Overview & Current Events

Archer-Daniels-Midland is the largest publicly traded farmland product company in the United States. The company, founded in 1902, trades with a market capitalization of $28.7 billion. Archer-Daniels-Midland's businesses include processing cereal grains, oilseeds, and agricultural storage and transportation.

Archer-Daniels-Midland reported its third-quarter results for Fiscal Year (FY)2025 on November 4th, 2025. The company reported mixed Q3 2025 results, with adjusted EPS of $0.92, beating expectations by $0.07, while revenue of $20.37 billion declined 2.2% year over year and missed estimates. GAAP net earnings were $108 million, or $0.22 per share, while adjusted net earnings totaled $448 million. Total segment operating profit fell 19% to $845 million, reflecting weaker industry margins, especially in biofuels. Despite softer profitability, year-to-date operating cash flow reached a strong $5.8 billion, supported by working capital improvements and portfolio optimization.

Segment performance remained uneven. Ag Services & Oilseeds declined 21%, driven primarily by a 93% collapse in Crushing profits due to weak biofuel demand and unfavorable trade conditions, though Ag Services itself surged 78% on strong North American exports. Carbohydrate Solutions fell 26%, pressured by weak global demand and elevated corn costs, partially offset by strong results at Vantage Corn Processors. In contrast, Nutrition delivered solid growth, with operating profit up 24%, led by margin expansion in Human Nutrition and strong recovery in Animal Nutrition, which surged 79% year over year.

Looking ahead, ADM revised full-year 2025 adjusted EPS guidance down to $3.25–$3.50, from about $4.00 previously, citing lower crush margins and continued policy uncertainty in biofuels. Management expects greater clarity on U.S. biofuel policy and global trade in 2026, which could restore demand and margin stability. While near-term earnings remain under pressure, ADM's strong asset base, diversified earnings stream, and robust cash generation position the company to navigate the downturn and benefit from a policy-driven recovery next year.

Unlike several dividend stocks that have achieved consistent year-over-year growth in earnings-per-share, Archer-Daniels-Midland (ADM) has faced challenges in boosting its profits over the past decade. Notably, its earnings-per-share for 2012 and 2013 were notably lower than those in 2011. However, the recent acquisition of Ziegler Group and the establishment of a nutrition flavor research and customer center are expected to contribute to improved growth prospects. This positive outlook leads us to anticipate a feasible growth rate of approximately 4.0% for the future. Unlike other enterprises that thrive on increased consumer spending during prosperous periods, ADM's revenue doesn't surge significantly due to the relatively stable demand for food. Consequently, while a robust economy offers substantial advantages to many firms, it doesn't serve as a significant tailwind for Archer-Daniels-Midland.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Avg. P/E	15.4	18.8	20.1	14.3	17.1	14.8	13.0	11.8	10.3	10.7	17.7	14.0

Archer-Daniels-Midland has been valued at a price-to-earnings multiple of 14.6x over the last decade. Even though its price-to-earnings multiple has been as low as 9.5x and as high as 20.1x. Now, shares look overvalued, with a current PE of 17.7x based on 2025 expected earnings of $3.38. Also, investors get an above-average dividend yield of 3.4% at current prices.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Payout	44%	56%	60%	38%	43%	40%	29%	20%	26%	42%	60%	58%

Archer-Daniels-Midland's dividend payout ratio rose substantially between 2009 and 2017, but that was when the payout ratio peaked at the 60% level in 2017. Thanks to 2018's earnings-per-share solid growth, the dividend payout ratio declined considerably to 38% in 2018. The dividend payout ratio is not high, at only 25% based on 2023 earnings. Also, because the company's profits performed well during the last recession, which saw earnings grow from $2.84 in 2008 to $3.06 in 2009, we believe that the dividend is relatively safe.

Archer-Daniels-Midland's business is recession resilient since the demand for food products is not cyclical. Archer-Daniels-Midland is one of the most significant players in its industry and has competitive advantages due to its scale and geographical reach. The company has been increasing its dividend for 50 consecutive years and has a 5-year dividend growth rate of 7.2%. Archer-Daniels-Midland looks like a low-risk investment due to its recession resilience, solid balance sheet, geographic diversification, and dividend history. However, note that the company balance sheet Debt/Equity ratio is 0.3. This is in line with the past five-year average but not at a dangerous level for the company.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

We expect Archer-Daniels-Midland to grow earnings at 4.0% annually. Investors get an above-average dividend yield and an overvalued stock price with a fair price of $47. The total return outlook is 2.8% annually for the next five years. We recommend that this company is a hold at the current price because of the expected returns.
