Overview & Current Events

Blue Owl Capital is one of the world's largest alternative asset managers that offers primarily permanent capital solutions to clients. It is headquartered in New York City and went public in 2021. Its largest business segment is direct lending, but it also offers general partner private equity investment solutions and manages real estate and digital infrastructure investments.

On July 31, 2025, Blue Owl Capital Inc. reported its Q2 2025 earnings, showcasing robust growth with assets under management (AUM) at $284.1 billion, up 48% from $192.0 billion in Q2 2024. The company raised a record $13.9 billion, driving a 34% increase in GAAP management fees to $623.4 million. Fee-related earnings (FRE) were $358.3 million ($0.23 per share), up 21%, with distributable earnings at $323.0 million ($0.21 per share). Total revenue reached $703.11 million, exceeding estimates by 18.87%.

The Credit platform grew AUM to $145.5 billion, with $5.8 billion in equity fundraising, while Real Assets hit $71.5 billion, and GP Strategic Capital reached $67.1 billion. Strategic moves included closing Digital Infrastructure Fund III at $7 billion, listing Owl Rock Technology Finance Corp., and partnering with Voya to target the $7-10 trillion 401(k) market. Blue Owl declared a $0.225 per share quarterly dividend (up 25%), payable August 28, 2025. Despite a 49% drop in GAAP net income to $17.4 million ($0.03 per share), the company maintained a strong balance sheet (current ratio 2.4). Co-CEOs Marc Lipschultz and Doug Ostrover emphasized global expansion and risk management, with $28.6 billion in undeployed AUM set to generate $379 million in fees.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
EPS	---	---	---	---	---	---	$0.32	$0.53	$0.65	$0.77	$0.84	$1.95
DPS	---	---	---	---	---	---	$0.13	$0.48	$0.56	$0.72	$0.90	$1.60
Shares	---	---	---	---	---	---	404.9	445.6	465.7	608.3	625.7	600.0

OWL is currently growing rapidly as it strives to rapidly scale its three asset management platforms and achieve economies of scale. OWL's business model is uniquely structured in the alternative asset management space to avoid generating any carried interest while also consisting primarily of permanent capital. As a result, its earnings stream is expected to be much more stable than those of its peers. OWL's fundraising outlook appears to be strong for the foreseeable future despite the deceleration in the growth rate, and its permanent capital, carried interest-free earnings stream should be able to be quite resilient in the face of economic turmoil.

On top of that, its general partner solutions and triple net lease real estate businesses should be able to generate exceptionally stable earnings through economic cycles while its direct lending platform benefits from rising interest rates. As a result, we estimate that earnings per share will grow at a 18.3% CAGR over the next half decade and expect the dividend per share to grow rapidly over that same period as well.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2014	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	---	---	---	---	---	---	43.4	21.9	21.3	30.3	23.1	20.0
Avg. Yld.	---	---	---	---	---	---	0.9%	4.1%	4.1%	3.1%	4.5%	4.1%

OWL has a very short operating history as a public company and therefore it is difficult to know exactly what valuation multiple is fair. Given that the company is still growing quickly in its early stages and recently expanded into the digital infrastructure space that should benefit from the rapid growth of artificial intelligence, we think a relatively high valuation multiple of 20 times is warranted.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	---	---	---	---	---	---	41%	91%	86%	94%	107%	82%

OWL's competitive advantage stems from its large and dominant market positioning in both direct lending and general partner private equity solutions. As a result, it should be able to continue raising funds at a strong pace in the coming years to further scale those businesses. While OWL has not operated through a recession before, we think it is better positioned than many asset managers to weather an economic storm given that almost all its assets under management is permanent capital and it does not accrue carried interest on its balance sheet either, resulting in a very stable earnings stream. Its balance sheet is also quite strong given its investment grade credit rating.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

OWL offers investors pretty attractive risk-reward at the moment thanks to its very strong expected earnings per share and dividend per share growth over the next half-decade backed by a solid investment grade balance sheet and a fairly defensively positioned and well-diversified business model. While the growth runway and the forward dividend yield make for a very attractive total return profile, the current elevated payout ratio keeps us from rating it a Buy today, and we therefore rate it a Hold.
