Overview & Current Events

UFP Industries, Inc. is a holding company that designs, manufactures, and sells wood, non-wood composites and other materials. Since 1955, UFPI has established itself as the largest converter of softwood lumber in North America. The company reports its results via the following three similarly sized segments:

UFP Retail Solutions: The segment is organized into the ProWood, Deckorators, and UFP-Edge business units. ProWood sells pressure-treated lumber products like decking and fencing to retailers around the United States. Deckorators sells wood plastic composites and its patented Surestone mineral-based decking and decking accessories (balusters and post caps). The UFP-Edge business unit sells trim and fascia and exterior siding products to home improvement retailers and two-step distributors.

UFP Packaging: The segment is broken down into the Structural Packaging, PalletOne, and Protective Packaging Solutions business units. Structural Packaging engineers and manufactures custom packaging products made of wood and metal. These are sold to global customers in building materials, durable goods, and agricultural industries. PalletOne designs and manufactures pallets, mostly consisting of wood and heat-treated wood. These are used by customers to ship a variety of consumer and industrial products. The Protective Packaging Solutions unit sells products to customers, such as corrugation, foam, and labels.

UFP Construction: This segment is made up of Factory-Built Housing, Site-Built Construction, Commercial Construction, and Concrete Forming business units. The Factory-Built Housing unit manufactures roof trusses, plywood, and oriented strand boards for housing manufacturers. The Site-Built Construction unit designs and manufactures roof and floor trusses, wall panels, and lumber packages. The Commercial Construction unit designs, manufactures, and installs highly customized interior fixtures for the healthcare, hospitality, and quick-service restaurant industries. The Concrete Forming unit manufactures and supplies wood forms that are used to set or form concrete for large parking garages, stadiums, and bridges.

On October 29th, UFPI shared its earnings report for the third quarter ended September 27th, 2025. The company's net sales declined by 5.4% over the year-ago period to $1.56 billion during the quarter. This was driven by a 4% decline in organic unit sales in the quarter. That was the due to continued consumer sentiment pressure and resulting lower product demand for the quarter. This soft demand environment led to competitive pricing pressures throughout its business, which also explains the 1% decrease in selling prices during the quarter. UFPI's diluted EPS dropped by 21.3% year-over-year to $1.29 in the quarter. That missed the analyst consensus by $0.10. Cost of goods sold consumed more of net sales, which caused UFPI's net profit margin to contract by 130 basis points to 4.8% for the quarter.

UFPI reaffirmed its annual unit sales growth target of between 7% and 10% over the long term. Considering the fragmented nature of the industries in which the company operates, we still believe that this is an attainable growth target. UFPI can use bolt-on acquisitions to bolster its growth as well. The company also remains poised to deliver $60 million in annual structural cost savings by the end of 2026. Earlier this year, UFPI's Board of Directors approved a plan to close its Bonner, Montana, manufacturing facilities. The company plans to transfer its trim and certain other products to existing facilities and will exit the coated siding business. As a result, UFPI anticipates that these actions will eliminate future operating losses with these facilities of $16 million in 2026. This should fuel margin expansion in 2026 and beyond. Overall, that's why we think that diluted EPS can grow by 10% annually through 2030 off our trough diluted EPS base of $5.56 for 2025.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Avg. P/E	17.1	20.6	20.6	11.0	16.8	13.9	11.0	7.2	15.6	16.4	16.4	15.0
Avg. Yld.	1.2%	0.9%	0.9%	1.4%	0.8%	0.9%	0.7%	1.2%	0.9%	1.2%	1.5%	1.5%

Adjusting for valuation peaks and troughs, UFPI's 10-year average P/E ratio has been right around 15. Since we're convinced that the growth story will hold up, we would argue that the 10-year average P/E ratio still approximates fair value. The current year P/E ratio of 16.4 suggests that shares remain overvalued.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	20%	18%	17%	15%	14%	13%	8%	9%	14%	19%	25%	23%

The company's most notable competitive advantage is its size and scale. UFPI is the largest buyer of softwood lumber on the continent. That affords it a great deal of leverage in negotiations with suppliers. UFPI is also largely shielded from the direct impact of tariffs in the sense that Southern Yellow Pine is domestically produced and accounts for more than 70% of its lumber purchases. The company's $774.2 million net cash position as of September 27th is also strong for a company of its size. UFPI's payout ratio is positioned to be in the mid 20% range in 2025, which supports the current payout.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

UFPI's 1.5% dividend yield, 10.0% annual diluted EPS growth prospects, and 1.8% annual valuation downside could deliver 9.4% annual total returns over the next five years. That's why we're reiterating our hold rating.
