behind the bank regarding the surge of interest rates, investors should be aware of the vulnerability of the bank to downturns. If inflation rebounds, the stock will probably come under pressure.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Civista Bancshares has vastly underperformed the S&P 500 over the last five years due to the impact of high interest rates on the net interest margin of the bank. Interest rates have begun to normalize but the market has already priced a portion of the expected recovery of the bank in the stock, given the 65% rally of the stock off its bottom last year. The stock could offer a 6.5% average annual return over the next five years thanks to 2.0% earnings-per-share growth, a 3.0% dividend and a 1.7% annualized valuation gain. The stock maintains its hold rating.
