Overview & Current Events

Banco Santander, headquartered in Madrid, Spain, is a diversified banking business with operations in Retail Banking, Santander Corporate and Investment Banking, Wealth Management, and Spain Real Estate Activity. The company is truly global, with a presence in Europe, North America, and South America. Santander's top markets by attributable profit include Brazil, Spain, The United Kingdom, Santander Consumer Finance, Mexico, Chile, USA, Portugal, Poland and Argentina. The $149 billion market capitalization company has 11,000+ branches, with ~206,000 employees serving tens of millions of customers around the globe. Santander reports results in euro, but all numbers for this report are in U.S. dollars.

Santander posted third quarter earnings on October 29th, 2025, and results were good. Earnings came to 27 cents per share, while net interest income was up 2% year-over-year to $11.94 billion.

Profit attributable to the parent company was $4.04 billion, a sixth consecutive quarterly record, and up 2% from the second quarter. In constant euros, profit was up 3% quarter-over-quarter despite a negative impact from the company's Argentina business. Excluding Argentina, profit would have risen 4%, driven by a resilient net interest income, solid fee income, lower credit provisions, and controlled costs. In the nine-month period, attributable profit was up 11% year-on-year to $11.9 billion, also an all-time high.

We now see $1 in adjusted earnings-per-share, much higher than our prior estimate. The bank is performing better than feared in 2025, setting it up for a strong finish to the year.

Note that all the numbers in this report refer to the Banco Santander American Depositary Receipts (ADRs) in USD, listed on the NYSE (ticker: SAN). Keep in mind that the Euro to USD exchange rate has varied over this time. Today, the exchange rate is 1.15 USD per Euro after significant deterioration in the value of the dollar so far this year. The company had traditionally paid three cash dividends and one scrip dividend each year (which is why the share count rises over time). The company's earnings have stabilized, which is putting the future of capital returns in a better spot. The dividend has been restarted, but it is quite variable in both amount and timing, and therefore difficult to predict. It's also paid semi-annually. Share repurchases continue as well.

Santander's Latin America markets have higher growth rates than their European counterparts. Of course, this is also a point of risk as these markets are not as established and overall credit tends to be more finicky. We see minimal earnings growth ahead. Santander continues to struggle with rates and credit quality to an extent, and we don't see that changing given its focus on auto loan origination. However, efficiency efforts are yielding higher margins, and therefore, higher earnings.

Valuation Analysis

|-----------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|------|
| Avg. P/E  | 11.0 | 11.6 | 14.3 | 8.5  | 8.5  | 8.3  | 6.8  | 5.1  | 5.8  | 5.7  | 10.1 | 7.5  |
| Avg. Yld. | 4.4% | 4.2% | 4.0% | 6.0% | 5.9% | ---  | 1.6% | 3.7% | 3.6% | 4.6% | 2.6% | 3.6% |

Santander has somewhat of a peculiar trading history, as the dividend was held relatively steady for years even after earnings collapsed. Eventually, the high dividend payment caught up with the firm and a dividend cut was required. As mentioned, the cash dividend was suspended for 2020. The dividend has risen for four years now, but we note the payout is variable.

Since the dividend cut, shares have been trading in a more normalized range. Our fair value estimate is 7.5 times earnings, due to the obvious growth struggles the company is facing, in addition to the lateness of the global economic cycle. With shares trading at 10.1 times our earnings estimate, we see a strong headwind to total returns in the coming years from the valuation.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

| Year   | 2015 | 2016 | 2017 | 2018 | 2019 | 2020 | 2021 | 2022 | 2023 | 2024 | 2025 | 2030 |
| Payout | 49%  | 49%  | 57%  | 51%  | 50%  | ---  | 11%  | 19%  | 21%  | 26%  | 26%  | 27%  |

Santander has a few advantages over a typical bank, stemming from its top five deposit market share in countries like Spain, Brazil, Mexico, Chile, and Argentina. The wide geographical base gives the company multiple positions in markets that are not necessarily correlated.

Recession performance and its aftermath are noteworthy. Santander went from earning $1.79 per share in 2008 down to $0.84 in 2011 and $0.29 in 2012. Since then, earnings have rebounded, but not nearly to the same level. We believe Santander should have slashed the dividend much earlier. Despite the material and lasting impact on earnings, the dividend continued along until 2014. Those four years of a near (or well above) 100% payout ratio required significant dilutive action. We see 2020's recession as damaging as well, but a rather swift recovery into 2021 gave way to strong earnings.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We are forecasting -1.8% annual total returns going forward, which is much better than prior but still weak. Santander is a risky bank to own, but total returns are improving. We reiterate the stock at a hold.
