Overview & Current Events

Aon is a professional services firm headquartered in London, United Kingdom. The company provides a variety of services including consulting, risk management, and health plan management. Aon has approximately 500 offices worldwide that serve 120 countries through a workforce that numbers about 60,000. U.S. investors can initiate an ownership stake in Aon through American Depositary Receipts that trade with a market capitalization of $76 billion on the New York Stock Exchange, under the ticker AON. Aon should generate just over $17 billion in revenue this year.

Aon posted second quarter earnings on July 25th, 2025, and results were slightly better than expected. Earnings came to $3.49 per-share on an adjusted basis, beating estimates by eight cents. Earnings were down sharply from $5.67 a quarter ago. Revenue was up almost 11% year-over-year to $4.16 billion, in line with expectations. Organic revenue growth for Q2 was 6%.

Adjusted operating margin was 28.2% of revenue, up 80 basis points for the quarter. Free cash flow was $732 million, up 59% year-over-year. The company closed eight acquisitions through June, representing about $20 million in EBITDA. Restructuring savings were $35 million in Q2. Aon returned $411 million to shareholders during the quarter, with $250 million allocated to share repurchases. Total operating expenses were $3.3 billion, up from $3.1 billion a year ago.

We see $16.90 in adjusted earnings-per-share for this year, down slightly from our prior estimate, but still a record by a comfortable margin.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030

Over the last decade, Aon compounded its adjusted earnings-per-share at a rate of nearly 14% per year. Looking ahead, we believe that the company's growth is likely to continue to be quite strong, albeit a bit slower than its historical pace. More specifically, we are forecasting 11% annualized earnings growth over a full economic cycle.

Management continues to be bullish, and rightfully so, as Aon's businesses are posting very strong rates of growth, for the most part. We see expense savings as a driver of earnings growth along with the buyback, and organic revenue growth should continue to move the top line higher as well. On the contrary, Q2 results showed a lack of progress on expense savings once again. Given the broad assortment of professional services the company offers as well as its global footprint, we are bullish on Aon's future. We note forex translation has been a sizable headwind in the past, but Aon has thus far been able to overcome that, and then some. There is upside potential so long as the company can continue to grow expenses at a slower rate than the top line. We note the NFP acquisition as a driver as well in the years to come, with Q2 results highlighting the potential of the acquisition with extremely strong revenue growth, with cost savings coming presumably.

The dividend should continue to rise at roughly the rate of earnings, and we forecast the payout to be at $5.25 in 2030, up from the current $2.98. Aon is not a high-yield stock by any means, but its dividend growth potential is robust given the very low payout ratio, and strong earnings growth outlook.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	19.8	20.4	20.1	17.9	17.7	20.3	21.6	22.4	20.6	23.0	21.0	21.0
Avg. Yld.	1.2%	1.2%	1.1%	1.1%	0.9%	0.9%	0.8%	0.7%	0.8%	0.7%	0.8%	0.9%

Aon has traded at an average price-to-earnings ratio of ~19 over the last decade, and we are using 21 for a fair value estimate as more recent years have seen higher valuations. The company is trading for a price-to-earnings ratio of 21 using our 2025 earnings-per-share estimate. That implies no change to total returns from the valuation, as Aon is trading at our estimate of fair value. We see the yield staying about where it is for the foreseeable future, noting Aon is not – and likely will not be for some time – a pure income stock.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	24%	25%	22%	19%	19%	18%	17%	16%	17%	17%	18%	18%

Aon's payout ratio is still very low, consistent with the company's historical practices, and we do not believe that will change. We see the dividend remaining around one-sixth of total earnings, so the payout is extremely safe. However, this means Aon is highly unlikely to have a meaningful yield anytime soon. Management has stated that it plans to protect the dividend during periods of uncertainty, and we see no reasonable scenario where Aon's dividend would be at risk.

Aon was resilient during the Great Recession, and that was certainly the case again during the COVID crisis, the product of its very diversified revenue streams. This is also a competitive advantage for the firm, along with its world-class client list and reputation.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting 11.8% total annual returns, consisting of the 0.8% yield, 11% EPS growth, and no impact from the valuation. We're moving the stock from buy to hold after Q2 earnings on lower total return prospects. Aon offers dividend growth potential, but also a long runway for earnings-per-share growth.
