Overview & Current Events

Standex International (SXI) is a company that manufactures and sells various products in the U.S. and internationally. The business operates through five segments: Electronics, Engraving, Scientific, Engineering Technologies, and Specialty Solutions. The Electronics segment makes components that are used across a variety of end markets. Engraving sells engraving services to transportation, consumer, and industrial businesses. Scientific sells medical-grade refrigerators to medical and pharmaceutical businesses. Engineering Technologies sells aerospace components like fuel tanks and heat shields to aviation and space businesses. Lastly, Specialty Solutions sells products to construction and truck companies. All in all, the business sells a variety of industrial components across a diverse range of industries.

On October 23rd, 2025, Standex announced a 6.3% year-over-year dividend increase to $0.34 per share quarterly.

In late February 2024, Standex acquired Sanyu Switch Co., Ltd., a designer and manufacturer of reed relays, test sockets, and other electronics manufacturing and switch applications.

On October 29th, 2024, Standex announced it acquired Amran Instrument Transformers and Narayan Powertech Pvt. Ltd, manufacturers of low voltage and medium voltage instrument transformers, for a combined enterprise value of $462 million. It is the largest acquisition in Standex's history.

On February 5th, 2025, it acquired McStarlite, a complex sheet metal aerospace components provider for nearly $57M.

On October 30th, 2025, Standex International reported first quarter fiscal 2025 results for the period ending September 30, 2025. Net sales rose 28% compared to the first quarter of fiscal 2025, to $217 million. Standex generated $1.99 in adjusted earnings per share in the quarter, up 8.2% year-over-year. And its adjusted operating margin increased by 210 basis points year-over-year to 19.1%.

During the quarter, Standex did not repurchase shares. It has $28 million remaining on its repurchase authorization.

For Q2 of fiscal 2026, leadership expects Standex to generate significantly higher revenue, largely due to its recent acquisitions and higher adjusted operating margin. In fiscal year 2026, Standex plans to release more than fifteen new products, which will bolster its earnings potential. Revenue is expected to grow by more than $110 million for the year.

Over the past five and nine years, Standex has seen its earnings-per-share grow by 18.0% and 6.3% annually, respectively. For the full fiscal year 2026, we expect $9.17 in earnings-per-share and forecast that the company can grow its EPS by 12% annually after FY 2026, which guides our FY 2031 EPS estimate of $16.16.

In the past few years, the business has gone through a series of acquisitions and divestitures aimed at bringing more profitable businesses into the company's portfolio. With the acquisition and divestitures of multiple businesses, the company restructured its segments from fiscal year 2019 to 2020, retiring Food Service Equipment and Hydraulics as historical segments, and reporting under Specialty Solutions and Scientific as new segments. The company's acquisition strategy revolves around divesting low margin businesses and acquiring high margin businesses that fit its core competencies (such as its acquisitions of Minntronix and Sanyu Switch Co.).

In fiscal year 2025, Standex released 16 new products, which is impressive considering it released only 3 products in FY24 and 2 new products in FY23. It expects to launch another 15 new products in FY 2026.

Its long-term targets, which it expects to achieve by FY2028, include sales above $1.15 billion, and an adjusted operating margin of more than 23%.

Over the past five and nine years, the company has increased its dividend per share by 7.5% and 12.8% annually. Over the next 5 years, we forecast that the business will grow the dividend at 8% annually. Standex International has increased its dividend payment for 15 consecutive years and has paid a dividend for an impressive 60 consecutive years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	17.2	19.7	19.2	20.8	18.9	17.3	15.6	19.0	22.2	20.9	25.4	19.5
Avg. Yld.	0.7%	0.7%	0.7%	0.9%	1.3%	1.2%	1.1%	0.8%	0.7%	0.7%	0.6%	0.6%

Over the past five and nine years, Standex International has averaged a P/E ratio of 19.0 and 19.1, respectively. We estimate that a P/E ratio of 19.5 is fair for the business as it posts record operating margins and strong earnings. As a result, shares appear to be overvalued. Today, the stock offers a low but growing 0.6% dividend yield.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

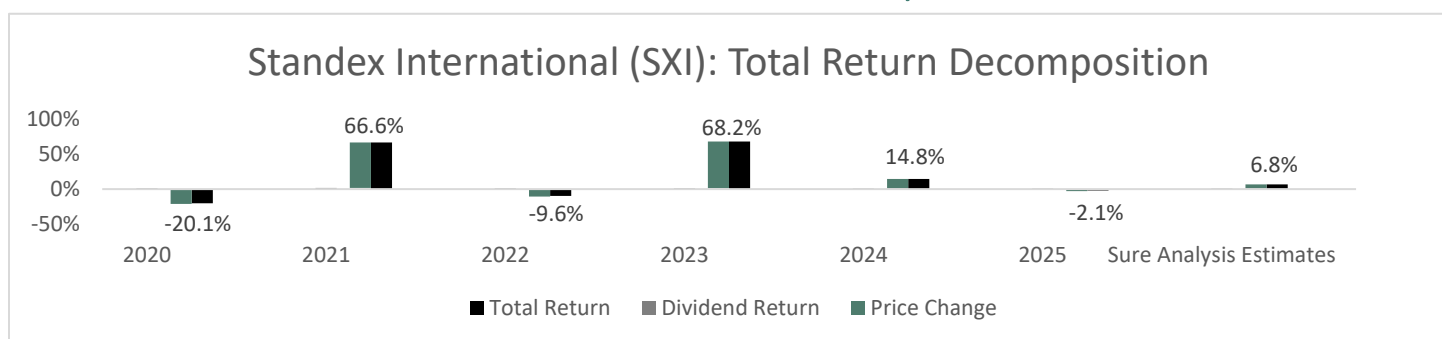

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	12%	14%	14%	19%	25%	20%	18%	17%	16%	16%	15%	12%

The business has averaged a very low payout ratio of 17% over the past 5 years. With the company's low payout ratio and strong history, we expect the dividend to continue to be safe over the intermediate term, and we believe the dividend has ample room to grow. Additionally, the business has a solid balance sheet, with $488 million in current assets (~$99 million of that as cash) compared to $545 million in long-term debt. We think the business has competitive advantages within its individual segments, where the company is the best in its niche. We believe the business has strong recession resiliency as revenues and earnings recovered swiftly following COVID.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Standex International is a growing diversified industrial business. We forecast total annualized return prospects of 6.8%, driven by 12.0% earnings-per-share growth and a 0.6% dividend yield, partly offset by -5.2% P/E multiple contraction. Standex maintains its hold rating.
