Community HealthCare Trust was made public in 2016, so there exists only eight years of complete financial results from which to base future estimates off. In the five-year period from 2019 through 2024, CHCT grew funds from operations by 6% annually, which is decent. Even throughout the COVID pandemic, CHCT continued growing its AFFO.

We expect that the trust can increase AFFO per share at a 3.0% annualized growth rate beyond 2025. The trust will grow its healthcare property portfolio through acquisitions of non-urban healthcare facilities, which provide stable revenue growth and long-term cash flows. CHCT avoids urban properties to avoid competition from other REITs, which increases its potential for more attractive risk-adjusted returns. The trust acquires primarily individual properties worth between $5 million and $30 million. Healthcare-related real estate rents and valuations are generally more stable than other property types due to favorable demographic trends and the rising demand for healthcare, regardless of the economic climate.

The trust's network of relationships in the healthcare market has allowed CHCT to acquire healthcare properties in target markets from third-party owners of existing healthcare facilities, physician owners and with healthcare providers through sale/leaseback transactions. Existing shareholders can expect to be diluted over the long term, as CHCT has increased its outstanding shares by 8% annually over the trailing five years. Despite this increasing number of shares, FFO growth still came in positively over that period, so CHCT has been making good investments.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/AFFO	-	14.5	18.0	18.4	23.7	21.5	21.6	15.2	13.5	10.0	8.0	12.5
Avg. Yld.	-	6.8%	6.1%	5.7%	4.2%	3.9%	3.5%	4.5%	5.4%	8.5%	11.0%	6.7%

Since IPO, Community Healthcare has traded at an average P/AFFO ratio of 17.4. We peg fair value at 12.5 times FFO. Thus, we believe shares today are undervalued, implying a valuation tailwind. The 11% yield today is well above its long-term average yield of 5.4%, which could further indicate that shares are undervalued here.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout		108%	111%	105%	99%	83%	78%	71%	72%	83%	87%	83%

The trust's payout started off in dangerous territory above 100% of funds from operations. Still, the trust kept on growing the dividend every single quarter. As FFO grew over time, the payout ratio declined to fairer levels. The 99% payout ratio of 2019 was when the trust began covering the dividend with FFO, and it appears the payout ratio will continue to moderate as we estimate FFO to outgrow the dividend.

Community Healthcare is somewhat recession resistant, as it owns properties which must operate in both good and bad financial times, but this does not completely prevent the threat of its partners and tenants facing financial difficulties.

CHCT's competitive advantage lies in its management's strong network of relationships to take advantage of in making attractive acquisitions and its focus on non-urban healthcare properties which result in higher risk-adjusted returns, but we would only call this a moderately strong advantage amongst its peers.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Community Healthcare has a short track record of financial results; however, it has increased funds from operations at this time at a decent rate. Additionally, the trust is dedicated to the dividend which has increased every quarter since IPO. We estimate that CHCT trades below fair value and offers 19.2% annual total returns. CHCT earns a hold rating.
