Overview & Current Events

Honeywell International is a diversified industrial company. Beginning with the first quarter of 2024, the company has four reportable segments: Aerospace Technologies, Industrial Automation, Building Automation, and Energy & Sustainability Solutions. Honeywell International has more than 100,000 employees around the world and more than 40% of sales come from international markets. The company generates about $40 billion in annual revenues.

On September 27th, 2024, Honeywell International announced a 4.6% increase in the quarterly dividend rate to $1.13, extending the company's dividend growth streak to 15 consecutive years.

On July 24th, 2025, Honeywell International announced second quarter results for the period ending June 30th, 2025. For the quarter, revenue increased 8.3% to $10.4 billion, which beat estimates by $340 million. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $2.75 compared favorably to $2.49 in the prior year and was $0.09 ahead of expectations.

Organic sales were higher by 5% for the quarter while the segment margin of 22.9% was down 10 basis points from the prior year. Revenue for Aerospace Technologies grew 6% organically, led by continued strength in commercial aviation aftermarket services. Defense and space had its sixth consecutive quarter of double-digit growth. Industrial Automation was unchanged as growth in sensing and smart energy was offset by warehouse automation. The company completed its sale of its personal protective equipment business during the period as well. Building Automation improved 8% due to continued strong demand for building solutions services and growth across the building products portfolio. Energy & Sustainability Solutions grew 6% due to strength in petrochemical catalyst shipments and improved volumes in gas processing. The company closed on its $2.2 billion purchase of Sundyne, which makes highly-engineered pumps and gas compressors for process industries, during the quarter.

As previously mentioned, Honeywell International plans to separate their businesses into three separate publicly traded companies: Honeywell Automation, Honeywell Aerospace, and Advanced Materials. The company had previously announced the planned separation of its Advanced Materials business. The transactions remain on track to be completed by the second half of 2026.

Honeywell International provided an updated outlook for 2025 as well, with adjusted earnings-per-share now projected to be in a range of $10.45 to $10.65, compared to $10.20 to $10.50 and $10.10 to $10.50 previously. This range does include a potential impact from tariffs.

Honeywell International (HON)

Updated July 25th, 2025 by Nathan Parsh

While Honeywell International did see earnings decline 24% during the last recession, the company has managed to grow earnings every year since 2010 outside of 2020. The company rebounded from the worst of the COVID-19 pandemic and we expect earnings growth to continue to be strong. We are reaffirming our expected growth rate of 9% through 2030 due to a combination of organic growth, margin expansion, and share repurchases.

Honeywell International has paused, but not cut, its dividend growth several times over the past two decades, most recently in 2010. We forecast that dividend will grow in line with earnings going forward.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	16.9	17.0	18.9	18.8	20.3	23.0	25.9	24.5	22.9	22.8	21.2	18.0
Avg. Yld.	2.1%	2.2%	2.0%	2.0%	2.0%	2.2%	1.8%	1.9%	2.0%	1.9%	2.0%	2.4%

Honeywell International shares have increased $13, or 6.2%, since our April 29th, 2025 report. We are reaffirming our target P/E of 18, though this is still below the long-term average valuation. Using adjusted earnings-per-share estimates for 2025, shares have a forward multiple of 21.2, implying a possible headwind from multiple reversion. If shares reverted to our target multiple by 2030 then total returns could be reduced by 3.2% per year over this period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	36%	37%	39%	38%	41%	51%	47%	45%	46%	44%	43%	43%

Industrial companies tend to perform very well when the economy is strong, but struggle in weak economic climates. As with most industrial companies, Honeywell International saw earnings decline in 2020, but results improved greatly over the last two years. Honeywell International divested two lower margin businesses in the form of spin offs recently. This should allow the company to focus on its higher margin businesses, particularly in Aerospace, where military products and aftermarket services should see growth as well. With a strong economy, the company's other products, such as Intelligrated and industrial products like Solstice, should perform well. We see Honeywell's strong position in these markets as its competitive advantage.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Honeywell International is expected to return 7.5% annually through 2030, down from 8.4% previously. Our projected return stems from a 9% earnings growth rate and a 2.0% starting yield, partially offset by a low single-digit headwind from multiple reversion. Honeywell is a clear leader in the areas that it operates. The announced separation of businesses into standalone companies could help unlock value for shareholders as well. We have raised our five-year price target $5 to $292, but we continue to view shares of Honeywell International as a hold due to projected returns.
