Overview & Current Events

HCA Healthcare, Inc., founded in 1968 and headquartered in Nashville, Tennessee, is one of the nation's leading providers of healthcare services. It owns and operates nearly 200 hospitals and approximately 2,400 ambulatory sites of care, including surgery centers, freestanding emergency rooms, urgent care centers, and physician clinics across 20 U.S. states and the United Kingdom. The company employs about 271,000 people, including 94,000 registered nurses and 38,000 active physicians.

On October 24, 2025, the company reported Q3 2025 results showing diluted earnings per share of $6.96, beating the consensus estimate of $5.64, and revenue of $19.16 billion, up 9.6% year-over-year. The strong performance reflects elevated patient volumes and an improved payer mix, with notable gains in inpatient admissions and emergency-room visits, as well as the benefits from Medicaid supplemental payment programs. Cash flows continued to strengthen with operating margin expansion partly driven by improved labor cost management and higher facility utilization. The company raised its full-year guidance, now targeting revenue in the $75.0 billion-$76.5 billion range and adjusted earnings per share of $27-$28, up from the prior $25.50-$27 range. Capital spending remained robust, focused on growth markets and facility expansions, while the balance sheet retained discipline with a consistent debt-management strategy and steady returns to shareholders via dividends and share buybacks. Although macro-economic headwinds and policy developments (including tariffs and healthcare regulation) continue to pose risks, the firm cited the current demand strength and favorable operational execution as key drivers of confidence. Overall, the results underscore resilient fundamentals in a challenging healthcare environment, with the company emphasizing its ability to convert increased demand into strong financial performance and improved outlook through disciplined cost control and strategic investment.

HCA Healthcare is positioned for strong growth over the next five years, driven by expanding patient volumes, strategic acquisitions, and operational efficiencies. Dividends per share are projected to increase as well, reflecting confidence in sustained cash flow generation. HCA's extensive hospital network, investments in technology, and focus on cost management should enhance profitability. While regulatory changes and labor costs pose risks, the company's scale, strong payer relationships, and demand for healthcare services position it well for continued revenue and earnings expansion, supporting shareholder returns.

HCA Healthcare, Inc. (HCA)

Updated November 5th, 2025 by Samuel Smith

HCA is currently trading at a P/E ratio of 17. The company’s P/E has steadily expanded, reflecting investor confidence in its earnings stability and growth potential. The dividend yield of 0.6% remains low, as HCA prioritizes reinvestment and share buybacks over large dividend payouts. Over the next five years, if earnings continue growing steadily, the P/E ratio could range between 14-16, aligning with historical trends. However, if regulatory pressures or reimbursement challenges emerge, the multiple may stay closer to 12-14, limiting valuation expansion.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	0%	0%	0%	14%	16%	4%	11%	13%	13%	12%	10%	9%

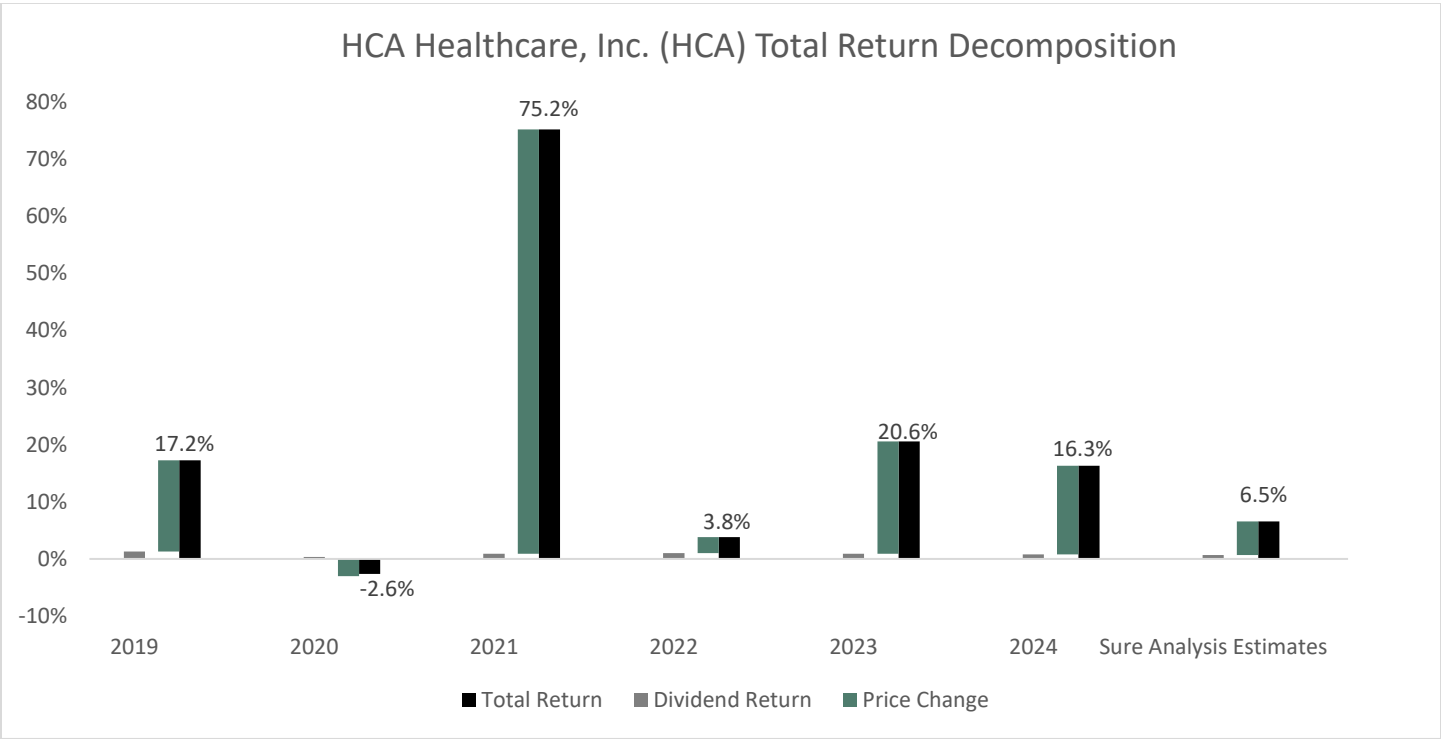

HCA’s competitive advantage lies in its extensive hospital network, scale, and operational efficiency, allowing it to negotiate favorable payer contracts and optimize costs. As the largest for-profit hospital operator in the U.S., it benefits from economies of scale and strong demand for healthcare services. During the Great Recession, HCA’s earnings remained stable due to the non-discretionary nature of healthcare, though margin pressure was evident. The COVID-19 pandemic created short-term disruptions, but demand rebounded quickly as elective procedures resumed, demonstrating the company’s resilience in economic downturns.

HCA maintains a healthy balance sheet with manageable debt and strong interest coverage, ensuring financial flexibility. The payout ratio has remained conservative, peaking at 16% in 2019 and stabilizing around 12% in recent years, reflecting the company’s preference for reinvestment. With continued earnings growth, the payout could remain near 10-12%, ensuring dividend sustainability while allowing capital to be directed toward expansion and acquisitions. HCA’s focus on cost control and strategic investments supports long-term shareholder value despite its modest yield.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Between its 0.6% dividend yield, 8.7% expected five-year EPS CAGR, and -2.5% expected five-year valuation multiple CAGR, we project a 6.5% annualized total return for HCA over the next half-decade, making it a Hold at the moment.
