Overview & Current Events

CDW Corporation is a leading provider of technology solutions for business, government, education, and healthcare sectors. Established in 1984 and headquartered in Vernon Hills, Illinois, CDW offers a broad portfolio of products and services, including hardware, software, networking, cloud computing, and IT consulting. The company serves a wide range of customers, from small businesses to large enterprises, by helping them implement and manage IT infrastructure. CDW’s business model revolves around partnering with major technology vendors, such as Cisco, Microsoft, and Dell, allowing it to deliver comprehensive solutions to its clients. CDW is publicly traded under the ticker symbol CDW on the NASDAQ. It has consistently reported strong financial performance, driven by growing demand for digital transformation, cloud services, and cybersecurity solutions. The company continues to expand both organically and through acquisitions to broaden its capabilities and market reach.

CDW Corporation reported its third-quarter earnings on November 4th, 2025. The company reported third-quarter 2025 revenue of $5.74 billion, up 4.0% year over year, while non-GAAP EPS increased 3.0% to $2.71, beating expectations. Gross profit rose 4.6% to $1.26 billion, with margin improving slightly to 21.9%. However, operating income declined 8.0% to $443 million due to a 12.9% increase in selling and administrative expenses tied to higher compensation, transformation costs, and acquisition-related amortization. Net income fell 8.0% to $291 million, reflecting margin pressure despite solid top-line growth.

Growth was broad-based across most customer segments. Corporate sales rose 4.4%, Small Business surged 14.2%, and Public sector sales increased modestly by 0.6%, with strength in government and healthcare offset by weaker education spending. International operations in the UK and Canada grew 9.1%. Product demand was strongest in networking, mobile devices, desktops, software, and services, while data storage and server sales declined. Services and cloud offerings were key contributors to both revenue growth and margin stability.

Looking ahead, management remains confident in CDW’s ability to outperform overall U.S. IT spending by 200 to 300 basis points on a constant-currency basis. The company continues to prioritize cash flow generation, disciplined capital allocation, and shareholder returns, supported by a $0.63 quarterly dividend. While economic uncertainty and public-sector budget pressures persist, CDW’s diversified customer base, deep vendor relationships, and expanding cloud and services portfolio position it well for steady long-term growth.

and expanding through strategic acquisitions. Over the past ten years, earnings have grown a CAGR of 14.0%. However, it has slowed down over the past five years to a CAGR of 8.5%. We expect the company to continue this growth rate of 7% over the next five years. We also expect the company to grow its dividend at an 7% annual rate as well over the next five years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Avg. P/E	14.3	15.2	18.2	15.5	23.6	19.6	25.7	18.3	23.0	18.3	14.5	18.0

The company looks undervalued at the current price. The current PE of 14.5x is lower than the past ten years average of 19.2x. We think that a PE of 18 is fair for this company. Thus, at the current price, there is a valuation tailwind of 4.4%.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	11%	14%	18%	18%	21%	23%	21%	21%	24%	26%	25%	25%

CDW’s competitive advantage lies in its extensive portfolio of technology solutions, strong partnerships with leading technology vendors, and its ability to offer tailored IT solutions to a wide range of clients, from small businesses to large enterprises. The company's deep expertise in cloud computing, security, and networking, combined with its consultative approach, enables it to serve as a trusted advisor to its customers. Its diverse customer base across industries such as business, government, healthcare, and education also provide stability, even during economic fluctuations. The company has a debt-to-equity ratio of 2.3, which is a little on the high side, but it does cover the interest by 7.3 times. Currently the company has an investment grade rating of BBB- from S&P Credit rating.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Investing in CDW Corporation carries risks related to economic downturns, which can lead to reduced IT spending by businesses, government, and other sectors. The company also faces competitive pressures from both large technology vendors and smaller niche players in the IT solutions space. Additionally, shifts in technology trends or customer preferences, such as rapid changes in cloud or cybersecurity needs, could impact its ability to maintain growth and profitability. Thus, at the current price, we rate the stock as a buy because of the expected five-year annual return of 13.0%.
