Overview & Current Events

Home Depot was founded in 1978 and since that time has grown into a juggernaut home improvement retailer with over 2,300 stores in the US, Canada and Mexico that generate around $160 billion in annual revenue. The stock has a market value of $352 billion, making it one of the larger companies by market capitalization in the US. It trades under the ticker symbol HD on the NYSE.

On June 18th, 2024, Home Depot completed its acquisition of SRS Distribution, a leading residential specialty trade distribution company, for an enterprise value of $18.25 billion. This acquisition expanded Home Depot's total addressable market by $50 billion to $1 trillion.

On February 25th, 2025, Home Depot announced a 2.2% increase to the dividend to $9.20 per share annualized.

On September 4th, 2025, the company completed its acquisition of GMS Inc., a specialty building products distributor, for $110 per share, for a total enterprise value of roughly $5.5 billion. GMS merged into SRS, creating a network of over 1,200 locations and a fleet of over 8,000 trucks which could make 10,000+ jobsite deliveries per day.

Home Depot reported third quarter 2025 results on November 18th, 2025. The company reported sales of $41.4 billion, up 2.8% year-over-year. Comparable sales in the quarter rose 0.2%. Net earnings equaled $3.6 billion, or $3.62 per share, compared to $3.6 billion, or $3.67 per share in Q3 2024. Adjusted EPS was $3.74.

Average ticket improved 2.0% compared to last year, from $88.65 to $90.39. However, customer transactions fell 1.4% to 393.5 million.

As of the end of 3Q25, Home Depot had cash and cash equivalents amounting to $1.7 billion.

Management updated its guidance for 2025, now expecting total sales growth of 3.0%, the addition of 12 new stores, and diluted EPS to decline by 6% from 2024.

Home Depot's earnings momentum has been enormous in the past decade as it has been able to fully capitalize on the housing and construction boom that ensued following the Great Recession. Then, in the depths of the COVID pandemic, business boomed as the demand for home remodeling and renovations surged. We see five-year annual earnings per share growth of 8.0%, consisting of comparable sales in the low single digits, a low single-digit tailwind from buybacks, a potential low single-digit tailwind from operating margin improvements, and acquisitions. Average ticket sales increases will also continue to add to the top line.

Home Depot (HD)

Updated December 3rd, 2025 by Quinn Mohammed

On the share repurchase front, Home Depot spent nearly $8.0 billion and $6.7 billion in 2023 and 2022, respectively. And in mid-August 2023, the company inked a new share repurchase authorization of $15 billion. However, in 2024, it only repurchased $649 million of its stock, as it spent a significant sum on its acquisition of SRS.

In addition, the company's streak of meaningful dividend growth should continue as we see the payout rising at the rate of earnings, reaching $13.52 per share in five years. Home Depot's 2.6% yield is now above its historic average. The company still has room to continue raising the payout in the years to come. Additionally, as it matures it may institute a higher payout ratio target for the dividend, further boosting its dividend growth prospects.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	22.1	20.3	21.6	19.4	21.0	23.5	24.2	19.6	19.0	24.3	24.7	21.5
Avg. Yld.	2.0%	2.1%	2.2%	2.2%	2.3%	2.3%	2.0%	2.3%	2.6%	2.4%	2.6%	3.0%

The share price of Home Depot has come down recently, but the stock still trades above our estimate of fair value. Shares trade for 24.7 times our earnings estimate for this year, while we see fair value at 21.5 times earnings. As a result, we see the potential for a valuation headwind.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	44%	43%	48%	42%	53%	50%	42%	46%	55%	60%	63%	63%

Home Depot's payout ratio is above half of earnings, and we expect it will remain in this range for the foreseeable future. That means the dividend is not only safe, but it has room to grow in the future as earnings expand. Home Depot's competitive advantage is in its enormous footprint, strong brand recognition and inventory variety. Supplanting its dominant position in home improvement will be extremely difficult for all comers, including rival Lowe's. The company is likely to suffer during a recession, but weakness would be a buying opportunity for long-term investors. With the coronavirus pandemic forcing many to stay home, home renovations is how many people spent their time, which was reflected in Home Depot's stock, seeing total returns of 24.4% in 2020 and 58.7% in 2021.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Home Depot offers investors the chance to own a stock that is dominant in its industry with terrific long-term earnings and dividend growth outlooks. The share price of HD has decreased by 13% since our last research report, in August, and it is now trading at 115% of our fair value estimate. We expect total annual returns of 7.6% going forward, consisting of the current 2.6% yield, and 8.0% earnings-per-share growth, partly offset by -2.7% P/E multiple contraction. HD maintains its hold rating.
