Overview & Current Events

Hawthorn Bancshares is a financial holding company that is the parent company of Hawthorn Bank, which was founded in 1865 and is headquartered in Jefferson City, Missouri. The bank, which has 18 branches, conducts a general banking and trust business, offering its customers checking and savings accounts, internet banking, debit cards, brokerage services and a wide range of loans, such as commercial and industrial loans, personal loans and residential real estate loans. Commercial real estate loans comprise 50% of total loans while residential real estate loans comprise 24% of total loans. Hawthorn Bancshares has a market capitalization of only $233 million.

In late January, Hawthorn Bancshares reported (1/28/26) results for the fourth quarter of 2025. Loans and deposits grew 2% each sequentially. Net interest margin shrank from 3.97% to 3.89% but net interest income grew 4% thanks to loan growth. Despite higher loan charge-offs and provisions for loan losses, earnings-per-share rose 2%, from $0.88 to $0.90. After many consecutive quarters of compressed net interest margin, Hawthorn Bancshares has seen its net interest margin improve in 4 of the last 5 quarters thanks to lower interest rates. Given also the recent interest rate cuts executed by the Fed, we expect the net interest margin of the bank to improve further this year. Nevertheless, we reiterate that the excessive losses from bond sales incurred in Q4-2023 raise a red flag about management.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Hawthorn Bancshares has exhibited a decent but volatile performance record over the last decade. During the last five years, the bank has grown its loans and its deposits at an average annual rate of 6%. However, the bank incurred a -95% plunge in earnings-per-share in 2023 due to excessive losses from sales of bonds. The losses were caused by the impact of high interest rates on the value of bonds. This is a stern reminder of the inherent risk of this small-cap bank. While the excessive losses do not bode well for the quality of management, Hawthorn Bancshares has recovered strongly, as the realized losses in 2023 are most likely non-recurring in nature. The bank is also likely to see its net interest margin improve in the upcoming years thanks to the interest rate reductions expected by the Fed. Overall, we assume 2.0% average annual growth of earnings-per-share over the next five years, below the 5-year growth rate of the company for the sake of conservatism. The bank may exceed our expectations but it is prudent to be on the safe side, given the vulnerable business model of this small-cap bank.

Hawthorn Bancshares (HWBK)

Updated January 30th, 2026 by Aristofanis Papadatos

Excluding the years 2017 and 2023, in which abnormally low earnings resulted in abnormally high price-to-earnings ratios, Hawthorn Bancshares has traded at an average price-to-earnings ratio of 9.3 over the last decade. We assume this valuation level as fair for this small-cap financial stock. The stock has rallied 30% off its bottom last year, primarily thanks to lower interest rates. As a result, it is currently trading at a price-to-earnings ratio of 9.7. If it trades at its fair valuation level in five years, it will incur a -0.9% annualized valuation drag.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	16%	46%	21%	18%	22%	17%	21%	479%	28%	23%	24%	28%

Hawthorn Bancshares just raised its dividend by 5% and thus it has now raised its dividend for 15 consecutive years. It is also offering a 2.5% dividend yield, with a solid payout ratio of only 24%. In addition, the bank has a healthy tier 1 capital ratio of 14.2% while its net loan charge-offs have remained below 0.30% in each of the last five years. Therefore, the dividend of the bank appears safe in the absence of a severe downturn.

Hawthorn Bancshares also proved resilient to the pandemic, as it reported just an -11% decrease in earnings-per-share in 2020 and posted record earnings-per-share in 2021. However, the bank proved highly vulnerable to the unexpected surge of inflation, which led the Fed to raise interest rates to 23-year highs within a short period. The excessive losses of the bank in the fourth quarter of 2023 are reminders of the inherent risk of this small-cap bank. Overall, Hawthorn Bancshares does not appear suitable for conservative, income-oriented investors.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Hawthorn Bancshares has begun to recover strongly from the downturn caused by the surge of interest rates in recent years. With that said, the stock has more than doubled off its bottom in 2023 and hence it has become less attractive. It could offer a 3.7% average annual return over the next five years, as 2.0% growth of earnings-per-share and a 2.5% dividend may be partly offset by a -0.9% valuation headwind. The stock receives a hold rating.
