Overview & Current Events

J.B. Hunt Transport Services (JBHT) is a freight carrier company that primarily operates large semi-trailer trucks (semis). The business operates more than 115,000 pieces of company-owned trailing equipment in its fleet. The business is split into 5 segments – Intermodal (JBI), which operates the largest drayage fleet (vans 53 feet long) in North America, Dedicated Contract Services (DCS), which offers design and implementation of supply chain solutions and on-site management, Integrated Capacity Solutions (ICS), which ships domestic and international containers across North America, Truckload (JBT), which is one of the largest capacity networks in North America, allowing users to GPS track trailers, and Final Mile Services (FMS), which provides final destination delivery and installation. Intermodal is the largest of these divisions, followed by Dedicated Contract Services and Integrated Capacity Solutions. The company enjoyed strong demand for logistics services over the past couple of years as American consumers spent money at a record pace. However, that momentum has now gone into reverse with EPS dropping sharply since the 2022 peak of $9.21.

On July 15th, 2025, J.B. Hunt reported its Q2 results. The latest earnings report was nearly flat versus the prior year. Revenues of $2.93 billion fell by less than 0.1% year-over-year. Earnings per share rose 1 cent to $1.32 versus the prior year and were in-line with expectations.

J.B. Hunt had previously reported a series of earnings misses and reduced guidance levels over the past year. So, this quarter was a positive in so far as it did not miss the market's expectations. This helps explain the major rebound in J.B. Hunt's stock price since our prior update. However, the business merely stabilizing around trough 2024 levels of profitability is not an especially positive development either, as the current earnings outlook remains far below levels from several years ago. Management continues to forecast a recovery in the back half of 2025, but macroeconomic factors, such as tariffs, complicate the outlook. We have left our prior 2025 earnings estimate unchanged as this earnings report didn't move the needle in either direction.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030

Shares²	114	111	110	109	106	106	105	104	103	101	100	98

Since 2015, J.B. Hunt has seen its earnings-per-share grow at an average annualized rate of 4.8%. The company had enjoyed unusually rapid earnings growth up through 2022. The past two years have been challenging for J.B. Hunt and the trucking sector more generally. Once the industry slump bottoms out, we forecast that J.B. Hunt will grow earnings per share at 5.0% per year going forward.

Over the past five years, dividend payments have grown at a rate of 10.3% annually. We expect that the dividend growth rate will slow down in-line with the company's earnings growth. To that point, J.B. Hunt's most recent dividend hike, in January 2025, was a modest 2.3% increase from 43 cents to 44 cents per share quarterly.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	22.2	21.6	26.0	20.7	20.0	25.1	23.9	21.0	23.5	29.4	25.0	23.0
Avg. Yld.	1.0%	1.1%	0.9%	0.8%	1.0%	0.9%	0.7%	0.9%	0.9%	0.9%	1.2%	1.2%

Over the past 10 years, J.B. Hunt has averaged a P/E ratio of 23.3, and over the past five years, the stock has averaged a P/E ratio of 24.6. J.B. Hunt shares have rebounded over the past quarter. This has pushed the P/E back up to 25.0x, which is above our longer-term estimate of 23.

J.B. Hunt has long offered a dividend yield right around the 1.0% mark. The current 1.2% yield is slightly higher than the long-term average.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	23%	23%	25%	17%	20%	23%	17%	17%	24%	31%	29%	28%

J.B. Hunt has averaged a roughly 22% payout ratio over the past decade. We expect it will continue to increase its dividend in line with earnings, leading to a stable payout ratio. Trucking is historically a cyclical industry prone to downturns during a recession. However, J.B. Hunt's diversified lines of business and large scale historically have given it a good deal of insulation from economic shocks as compared to most of its peers.

J.B. Hunt has a fair amount of leverage on its balance sheet. S&P Global rates the company's debt at BBB+. The balance sheet is well within investment-grade parameters, but conditions could change in a prolonged recession.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Given the economic headwinds and continuing demand shortfalls in the trucking industry, J.B. Hunt faces near-term challenges. J.B. Hunt had reported a number of weak earnings reports in a row prior to the Q2 results. And tariffs could be a recurring headwind for the company, especially as new tariffs have been announced against Canada and Mexico in recent weeks. JBHT's stock price has jumped considerably since our last update without any meaningful improvement in fundamentals. That has pushed shares back over our fair value estimate. J.B. Hunt has a 4.4% annualized return outlook and shares earn a hold rating today.
