Overview & Current Events

Thomson Reuters Corporation is a global financial information and data solutions provider for businesses and professionals in the fields of finance, accounting, tax, and media. Thomson Reuters was created in 2008 when the Thomson Corporation purchased the British company Reuters Group. The company is cross listed in Toronto and New York, where it trades under the ticker TRI on both exchanges. Accordingly, all figures referenced in this report are in USD and refer to the company's NYSE-listed common equity. However, Thomson Reuters has announced it will transfer its listing from the NYSE to the Nasdaq on February 25th, 2025.

On January 3rd, 2023, Thomson Reuters acquired SurePrep, a U.S.-based tax automation software and services company for $500 million in cash, and in June 2023, it announced the agreement to acquire Casetext for $650 million, which uses AI to improve the efficiency of legal professionals.

On December 2nd, 2024, the company completed the sale of its FindLaw business to Internet Brands.

In January 2025, Thomson acquired cPaperless, LLC (SafeSend) for $600 million cash, for its tax automation capabilities.

In February 2025, Thomson Reuters announced a 10% increase to the dividend to $2.38 per share, which marked the 32nd consecutive annual dividend increase.

Thomson Reuters reported first quarter 2025 results on May 1st, 2025, for the period ending March 31st, 2025. For the quarter, total company revenue grew 2% year-over-year to $1.90 billion, of which the majority (76%) was recurring revenues. Thomson Reuters produced adjusted EPS of $1.12 per share compared to adjusted EPS of $1.11 in Q1 2024.

For 2025, Thomson Reuters reaffirms its forecast for total revenue growth of 3.0% to 3.5%, adjusted EBITDA margin of approximately 39%, and free cash flow of $1.9 billion.

In January 2021, Thomson Reuters sold Refinitiv to LSEG, then set off on a two-year Change Program, which resulted in the company transforming itself from a holding company to an operating company. Upon completing this program, Thomson Reuters became a content-driven technology company rather than a content provider.

At the end of Q1 2025, Thomson held approximately $1.4 billion in cash and cash equivalents to target acquisitions that could boost its growth. Thomson is executing its "Build, Partner, Buy" strategy wherein it is investing more than $200 million per year in AI. As part of this strategy, it recently completed the bolt-on acquisitions of Safe Sign, Materia, and SafeSend to improve its AI capabilities in Legal and Tax & Accounting.

Updated May 11th, 2025 by Quinn Mohammed

The company has made it clear that share repurchases are a priority, which will help drive earnings-per-share higher over the long term. In 2022, 2023, and 2024, Thomson repurchased $1.28 billion, $1.08 billion, and $639 million of its shares.

Finally, Thomson Reuters completed the sale of its stake in LSEG as of Q2 2024. In 2023, TRI sold 56 million shares for gross proceeds of $5.5 billion. It returned some of this to shareholders through a return of capital transaction, a cash distribution of $4.67 per share and a reverse stock split which reduced the share count. In H1 2024, Thomson Reuters sold 16 million more shares of LSEG for $1.8 billion.

Between 2025 and 2030, we expect Thomson Reuters to grow its earnings-per-share by 11% annually.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Avg. P/E	23.9	29.9	23.2	64.4	8.9	33.1	15.3	40.7	37.1	43.0	48.5	31.9
Avg. Yld.	2.6%	2.5%	2.4%	3.2%	2.4%	1.9%	1.6%	1.5%	1.5%	1.3%	1.3%	1.7%

We see fair value for this stock at 31.9 times earnings and today shares trade for 48.5 times estimated earnings, significantly higher than the 5-year average of 33.8 and 10-year average of 31.9. We therefore forecast a meaningful headwind to total returns annually as the valuation moderates over time. We are forecasting 8% dividend growth as the company is targeting a 50% to 60% dividend payout ratio.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	63%	76%	55%	185%	46%	68%	14%	68%	56%	57%	62%	54%

Qualitatively, Thomson Reuters’ strongest competitive advantage is its brand recognition, which provides it with strong pricing power in the competitive world of financial information. The company’s payout ratio appears to be safe today, and we expect the 32-year annual dividend streak to continue. TRI was founded during the last recession, so it is difficult to know exactly how much its business was impacted. As Thomson Reuters generates most of its revenue from selling information and software solutions electronically and on a subscription basis (with 76% of revenue recurring), the business has historically been resilient, and this resiliency has benefited them throughout the pandemic impact.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We see total annual returns for Thomson Reuters coming in at 3.5%, stemming from 11% earnings-per-share growth and the 1.3% dividend yield, partly offset by -8.1% P/E multiple contraction. The company has completed its Change Program, and now brands itself as a content-driven technology company. TRI maintains its hold rating, but shares are expensive, trading at 152% of our fair value estimate.
