Overview & Current Events

Agilent Technologies, Inc. (A) offers instruments, software, and services to life sciences, diagnostics, and applied chemicals markets. It is a global company with operations in the Americas (which accounted for 38% of Q1 2026 revenue), Asia Pacific (33%), and Europe (29%). The company is separated into three segments: Life Sciences & Diagnostics Markets Group (LDG), Agilent CrossLab Group (ACG), and Applied Markets Group (AMG). ACG makes up nearly half of its total revenue (42%), with LDG (38%) and AMG (20%) making up the remainder. Its end markets are primarily Chemicals and Advanced Materials, and Pharma, with Diagnostics and Clinical, Environmental & Forensics, Food, and Academia & Govt making up the remainder. Agilent has a market capitalization of $33 billion.

On February 25th, 2026, Agilent reported first quarter 2026 results for the period ending January 31, 2025. For the quarter, the company reported revenue of $1.80 billion, representing a 7% increase from the previous year. Adjusted net income was $386 million, or $1.36 per share, reflecting a 4% rise compared to Q1 2025. The company's LDG, AMG, and ACG and segments saw revenue increases of 5%, 7%, and 9% year-over-year, respectively.

Leadership upgraded its 2026 full-year outlook, now projecting revenue between $7.3 billion and $7.5 billion, which indicates an increase of 5.5% to 7.5% compared to FY 2025. Adjusted EPS is projected between $5.90 and $6.04.

Agilent Technologies has grown at a fairly even pace over the last decade and half decade, boasting a 5- and 9-year EPS CAGR of 11.3% and 12.2%, respectively. The company has reported excellent results since the pandemic. Additionally, Agilent reported higher adjusted EPS for over a decade until 2024, when results reflected reduced capital purchases by customers. It has consistently reduced its share count by approximately 1.6% annually, a trend that we expect to continue.

Agilent serves numerous different industries, with its various segments reaching $83 billion in total addressable market opportunity and believes it can achieve 4% to 6% long-term growth across these markets. Its largest addressable markets are Pharma & Biotech ($27B), Clinical & Diagnostics ($21B), and Academic & Government ($14B), with Environmental & Forensics ($7B), Food ($6B), and Chemicals & Advanced Materials ($8B) also contributing significantly. Biopharma is Agilent's primary growth opportunity, accounting for 37% of its pharma revenue mix in FY25, up from 22% in FY19. Furthermore, the target patient population for these products is steadily increasing. It is also now experiencing strong growth (+9% YoY) in its Chemicals & Advanced Materials segment, most notably its semiconductor space. The company's exposure to semiconductors and batteries, which are used to power Generative AI, 5G, Cloud Computing, and Automotive Electronics, are growing rapidly.

We are forecasting $5.97 in earnings-per-share and a 10% intermediate-term growth rate.

Valuation Analysis

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	Now	2031
Avg. P/E	32.5	31.9	68.8	25.4	51.5	40.5	35.9	33.0	26.1	22.7	19.9	26.0

Agilent Technologies stock has traded at a lofty premium over the past decade. The company's average PE ratio over the last ten and five years has been 36.8 and 31.6, respectively. Agilent trade at 19.9 times EPS, below our fair value estimate of 26X. We believe the current projected earnings growth forecast does not support a PE as high as its historical averages. The company has increased its dividend every year since its inception in 2012. During that time, it more than tripled its quarterly dividend from $0.071 to $0.255. Still, considering its EPS growth has been very strong, its payout ratio has actually decreased over the last decade.

Safety, Quality, Competitive Advantage, & Recession Resiliency

Year	2016	2017	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022	2023	2024	2025	2026	2031

Agilent is a global market leader with a diverse product portfolio. Furthermore, much of its business is subject to regulations, which raise the barrier to entry for potential competitors. Still, Agilent invests extensively in R&D to maintain its market share in its end markets, which change constantly. It spent $455 million and $479 million on R&D in the last two fiscal years, respectively.

As of the most recent quarter, Agilent held $1.8 billion in cash and equivalents, $4.6 billion in current assets and $12.8 billion in total assets compared to $2.2 billion in current liabilities and $5.9 billion in total liabilities.

Final Thoughts & Recommendation

Shares of Agilent have decreased by 13% year-to-date, which compares unfavorably to the S&P 500 Index's flat performance. The company has produced an enviable earnings record, with more than a decade of straight growth until FY 2024. We are forecasting 16.6% total return potential stemming from 10% earnings-per-share growth, the 0.9% dividend yield, as well as a 5.5% valuation tailwind. Agilent earns a hold rating.
