The company has a PE of 18.6x as of this report, which is higher with its ten-year average of 15.1, and higher than its five-year average of 14.2. However, we think that a fair PE multiple of 14x is reasonable. This provides a multiple headwind compression of (5.6)%. Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Quest's competitive advantage is that it is a mature and market leader Company in the diagnostic information services industry. While this field is technically more susceptible to competition, it will require a lot of capital to build lab capacities. During the Great Recession, Quest grew earnings during that period. In 2008 EPS was $3.23 per share, and in 2009 it rose 20% to $3.88 per share. During the COVID-19 pandemic, earnings saw a tremendous growth of 70% as the company provided most of the COVID-19 tests. Quest has a BBB+ credit rating, which is an investment grade. The debt/equity ratio is 0.8, which is excellent, and the company has interest coverage of 5.6. Overall, the balance sheet is very healthy. The dividend payout ratio is low, and the company has had a dividend growth rate of 6.4% over the past five years. So, the dividend will continue to grow at a high rate.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, Quest Diagnostic Inc. is a well-run company with a history of steady growth in earnings. The risk with purchasing shares of this company would be the post-pandemic normalization. We estimate a -0.5% total annualized rate of return for the next five years. Thus, we rate the stock a hold.
