Overview & Current Events

Altria Group was founded by Philip Morris in 1847. Today, it is a consumer staples giant. It sells the Marlboro cigarette brand in the U.S. and a number of other non-smokeable brands. Altria also has a 10% ownership stake in global beer giant Anheuser Busch InBev, in addition to large stakes in Juul, a vaping products manufacturer and distributor, as well as cannabis company Cronos Group (CRON). It currently trades at a market capitalization of $104 billion.

On July 30, 2025, Altria Group, Inc. reported its financial results for the second quarter of 2025. The company posted adjusted earnings per share of $1.44, surpassing the analyst estimate of $1.38 and rising 8.3% year over year. Revenue came in at $6.1 billion, above the consensus estimate of $5.2 billion but down 1.7% compared to the same period last year. Net revenues were $6,102 million, with gross profit at $3,900 million and operating income at $3,200 million. Net earnings stood at $2.4 billion, down from $3.8 billion in Q2 2024, impacted by a significant goodwill impairment in the e-vapor segment. Domestic cigarette volumes declined 10.2%, but the smokeable products segment delivered solid adjusted operating companies income growth behind Marlboro's strength.

In the oral tobacco products segment, on! maintained momentum with strategic investments. The company returned $4 billion to shareholders via dividends and buybacks, maintaining a 55-year dividend streak with a 6.87% yield. Altria narrowed its full-year 2025 adjusted earnings guidance to $5.35 to $5.45 per share, raising the lower end and representing 3.0% to 5.0% growth from $5.19 in 2024. CEO Billy Gifford noted economic strain on consumers but emphasized focus on smoke-free products and regulatory shaping. The company faces challenges including a goodwill impairment related to its e-vapor segment.

Altria has generated steady earnings and dividend growth for many years after accounting for the spin-offs of Kraft Foods and Philip Morris International. This, however, is a period of transition for Altria. The decline in the U.S. smoking rate continues, though it has recently recovered some. In response to the negative long-term trend, Altria has invested heavily in new products that appeal to changing consumer preferences. They are also investing heavily into share repurchases to try to support continued earnings-per-share and dividend-per-share growth. Altria invested billions of dollars in Canadian marijuana producer Cronos Group for a 55% equity stake (including warrants) and a 35% equity stake in e-vapor manufacturer Juul Labs. In light of these large investments, Altria announced a cost-cutting program designed to reduce annual expenses by $500 million to $600 million. We also note that the company's investments in Juul and Cronos have resulted in billions of dollars in losses for Altria since its inception. Moving forward, we expect the company to generate low-single-digit annualized earnings per share growth.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	15.4	15.8	17.7	19.3	19	20.2	12.9	13.2	8.1	10.6	11.4	10.0
Avg. Yld.	5.0%	4.7%	4.2%	4.0%	4.2%	3.8%	6.0%	5.9%	9.8%	7.5%	6.6%	8.5%

Altria stock trades for a price-to-earnings ratio of 11.4. Our fair value estimate for Altria is a price-to-earnings ratio of 10.0, a reasonable multiple for a highly profitable company with a strong moat and a lengthy track record of success that is facing volume declines in its core business. As a result, the stock is slightly overvalued at present. In addition, the yield is attractive at 6.6%, which is high both on an absolute basis and against Altria's own historical yields.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	81.3%	77.6%	74.9%	75.2%	77.7%	78.9%	76.4%	77.7%	77.6%	78.1%	75.3%	84.7%

Altria ranks very highly in terms of safety because the company has tremendous competitive advantages. It operates in a highly regulated industry, which virtually eliminates the threat of new competition in the tobacco industry. Altria enjoys strong brands across its product portfolio, including the No. 1 cigarette brand. As a result, it has pricing power and brand loyalty. In addition, tobacco companies enjoy low manufacturing and distribution costs, thanks to its economies of scale. This has fueled Altria's tremendous dividend growth, enabling it to boast an impressive dividend growth streak of 55 years. Altria's business model is also highly resistant to recessions. Sales of cigarettes and other tobacco products hold up well when the economy declines. This explains why Altria's earnings rose steadily throughout the Great Recession, and why earnings were unscathed during the brief 2020 recession.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Altria offers a 5.8% annualized total return potential along with an attractive 6.6% dividend yield and a very impressive dividend growth track record. Furthermore, its business model has proven to be defensive. As a result, it is a reasonably compelling dividend growth investment right now. The risk investors need to keep in mind is that the core industry is gradually declining as volumes continue to move lower year after year. Furthermore, the company has struggled to effectively allocate capital in attempts to grow outside of the core business. Overall, we rate it a Hold.
