Overview & Current Events

Old Republic, founded in 1907, markets, underwrites, and provides risk management services for a variety of general and title insurances. The company engages in underwriting and related services, primarily in the US, but in Canada as well. Old Republic has three operating segments: General Insurance, Title Insurance, and a run-off business. It generates almost $10 billion in annual revenue and its market capitalization is $9.5 billion. Old Republic also has an outstanding dividend increase streak of 44 years.

Old Republic posted fourth quarter and full-year earnings on January 22nd, 2026, and results were weak, sending the stock tumbling. Adjusted earnings-per-share came to 74 cents, but that missed by a huge margin of 14 cents. It was down from 90 cents a year ago. Revenue was up more than 9% year-over-year to $2.36 billion, beating estimates by $50 million.

Net premiums and fees were $2.13 billion, up almost 10% year-over-year. Net investment income was up 8% year-over-year to $184 million on higher investment yields, as well as a higher invested asset base.

Expenses were $2.13 billion in Q4, up from $2.07 billion in Q3 and $1.87 billion a year ago. Combined ratio came to 96.0% in Q4, worse from 95.3% in Q3 and from 92.7% a year ago.

Book value ended the year at $24.21 per share, up from $22.84 a year earlier.

We start 2026 with estimated earnings of $3.30 per share, representing steady growth from 2025 results.

Growth on a Per-Share Basis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
EPS	$1.47	$1.11	$1.86	$1.84	$2.24	$3.08	$2.79	$2.63	$3.03	$3.15	$3.30	$4.21

As one would expect, Old Republic's earnings-per-share has been very volatile during the past decade. Insurers have notoriously unpredictable earnings and Old Republic is certainly no exception, having seen its earnings plummet and skyrocket multiple times in this period. We forecast Old Republic's long-term growth rate at 5%, but note this year is set for record earnings.

We see Old Republic as struggling to grow from the high base of earnings because title insurance is weak, and getting weaker. The once-hot real estate market has slowed materially, creating headwinds for what was Old Republic's primary source of growth. However, the weakness in title insurance has largely abated and we believe Old Republic will see record earnings again this year.

The dividend will likely continue to grow at a relatively slow pace as dividend increases in the past decade have been very small. It did pay a $1 special dividend early in 2018, late in 2019, and again in late 2020. The special dividend for 2021 was a very robust $1.50, and for 2022, it was $1.00. The stock's yield is still strong even with its sluggish payout growth, so income investors will likely find it attractive. The special dividends make the total yield for the year close to 10%, but we note there was no special dividend in 2023. Management declared a $2 special dividend for January 2025 based on 2024's strong earnings. Management declared and paid its largest ever special dividend at $2.50 per share in January 2026.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	12.6	18.0	11.4	12.0	7.8	7.7	8.7	11.2	11.9	14.5	11.8	10.5
Avg. Yld.	4.1%	3.8%	3.7%	3.6%	4.8%	3.7%	3.8%	3.3%	2.9%	2.5%	3.0%	3.3%

Old Republic's price-to-earnings multiple has been volatile in recent years, but that has mostly been due to changes in earnings and not valuation resets from investors. Our estimate of fair value for Old Republic is 10.5 times earnings, which is lower than the current 11.8, and below its average of ~12. We are therefore forecasting a small headwind to annual total returns from the valuation over the coming years.

We see the yield staying strong. The wildcard is the recent special dividends the company paid in lieu of larger quarterly dividend increases, but we think Old Republic will continue to be a strong income stock for years to come.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031
Payout	51%	68%	42%	43%	38%	29%	33%	37%	35%	37%	35%	35%

The payout ratio has fallen significantly in recent years. Given slow payout growth coupled with strong earnings, that trend could continue. Overall, Old Republic is in significantly better shape than it was a few years ago. We note the lack of earnings growth projected could see the payout ratio rise somewhat in the near future.

Old Republic operates in a tremendously competitive field, making advantages hard to come by. However, it sets itself apart with its strong premiums against claims, which is the product of prudent underwriting. We note that Old Republic is exposed to weak (or strong) real estate markets through its title insurance business.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Overall, Old Republic looks good from an income stock perspective if one can stomach the potential risk of owning an insurer. The stock is just ahead of our fair value estimate and offers forecasted total annual returns of 5.5% in the coming years, consisting of the current 3% yield, 5% earnings-per-share growth, and a 2.3% headwind from the valuation. We have the stock now at a hold rating with slightly lower prospective total returns.
