Overview & Current Events

UFP Industries, Inc. is a holding company that designs, manufactures, and sells wood, non-wood composites and other materials. Since 1955, UFPI has established itself as the largest converter of softwood lumber in North America. The company reports its results via the following three similarly sized segments:

UFP Retail Solutions: The segment is organized into the ProWood, Deckorators, and UFP-Edge business units. ProWood sells pressure-treated lumber products like decking and fencing to retailers around the United States. Deckorators sells wood plastic composites and its patented Surestone mineral-based decking and decking accessories (balusters and post caps). The UFP-Edge business unit sells trim and fascia and exterior siding products to home improvement retailers and two-step distributors.

UFP Packaging: The segment is broken down into the Structural Packaging, PalletOne, and Protective Packaging Solutions business units. Structural Packaging engineers and manufactures custom packaging products made of wood and metal. These are sold to global customers in building materials, durable goods, and agricultural industries. PalletOne designs and manufactures pallets, mostly consisting of wood and heat-treated wood. These are used by customers to ship a variety of consumer and industrial products. The Protective Packaging Solutions unit sells products to customers, such as corrugation, foam, and labels.

UFP Construction: This segment is made up of Factory-Built Housing, Site-Built Construction, Commercial Construction, and Concrete Forming business units. The Factory-Built Housing unit manufactures roof trusses, plywood, and oriented strand boards for housing manufacturers. The Site-Built Construction unit designs and manufactures roof and floor trusses, wall panels, and lumber packages. The Commercial Construction unit designs, manufactures, and installs highly customized interior fixtures for the healthcare, hospitality, and quick-service restaurant industries. The Concrete Forming unit manufactures and supplies wood forms that are used to set or form concrete for large parking garages, stadiums, and bridges.

On July 28th, UFPI released its financial results for the second quarter ended June 30th, 2025. The company's net sales decreased by 3.5% year-over-year to $1.84 billion in the quarter. That was mostly the result of a 3% decline in organic unit sales during the quarter. The company cited tariff uncertainty as a challenge for business and consumer sentiment for the quarter. This led to end-market demand remaining stable but soft in the quarter. The demand-constrained environment also resulted in an average decrease in price of 1% across the business during the quarter. UFPI's diluted EPS dropped 17.1% to $1.70 for the quarter. That missed this quarter's analyst consensus by $0.16. An uptick in the cost of goods sold led to a 110 basis point decrease in UFPI's net profit margin to 5.5% during the quarter.

Updated July 29th, 2025, by Kody Kester

UFPI reaffirmed its annual unit sales growth target of between 7% and 10% over the long term. Given the fragmented nature of the industries in which the company operates, we are still confident that this is an attainable growth target. UFPI can use bolt-on acquisitions to bolster its growth as well. The company also remains on track to deliver $60 million in annual structural cost savings by the end of 2026. Last week, UFPI's Board of Directors approved a plan to close its Bonner, Montana, manufacturing facilities. The company plans to transfer its trim and certain other products to existing facilities and will exit the coated siding business. That will lead to one-time costs of $15 million to $17 million in Q3 2025. Beyond that time, the company anticipates that these actions will eliminate future operating losses with these facilities of $16 million in 2026. This should fuel modest margin expansion in 2026 and beyond. Overall, that's why we believe that diluted EPS can grow by 10% annually through 2030 off our trough diluted EPS base of $6 for 2025.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Avg. P/E	17.1	20.6	20.6	11.0	16.8	13.9	11.0	7.2	15.6	16.4	17.5	15.0
Avg. Yld.	1.2%	0.9%	0.9%	1.4%	0.8%	0.9%	0.7%	1.2%	0.9%	1.2%	1.3%	1.4%

Adjusting for valuation peaks and troughs, UFPI's 10-year average P/E ratio has been right around 15. Since we continue to think the growth story will hold up, we would argue that the 10-year average P/E ratio still approximates fair value. The current year P/E ratio of 17.5 implies that shares are somewhat overvalued.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	20%	18%	17%	15%	14%	13%	8%	9%	14%	19%	23%	21%

The company's most notable competitive advantage is its size and scale. UFPI is the largest buyer of softwood lumber on the continent. That affords it a great deal of leverage in negotiations with suppliers. UFPI is also largely shielded from the direct impact of tariffs in the sense that Southern Yellow Pine is domestically produced and accounts for more than 70% of its lumber purchases. The company's $607.6 million net surplus cash balance as of June 30th is also strong for a company of its size. UFPI's payout ratio is positioned to be in the low 20% range in 2025, which supports the current payout.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

UFPI's 1.3% dividend yield, 10.0% annual diluted EPS growth prospects, and 3.0% annual valuation downside could deliver 7.9% annual total returns over the next five years. As a result, we're downgrading shares to a Hold rating.
