Overview & Current Events

Yum China Holdings, Inc. (YUMC) is China's largest restaurant company, Yum China operates over 17,500 restaurants across more than 2,400 cities under its leading brands.

On November 4th, 2025, Yum China announced Q3 2025 results, reporting Q3 non-GAAP diluted EPS of $0.76, in-line with analysts' estimates.

Yum China delivered a strong third quarter, underscored by resilient demand, disciplined execution, and continued margin expansion. Operating profit rose 8% year over year to $400 million, supported by steady same-store sales growth, accelerating new store openings, and improving restaurant economics. Total revenues increased 4% to $3.2 billion, while system sales also grew 4% excluding foreign exchange, driven by net new unit contributions and a return to positive same-store sales. Notably, same-store transactions grew 4%, marking the eleventh consecutive quarter of transaction growth, a clear signal of sustained customer engagement despite a dynamic consumer environment. The company opened 536 net new stores during the quarter, bringing total store count to 17,514, reinforcing Yum China's long-term expansion runway.

Operational efficiency remained a key differentiator. Operating margin expanded 40 basis points to 12.5%, while restaurant margin improved to 17.3%, reflecting lower food and paper costs alongside better occupancy and operating expense control. Digital continued to anchor the business, with digital sales reaching $2.8 billion and accounting for roughly 95% of total sales, while delivery grew a robust 32% year over year and now represents just over half of company sales. Capital returns were also front and center, with $414 million returned to shareholders in the quarter. Management reiterated confidence in returning approximately $1.5 billion to shareholders in 2025, supported by strong cash generation, disciplined growth, and a scalable, increasingly franchise-led store model.

Yum China has grappled with COVID-19-related challenges with intermittent lockdowns from 2020 to the current year, which has affected its earnings in recent years. However, we believe the company is well-positioned for growth in the coming years with a favorable industry outlook. The fast-food restaurant industry still has a lot of room for growth, constituting only about 17% of restaurant spending compared with 61% in the US. We believe the trend will change in the coming years, driven by secular trends and Yum China.

Yum China plans to accelerate expansion by opening 1,600 to 1,800 net new stores in 2025. The company is increasing its franchise mix, targeting 40–50% for KFC and 20–30% for Pizza Hut in the coming years to enhance scalability and profitability. Additionally, Yum China now expects to invest $600 million to $700 million in capital expenditures for store development, technology, and supply chain enhancements in 2025.

Updated December 20th, 2025, by Yiannis Zourmpanos

Therefore, we now expect an EPS growth rate of 10.0%, which reflects the company's growth prospects as China's economy is recovering. The company continues to expand its store count, which will catalyze EPS growth in the next five years. In addition, the company should be able to grow its dividends at a healthy pace in the future, and we have assumed a dividend growth rate of 20.0% for the next five years.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	Now	2030
Avg. P/E	-	20.0	35.1	31.4	23.9	33.2	48.6	39.8	28.3	14.0	19.6	20.0
Avg. Yld.	-	-	0.3%	1.1%	1.1%	0.5%	0.8%	1.0%	0.9%	2.0%	2.0%	3.0%

Yum China is trading at a forward P/E of 19.6, significantly lower than the five-year average of around 31. The stock is trading at a discount due to the uncertain economic outlook of the Chinese economy. We expect the P/E to normalize as earnings grow and have assumed a conservative P/E of 20.0 by 2030, leading to our five-year price target of $79.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2015	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2030
Payout	-		10%	34%	26%	16%	39%	40%	26%	27%	39%	61%

Yum China's most important competitive advantage is its high brand value. Moreover, focusing on menu innovations and efficient supply chain infrastructure, which results in cost advantages compared to smaller brands, gives Yum China an edge over other fast-food restaurant businesses. In addition, Yum China, as the largest restaurant chain, benefits from economies of scale, which allows it to exert significant influence over suppliers and guarantee access to food and other raw materials at stable, reasonable pricing. The business also operates in a recession-proof industry since everyone still requires food and drink to survive, no matter the macroeconomic situation. In Q3, Yum China repurchased $326 million of its shares during the quarter.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Yum China's fundamental business model is solid that will likely continue to thrive. The company has a solid balance sheet and ample liquidity as of the last quarter, which it can utilize to continue to expand and pay dividends to shareholders. Despite the strong bull run, we maintain our buy rating premised upon the 12.7% annualized total returns for the medium-term, driven by forecasted earnings-per-share growth of 10.0%, a starting yield of 2.0%, and a valuation tailwind.
