Overview & Current Events

Stryker is a global leader in the medical device sector. The company's product lines include surgical equipment, neurovascular products and orthopedic implants. The company was founded in 1941 by Dr. Homer Stryker because he felt that products that the medical device industry offered were not meeting the needs of his patients. Today, the company employs more than 53,000 people worldwide. In November of 2021, Stryker reorganized its businesses into two reporting segments: MedSurg and Neurotechnology, and Orthopaedics and Spine.

On December 10th, 2024, Stryker reported that it was raising its quarterly dividend 5% to $0.84 per share, extending the company's dividend growth streak to 31 consecutive years.

On January 6th, 2025, Stryker announced that it had agreed to buy Inari Medical, Inc. (NARI), which manufacturers neurovascular medical devices, for $4.9 billion in cash. The transaction closed during Q1 2025.

On July 31st, 2025, Stryker announced second quarter earnings results for the period ending June 30th, 2025. For the quarter, revenue grew 11.5% to $6.02 billion, which beat estimates by $90 million. Adjusted earnings-per-share of $3.13 compared favorably to $2.81 in the prior year and was $0.06 better than expected.

Organic revenue grew by 10.2% for the quarter. For the period, volume was up 9.7% and higher prices added 0.5% to results. MedSurg and Neurotechnology had sales of $3.8 billion, which represented 11% organic growth, while Orthopaedics and Spine was higher by 9.0% to $2.2 billion. As with prior quarters, results for both businesses were positively impacted by high single-digit growth in volume. Prices were up 0.8% for MedSurg and Neurotechnology and unchanged for Orthopaedics and Spine.

Stryker provided updated guidance for 2025 as well. The company now expects organic revenue growth in a range of 9.5% to 10% for the year, up from 8.5% to 9.5% and 8% to 9% previously. Adjusted earnings-per-share are forecasted to be in a range of $13.40 to $13.60 for the year, compared to $13.20 to $13.45 and $13.45 to $13.70 previously. At the midpoint, this would represent growth of 10.7% from 2024. We have updated our estimates accordingly.

Stryker has grown earnings-per-share at a rate of 13.9% per year since 2015 and 12.7% over the last five years. We reaffirm our earnings growth rate of 12% as it strikes a balance between the long-term and medium-term growth rates while also taking into account the high base from which EPS starts. The ongoing recovery in elective procedures should also aid results. The company was very resilient during the last recession, only seeing a $0.01 decline in earnings in 2009.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	25.2	25.4	28.7	22.8	24	26.9	29.4	26.2	28.3	29.5	28.0	26.0

Shares of Stryker have increased $1 since our May 2nd, 2025 report. Based off estimates for 2025, shares trade at 28.0 times earnings. We are reaffirming our target P/E of 26 as this is more in-line with the long-term average valuation. If shares reverted to our target price-to-earnings ratio by 2030, then multiple compression would be a 1.5% headwind to annual returns over this period.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	38%	36%	35%	27%	25%	32%	28%	30%	28%	26%	25%	25%

Stryker's strength during the most recent recession should give shareholders the confidence that the company can thrive in a difficult economic climate. As the leader in the medical device sector, Stryker's products are in demand around the world. For example, the company continues to see growth in its Mako robot installations, as well as a higher number of procedures performed. These figures are likely to grow as more surgeons become comfortable with using a robot during surgery. Another competitive advantage Stryker has over its peers is its organic growth. Over the past decade years, Stryker has consistently outperformed in peer group in the medical device sector in terms of organic growth. Investors are willing to pay up for that type of growth, which is why the company's price-to-earnings ratio has been higher than normal in recent years.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Following second quarter results, Stryker Corporation is now projected to return 11.2% annually over the next five years, up slightly from our prior estimate of 11.0%. Our projected return stems from a 12% earnings growth rate and a starting yield of 0.9% that are offset by a low single-digit headwind from multiple contraction. Organic growth continues to be strong for the company, with both segments continuing to see high growth rates for volumes. Shares still trade above our revised valuation target, but Stryker is one of the leading names in its industry. We have raised our 2030 price target $8 to $619 to reflect updated earnings estimates. We continue to rate shares of Stryker as a hold as it trades above our fair value target, but note the high-quality nature of the business and the company's long track record of dividend growth.
